Committee Tables Hatch Bill, Using Secret Ballot

Dempsey Assails Procedure in Drive To Force Measure To Floor of House

The House Judiciary Committee, by the rarely used secret ballot method, yesterday tabled and probably killed for the session the Hatch "purity in State politics" bill.

Committee pigeon-holing was ordered by a 14 to 10 count of unsigned votes after the 26-man group earlier voted 12 to 10 against tabling the measure.

Condemning the secret ballot procedure, Representative John J. Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, immediately introduced a resolution calling on the Rules Committe to give the legislation right-of-way.

Should this maneuver fail to shake the bill loose from the Judiciary Committee's grip, Dempsey said he will circulate in the House beginning tomorrow a discharge petition which if signed by a majority (218) of House members will force action.

"Pressure" Reported

The Judiciary Committee's surprise action came after the Democratic National Committee and some Administration leaders were reported to have exerted pressure to sidetrack, in the House, the Senate-approved measure. The President favors the bill.

As Dempsey carried his fight to the House floor in a speech declaring "the country is almost unanimously for this bill," House Republican Leader Martin rose to pledge his support of the bill's objectives.

Across the Capitol, Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, author of the bill, voiced regret that the tabling was ordered by a nonrecord vote, but declared he was "not discouraged."

"If it fails in the House, we will pass a better bill next session," said the draftsman of the original Hatch bill, now law.

Fish Criticizes Secrecy

Joining in the criticism of the committee's secret vote, Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, ranking member of the Rules Committee, which now must act, announced he would aid Dempsey in his move to compel House consideration.

"The committee's procedure was most unusual and showed a lack of intestinal fortitude," Dempsey told reporters. "They voted in secret because they didn't dare be counted. They didn't dare go on record because the people are for this bill."

Later the New Mexico Democrat exhorted House members to support him in wresting control of the measure from the judiciary group.

"I recognize there are members of this House who are glad to see the bill tabled," he said. "But those who are in favor of clean politics and who don't want the Federal Treasury used as a campaign fund will be glad to have an opportunity to sign my petition. There may be members who don't like the truth, but you are going to

South Can't Elect President Until It Has Candidate, Garner Says

A flat statement by a member of the President's Cabinet that he is going back home to live in January, 1941, last night renewed speculation that the President is planning to do likewise.

Secretary of War Woodring made the statement without other political reference at a dinner by the Kansas Council for members of the Kansas Senatorial and Congressional delegations and other Kansans residing in Washington.

Secretary Woodring was praising recent industrial strides in his native State when he injected the personal and some thought political note. He told guests of the council he wanted to take his family back to Kansas where they can live pleasantly.

"Frankly," he added, "I am coming back to Kansas to live in Janu-

LaGuardia Willing To Serve Either Party, Paper Says

New York, May 1 (AP).—The New York Times says Mayor F. H. LaGuardia is "lending his tacit encouragement to a drive for a Vice Presidential berth on the ticket of either major party."

A City Hall source, the Times adds, reported the Mayor receptive to such a development and had been in contact this week with Arizona delegates to the Democratic National convention.

It was reported, says the newspaper, that Wirt G. Bowman, of Nogales, Ariz, Democratic National committeeman, would present the mayor's name to the convention as a Vice Presidential candidate.

D. C. Observes May Day Amid Peace, Beauty

War Fails to Dampen City's Celebration Of Traditional Date

Shadows of an overcast sky and the gloom of half a world at war yesterday failed to temper the traditional gayety of May Day celebrations in the District.

Prayers for peace and thankfulness for the coming of another season, signalized by full blooming of double cherry blossoms along Hains Point, marked the day as it was celebrated on the playgrounds and at the battle monuments of the city.

It was, in fact, a triple celebration, observed as a spring festival by children, as a peace day by District officials, Legionnaires and students, and as child health day by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and other parents.

A Georgetown University senior, Dexter L. Hanley, speaking in R. O. T. C. uniform to the third annual National Catholic College Student before the World War Memorial in Peace Day rally on Georgetown's campus, set the mood when he asked, in an address to more than 1,500 students:

"Why is it that the soft murmur of the Potomac is lost in the thunder of cannon from across the seas?"

An answer was contained in the first public address made by John Russell Young since he became a District Commissioner. Speaking to legionnaires and auxiliary members West Potomac Park, the Commissioner declared:

"The tragic chaos among the weaker nations which were not powerful enough to defend their ideals, remains as a lasting warning to the rest of the world."

Commissioner Young advocated "adequate protection" for America. Other plans for a fortified Americanism were made by William T. Slattery, District department com-

Wanted—A Breakfast Host

Wisconsin Women Democrats Seek to Borrow a Congressman

Wanted—a benevolent Administration Senator or Representative to feed 40 Wisconsin Democratic women at breakfast tomorrow.

The gals aren't gold diggers, either. They are willing to foot the bill.

Their unusual predicament was disclosed yesterday by Mrs. George A. Givan, Democratic National Committeewoman from Wisconsin, which hasn't got a Democratic Senator or Congressman in the Capitol's carload.

Seems representatives of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee are arriving in force for a three-day National Institute of Government opening today.

Seems also that Democratic Senators and Representatives hospitably invited delegations from their home States to "Congressional breakfasts" tomorrow.

Tragic note is that Wisconsin, which recently delivered a sweeping primary indorsement of the President and helped reseat him in the White House in 1936, hasn't got a Democratic host at the Capitol.

So Mrs. Givan, who, besides leading the Wisconsin delegation of 30 New Deal women and 10 college Betty Co-eds is a women manager for Federal Security Administrator McNutt's campaign, decided to do something about it.

She issued a "Host wanted" statement. Volunteers should apply to "Wisconsin delegation, room 311,

Navy Visions Turtle-Back Warships

Armored Covers Over Superstructures Studied to Offset 'Advantage' of Planes

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Edison said yesterday that airplanes now have a "temporary advantage" over warships which must be offset by basically redesigning new surface vessels and making more minor changes in existing ships.

The present advantage, he stressed, was not that planes sink many warships but that exploding bombs kill personnel, silence guns and disrupt communications on the exposed "topside" of existing vessels. He announced he will hold immediate conferences with ranking admirals and design experts on the proposed changes.

Officials said the future warship now tentatively visualized by the high command would contain a turtle-backed armored deck completely covering the now exposed parts, utilizing pill-boxes to house guns and a conning tower for a bridge.

Some Disadvantages

Such radical departure from traditional design would have disadvantages, it was admitted, principally in the weight involved and probable loss of efficiency in handling of the ships. Some such change, however, is now being discussed by designers, it was said on good authority, and must come in the future.

Secretary Edison's plans for reconsideration of ship designs were apparently based on the results of recent fleet maneuvers in the Pacific and intelligence reports of the war abroad. He emphasized that the proposed changes are tentative and will be thoroughly discussed by the high command before any action is taken.

Changes, the Navy chief said he had in mind for existing ships, are placing antiaircraft guns in turrets, protecting signalmen and control points by steel shelters and the elimination of all gear and projections on deck which may splinter when hit and kill men by flying fragments.

Ships "Tough," However

Such changes, he declared, would be minor, as the proper correction of the fault is a "matter of basic design, from the inside out." Funds will not be asked this year, for any alterations, Edison added, as it will take some time to devise plans, and "we don't want to go into this on a half-baked basis."

"Don't get the idea our ships can't stand up against air attack," he warned. "They're tough. They wouldn't be sunk in any quantities. But we can improve them."

Mines and torpedoes also have made stronger under-water protec-

Jury Acquits DePerini in Knife Slaying of Wife

Joseph DePerini, 74, who testified that he stabbed his wife to death in self-defense, was acquitted by a Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury last night. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty at 10:55 p. m. after deliberating one hour and a half.

DePerini, retired blacksmith and former employe of the Capital Transit Co., was charged with the murder of his third wife, Mrs. Alice DePerini, 42, at their home in Riverdale, Md., February 20.

"When I walked into the apartment, after visiting my daughter," DePerini told the court, "my wife was asleep. She woke up and grabbed a butcher knife from the cupboard in the kitchen.

"I pushed her back and took the knife away from her. Then she grabbed another knife and made for me again. She came at me as if she would drive the knife clear through me. But I reached her first and cut her in the neck."

He described his wife as a powerful woman who had "the strength of an animal" when she had been drinking. "It wasn't my power that got me from under that knife," he told the court. "It was God's help that saved me."

Allies Attack German Convoy, Swedes See Ships Burn, Sink; No War Now, Duce Tells U. S.

Mussolini Explains To U. S. Ambassador He's Nonbelligerent Ally of Germany

By Richard G. Massock.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rome, May 1. — President Roosevelt's Ambassador to Italy, William Phillips, was understood tonight to have received directly from Premier Mussolini an assurance that Italy contemplates no move into the war at present.

The Ambassador called on Il Duce to obtain a clear view of Italy's foreign policy, at a time when the expressions of Italian press and certain Fascist leaders have made it look as if Italy might be getting ready for war on the side of Germany.

Details of this interview are not available, but Il Duce was reported to have confirmed the widely held impression that Italy, pending some important development, will remain the nonbelligerent ally of Germany.

French 'Frankly Uneasy'

(A French foreign office spokesman said, however, that the Italian attitude toward the Allies "has become definitely alarming" in the last two days and that the French government is "frankly uneasy." He added that the ministry's apprehension was based on the general atmosphere rather than on specific facts.)

While Phillips was with Il Duce, the British charge d'affaires, Sir Noel Charles, was explaining to Foreign Minister Count Ciano the meaning of Britain's diversion of her through shipping from the Mediterranean to the Long Cape of Good Hope route.

This meeting was described as cordial and it was indicated there was mention of Britain's desire for good relations with Italy and resumption of long-suspended trade negotiations. The meeting took place at Ciano's request.

British See No Change

Belief was expressed in British circles that the decision to divert British ships from the Mediterranean reflected no change in relations between Britain and Italy.

Italy's press reported the British announcement of the decision to divert shipping verbatim. This announcement said "certain precautions" were being taken in regard to British shipping which normally follows the Mediterranean route because of the recent anti-Allied expressions of the Italian press and

Consul Hints Nazis Aim to Oust British From Gibraltar

New York, May 1 (AP).—Dr. Hans Borchers, German consul-general, suggested tonight that the attempted ouster of the British from Gibraltar was a German war aim.

Any such campaign would presuppose material support from the Italians.

Dr. Borchers' denunciation of the English as "unwanted oppressors" in Gibraltar and in other areas was included in a speech prepared for delivery on this, Germany's "national labor day," at the Schwabenhalle in Brooklyn. (The term Schwabenhalle refers to the German province of Swabia.)

"Are we to believe," he asked, "that the Lord himself gave England authority to lock both ends of the Mediterranean with fortresses, in order to subject to her will all nations living within these confines? Or is her rule based on force—naked and brutal force?

"The only possible answer is that conditions such as these should not and cannot last forever."

First Lady Gets Nation's Award

New York, May 1 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight was given the annual award of the magazine, the Nation, for "distinguished service to the cause of social progress."

The citation accompanying the award acclaimed her for "her helpful interest in the problems of young men and women and for her quiet, intelligent and dogged defense of democratic principles."

Chamberlain Faces Showdown On Campaign in Norway

Cabinet Changes Likely as Worst Crisis Since War Began Confronts Prime Minister, Who May Make Statement Today

By Raymond Daniell.
Copyright by New York Times

London, May 1. The feeling is growing here that "somebody blundered" in the Norwegian campaign and the government is likely to be asked very soon to say who it was.

In other words, the Chamberlain government is facing its most serious crisis since the war broke out, but the betting odds are that the adroit Prime Minister will be able to weather the storm by loading some of his associates into the tumbrils, provided the repercussions do not cause the downfall of the Reynaud government in France.

The Prime Minister, pleading the necessity for keeping military secrets, has avoided making a statement on the situation of the forces sent to the relief of Norway until now, but has indicated he will have something to say about it tomorrow.

However, it was indicated he will tell the story in serial form, devoting himself in the opening chapter chiefly to the success of British landing operations in a country which the enemy had occupied.

The second chapter of the story, therefore, will not be told until the House reconvenes next week. By this means the Prime Minister gains time and forestalls immediate criticism.

The critical atmosphere was not cleared much tonight by the announcement of additional British bombing raids on German air bases in Norway and Denmark, particularly in view of the air ministry's ad-

Ile de France Puts to Sea With War Load

Crack French Liner To Rely on Speed To Escape U-Boats

By John A. Morose III.
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, May 1 (AP).—The French liner Ile de France, once the "floating art gallery" but now daubed a camouflage gray and loaded with tools of war, lifted anchor at 4:55 p. m. today and steamed for an unidentified destination.

Two passengers were aboard. They were described as a French general and the 16-year-old daughter of a French army officer. They refused to give their names.

The ship carried planes, machinery, copper bars and steel sheets and tubing. She had been stripped bare of her furnishings and her luxurious cabins were crammed with 12,000 tons of cargo.

Unofficial reports said the liner would proceed to Halifax, Nova Scotia, trans-ship her cargo there and sail for Australia to join the British liners Queen Mary and Mauretania in troop transport service.

Sailors aboard the vessel, however, expressed belief the "Eel" would dash directly for Europe with her huge cargo of metal and planes.

Maritime men said that if she did cross the Atlantic she probably would travel most of the journey without convoy, depending on her speed of 23 knots to carry her safely past any lurking submarines, and pick up warship protection as she neared England or France.

The "Eel," greatest liner in the French merchant fleet until the Normandie was built, last left her French port on September 2, and was at sea when the sinking of the crowded British liner Athenia on September 3, the first day of declared hostilities, electrified the world.

Warplanes Wreck British Destroyer; Two Are Shot Down

Namsos, Norway, May 1.—Their appetites whetted by the destruction of the 1,190-ton British escort vessel Bittern, German warplanes returned with machine guns spouting today to strafe this Norwegian countryside with clocklike regularity at 30-minute intervals.

With the first crack of dawn, the Nazis took up where they left off yesterday and ranged from this British landing place all the way to the Swedish frontier on the east.

Virtually everything moving on the roads from Namsos to Grong, 25 miles on the east, and in the mountain pass between Formofoss and Gaddede, on the Swedish border, came in for bursts of machine-gun fire from the canny Nazi airmen.

They zoomed, they dived and slipped up from behind with motors

Plan to Seize Hitler Stirs Wrath, Ridicule, Amusement

Copyright by New York Times

New York, May 1.—The plan to "snatch" Adolf Hitler and deliver him for trial before the League of Nations, announced by Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Iinstitute, in a letter to the New York Times, inflamed the imaginations of amateur kidnapers today.

In various parts of the world reactions to the scheme ran the gamut of partisan emotions—wrath, ridicule, amusement and dead seriousness.

With 50 responsible Pittsburgh men and women pledged to pay a reward of $1,000,000 for the capture of Germany's Fuehrer, the State Department in Washington cautiously called attention to the neutrality enactments. It was suggested that some provisions might be involved. There was no comment from the White House.

In Congress some Representatives thought that getting Hitler was a good idea. Others charged that the plan was war-mongering that tended to involve the United States in the war. And Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, suggested as a Nazi reprisal that President Roosevelt might be worth the lesser sum of $100,000 to the Germans.

Generally in Washington the plan was regarded as a joker with embarrassing angles. A source close to the German Embassy said that the offer should have been made not on

The War Today

GERMANY'S high command claims Nazi planes sank or damaged three British warships and ten transports, while "the German advance in Norway continues."

RUMANIA arrests some 300 foreigners, mostly Germans, amid rumors of a widespread "Trojan horse" plot linked with a similar conspiracy in Yugoslavia.

Battle at Sea

By Wes Gallagher
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, May 1.—British Navy raiding units, varying their submarine attack on Germany's supply and transport line across the Kattegat to Norway, brought planes and warships into play in a large-scale naval engagement off the Swedish west coast today.

Observers at Goteborg, Sweden, said they saw one German ship set afire and another sink during a two-hour battle about 10 miles northwest of that important Swedish naval base.

German warships convoying transports and supply ships returned the British fire.

Nazis Retreat at Roros

This sea fight came almost simultaneously with an announcement by Norwegian authorities that German troops, composing an excellently equipped tank unit of about 150 men, retreated southward from Roros, key point in the Osterdalen (valley), and also had withdrawn from Tynset, 25 miles farther south.

The Norwegians said Norse troops with "foreign volunteers" had reoccupied the area around Roros, but not the town itself because the Germans had threatened to subject it to aerial bombardment if they did.

The "foreign volunteers" possibly could have included Swedes, Norwegian sources said, but they declined to be positive about it.

Supplies Reported Cut

Norwegian authorities quoted a German officer as saying that "our retreat is necessary because our communications have been cut."

(London advices said Germans taken prisoner at Roros explained that they were short of supplies. Other London dispatches said Allied forces were advancing southward on the Steinkjer front, north of Trondheim.)

An Allied-Norwegian communique issued from Grong, back of the Steinkjer front, said there was little ground activity but much air warfare in that sector, possibly a prelude to a land attack.

Contact With Sweden

The Norwegian troops entered Roros suburbs about 5 a. m., after the Germans had withdrawn during the night, and established communication with Sweden.

Norwegian military sources indicated reorganized Norwegian forces, now geared to shift quickly, were harassing the Germans' rear, making necessary their retreat from their northernmost posts, and were interfering with their supply lines.

It was not yet clear whether the German withdrawal would vitally affect their positions to the west.

WILLKIE THE DARK HORSE

I—The Man Himself

Open packages of cigarettes are strewn around on Wendell Willkie's desk. Awry half-tumbled stacks of papers make it surely the untidiest of any $75,000 executive's in the surrounding sky-scrapers. Piles of books amid the litter of documents are incongruous. Near his left foot is an old-fashioned spittoon.

On the wall are two rather lush oil paintings of mothers and tots admiring two well-known refrigerators. They remind you that Willkie sells electricity. More books, a hundred or so, on a table against the wall, slightly tumbled about.

* * * *

Some surprises lurk in the book titles: Jerome Frank's "Save America First," Mordecai Ezekiel's "Jobs for All," Alsop & Kitner's "Men Around the President," Streit's "Union Now," a volume of Hoover's speeches, Ken Crawford's "The Pressure Boys," almost a New Dealer's bookshelf, or a vigilant, curious magnate's.

* * * *

Willkie, incidentally, finds time amid his kilowatts and ohms to review a book occasionally. Right now he is reviewing the new biography of Pitt and Justice Frankfurter's new book . . . All in all, his office reminds you of a college professor's.

"—to the farm for meditation"

Willkie is as tousled as his office. He has a big, burly, tousled charm that women find irresistible, and that doesn't repel men, either. Girls want, on first sight, to smooth his hair (so I've been told by a dozen of the freshly smitten) and to straighten his tie, which chronically droops half an inch below the angle of his collar.

* * * *

The GOP's No. 1 dark horse is a big man, who carries perhaps 12 or 15 pounds overweight quite blithely. His socks seem garterless, to judge by the ankle-folds. Sartorially he reminds me a little of Heywood Broun, more Hoosier than Bond street. But the ensemble is more urbane than its details.

* * * *

Willkie's normal facial expression is a sort of amiable, conciliatory truculence.

He talks familiarly and spaciously of big things; of inflation as if it were a bad round of golf, of isolation as if it were the illusion of well-meaning but rather backward visionaries, a bad bid in a bridge game. He leaves a lot to your intuition.

His muscular gestures persuade you that behind his broad generalizations about government and business his cranium is well-packed with facts.

"Taft to the contrary, you can't balance the budget in two years or three or four," he says, and relegates Senator Taft to the size of a boy at the blackboard with a piece of chalk.

"—Willkie reviews a book"

Candor seems his middle name, but the shrewdness shines through. His offhand intimation that as President he would make Tom Dewey his Attorney General is not the chance embrace of a political virgin. It pulls Dewey down, lifts Willkie up, and he knows it.

* * * *

Tom Corcoran wants to be quoted that Willkie is his choice for the GOP nomination. This left-handed boost does not discount the supposition that the appellation "utility man" would automatically defeat him. But Willkie thinks an electorate which could swing from a Hoover clear over to a Roosevelt might be in a mood to swing from a Roosevelt to a Willkie eight years later.

* * * *

Willkie prefaces every third sentence with a scoffing, skeptical allusion to his own presidential boom. He is still astonished and amused, but no longer incredulous. He has been looked over by experts and they aren't incredulous either. He's a miracle they'd like to believe in.

* * * *

As a letter writer and telephoner Willkie is in a class with Felix Frankfurter and Dorothy Thompson. Long before he became a dark-horse he was exchanging letters and phone calls with columnists, editors, all sorts of literati, meeting them at little intimate dinners. But when he wants to think things over he flies out to his farm in Indiana to get his feet on unpaved ground.

Woodring to Go Back to Kansas In '41, He Says

Garnerites Reiterate Drive Based on Belief Roosevelt Won't Run

While Woodring has frequently been reported considering retiring from the Cabinet, the month he named coincides with the end of the President's second term.

At anotner dinner Vice President Garner told a group of Texas business men that the people of the South never would elect a Southerner to the Presidency "until you have a candidate."

The Vice President, a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, spoke at the Hotel Washington at one of 26 dinner meetings at which members of State Chambers of Commerce discussed public affairs with Congressmen.

Addressing "you men of Texas and the South," the Texas leader said:

"Until you have a candidate you'll never have a President of the United States!"

Explains Silence

In explanation of his usual public silence since becoming Vice President, Garner said he had made an agreement with President Roosevelt that he would make no recommendations nor suggest any policy unless his advice were asked. He also said he believed a legislator should "exercise his independence of thought."

Meanwhile national managers for Garner's campaign reiterated in a statement from Dallas that they "have proceeded from the beginning upon the assumption that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term."

The Dallas statement in effect gave Nation-wide scope to the Roosevelt-Garner peace terms in Texas by proclaiming again that "the Garner campaign has never been and is not now a 'Stop Roosevelt movement.'"

Mr. Garner, it was asserted nonetheless, will have friends and supporters at the Chicago convention on delegations from every State and "is certain to be elected if nominated."

E. B. Germany and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, cochairman of the Garner for President committee, issued their statement from Dallas a day after Myron Blalock, Texas State chairman for Garner, voiced approval of terms giving Garner control of the State delegation, but disowning "defeat Roosevelt" objectives.

It was a statement by Germany and Mrs. Driscoll, declaring the Wisconsin primaries had killed a third term, that originally provoked "draft Roosevelt" activity in Garner's home balliwick by Undersecretary of Interior Alvin J. Wirtz and other third term leaders.

Renouncing any "Stop Roosevelt" purpose, the Germany-Driscoll announcement from Dallas yesterday declared:

"Texas has always been for John Garner. Texas has never been and is not now against Mr. Roosevelt. . . . Every Democratic convention, in fact, every Democratic gathering held in Texas in the past seven years has enthusiastically praised and indorsed our great President.

"We have proceeded from the beginning upon the assumption that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term, and that Mr. Garner as Vice President and, as the President's most loyal and effective aide in all of the great constructive and progressive achievements of our Democratic Administration, is his natural and logical successor."

But the Garner managers denied their candidate is "just favorite son" and asserted his national chances for the nomination "improve daily."

Declaring no American "is better qualified by experience, courage and real patriotism to be President," Germany and Mrs. Driscoll called on all Texas Democrats to participate in precinct conventions next Saturday "and send Garner delegates to the county conventions" because "we owe this to our fellow Texan."

"He is a Nation-wide candidate for the Presidency, already assured of substantial support in every State of the Union," the statement concluded.

Democrats Row in Kansas

Other developments:

Democratic Party strife flared in Kansas between C. M. Fitzwilliam, State Democratic chairman, and Guy T. Helvering, Federal commissioner of internal revenue. Fitzwilliam charged in a letter to party workers that Helvering was exercising "one man rule" over Kansas Democrats and asked:

"Shall Guy Helvering continue to run the Democratic Party in Kansas from Washington, or shall the party be given back to the Kansas Democrats?"

Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, often mentioned himself as a Republican "dark horse" possibility, in a radio speech urged Republicans to nominate Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher.

Dispatches from New York said Wirt G. Bowman, Democratic National Committeeman from Arizona, will present the name of Mayor LaGuardia of New York to the Democratic convention for the Vice Presidential nomination. LaGuardia, former Progressive Republican, went into office on a Fusion ticket and later aligned himself with the American Labor Party.

Third Party Plan Revealed By Lewis Aide

8,000,000 Voters Ready If Democrats, G. O. P. Fail, He Says

By Cecil B. Dickson.

International News Service Staff Writer.

Labor's Non-partisan League, headed by Chief John L. Lewis, and estimated to have a potential voting strength of eight to ten million votes, can be converted into a third party almost overnight, Executive Vice President E. L. Oliver Saidy yesterday.

The league, however, will await the selection of Presidential candidates and the adoption of platforms by the Republican and Democratic conventions before a decision is reached on whether to support one of the major parties or launch a third party, Oliver disclosed.

Oliver said the league had built up its organization in 287 areas in leading industrial and decisive political States within the past three years to the point where it can take decisive action in the Presidential election.

"We have the organization to implement a third party in the event we find it impossible to support either of the old parties," Oliver said.

"Sufficient third-party organizations have been kept alive in virtually every State to permit us to get our candidates on the Presidential ballot."

This was the first time the strategy behind Lewis' third party threat was disclosed. In discussing it, Oliver said:

"We have a potential voting strength of between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000, enough to swing the election, either by giving support to one party or by launching a third party. We have organized local units in the industrial and politically decisive States paralleling the old parties.

"About 65 per cent of the Nation's population is located in the States where we are well organized. In addition, we have an alliance with the Farmers' Union, the largest of the progressive farm organizations."

Oliver also disclosed the league had launched a drive to pick up around 60 friendly Representatives and Senators in the Congressional elections to bring the labor bloc in Congress to around 140. He said the league expected to return the 80 who have consistently supported labor and farm legislation.

He explained the league would not wage costly election fights against "such reactionaries as Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, and Representative Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas," but would concentrate on picking up friendly Congressmen in the industrial areas, where the league is strong.

House Indorses Bill Exempting 200,000 From Wage-Hour Act

Approves Buck Amendment, 149-56, Then Shouts Down Effort to Revive Portion of Barden's Proposals

By John B. Oakes

Post Staff Writer

After approving the Buck amendment to take some 200,000 agricultural workers out from under the wage-hour law, the House yesterday indicated that it was in no mood to indorse further large-scale exemptions in addition to those already contained in the pending Norton bill.

A vote of 149 to 56 tentatively indorsing the Buck proposal was followed at the end of the afternoon by a terrific shout of "no" when an effort was made to revive part of the Barden bill which the House had turned down the previous day.

So decisive was the voice vote against the attempt of Representative Barden (Democrat), of North Carolina, to restore some of his bill to life that a standing count was not even demanded.

Bill Stands Good Chance

When the House reconvenes today, a large number of amendments proposing further exemptions to the wage-hour law will be offered, but it appeared likely last night that the Norton bill stood a fair chance of passage with few additional alterations.

Offered by Representative Buck (Democrat), of California, the one important change adopted yesterday writes into the Norton bill the broad definition of "agriculture" contained in the Social Security Act. The amendment has the effect of exempting from both wage and hour provisions of the law workers in various agricultural processes, including employes of many large scale farm cooperatives.

The proposal, approved by most of the Republicans and many Southern and Western Democrats, was attacked by some members of the House on the ground that it would permit child labor. Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, warned that the amendment paved the way for efforts to put the same exemption into the Wagner Act.

Farm Bloc Apprehensive

Some members from farm States, mindful of the coming fight for parity payments, were apprehensive yesterday lest passage of the Buck amendment might so alienate city Representatives that they would refuse to give their desperately needed support to the farmers next week.

While some members of the urban bloc were taking this attitude last night and threatening to defeat parity if the Buck amendment stays in the Norton bill, it was indicated that others felt the Buck proposal was not sufficiently sweeping to merit retaliation.

Aside from the Buck amendment, the Norton bill as it stands would exempt 17,000 additional workers (256,000 are exempt in the present law) from the 30-cent minimum wage of the Fair Labor Standards Act, and 465,000 more workers (969,000 are now exempt) from the 42-hour maximum week.

Mrs. Norton's Plans

But Mrs. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, announced yesterday that she intended to move to amend her own bill to knock out all the wage exemptions.

The Norton bill would eliminate the provision of the present law permitting the administrator of the act to determine "areas of production" within which exemptions are allowed. It was the administrative interpretation of this phrase that Majority Leader Rayburn denounced yesterday as "utter nonsense." He asserted that the "area of production" provision was the "most irritating" part of the entire law.

An attempt of Representative O'Toole (Democrat), of New York, to kill all amendments to the act by sending the proposals back to committee was defeated 47 to 95. Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, tried to eliminate exemptions of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in the bill, but he was voted down after Resident Commissioner Pagan, of Puerto Rico, took the floor against him.

U.S. Aide Urged C. I. O. Drive, Letter Reveals

Blankenhorn Deplored Steel Organizing Delay, NLRB Committee Hears

By Hedley Donovan

Post Staff Writer

Heber Blankenhorn, special investigator for the National Labor Relations Board, was revealed yesterday as trying to "shove" John L. Lewis into an aggressive organizing campaign among steel workers at a time when leaders of the industry were "very badly worried."

The NLRB official, testifying before the House Committee investigating the board, identified a letter in which he deplored delays in pressing the C. I. O. organizing drive in steel four years ago.

"What is so maddening is the loss of time, this when I know that the other side is very badly worried," Blankenhorn wrote Clarence Irwin, C. I. O. organizer. "They are scared and we don't move."

The letter to Irwin was one of a score of documents signed by Blankenhorn and placed in the record by Committee Counsel Edmund M. Toland, who asked the witness several times whether he considered himself "a fair and impartial employe of the United States Government."

Admits Letter

Blankenhorn emphatically denied Toland's suggestion that "you work for unions instead of the board," but later admitted writing a letter which said he had "been mixing into plans" for the C. I. O. steel organization campaign.

The letter, addressed to the late Sidney Howard, New York playwright, on June 6, 1936, declared that "Steel is the place for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

Blankenhorn told Howard he favored a Constitutional amendment to reorganize the Supreme Court and had "tried hard at the A. F. of L. convention and with John L. Lewis to get labor committed to it now.

"The principal job of this board and of the La Follette Committee investigation, should it be set up, is to clarify the country's mind in regard to the Constitutional crisis," he wrote.

In a confidential memorandum written to board members last September Blankenhorn urged that the NLRB be placed "on a war footing" in the "battles for public opinion."

Urged Spokesmen for Board

"This board," he wrote, "has a 2-by-4-foot loudspeaker on an 8-by-10-mile job." The board should hire a number of "authoritative spokesmen," he urged, and empower them to act "without board censorship of the commas, even if they may shoot off their faces sometimes.

The NLRB must cease thinking of itself as a "run-of-mine" Government agency and accept continuous Congressional investigation and continuous effort to abrogate the National Labor Relations Act "as 'normal' for us," he said. "Also continuous dissension among our one real support, labor, is to be accepted as 'normal' . . ."

Compromise Is Reached Auto Lien Bill

Deadlock Broken; Election of Convention Delegates Approved

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

A legislative snarl on bills requiring the recording of motor vehicle liens was untangled yesterday, and a measure providing for election of delegates to the political conventions was approved as District legislation was speeded to beat an early adjournment of Congress.

Breaking a deadlock between the Commissioners and the office of the recorder of deeds, two members of Congress and District officials agreed to a compromise bill designed to end a racket which yearly mulcts motorists of thousands of dollars.

The measure would prevent the sale of automobiles carrying hidden liens by compelling their recording at the department of vehicles and traffic. Because of the successful fight waged by W. J. Thompkins, recorder of deeds, he would station a deputy at the traffic department to handle the recording.

Sought for Years

All liens would be recorded on motor vehicle titles for the protection of buyers, and copies of the records would be available to the public at both the traffic department and the recorder's office. The fee for recording would be 50 cents.

District officials had sought for several years to set up a division for the recording of motor vehicle liens in the traffic department, but they abandoned their bill after the Senate a week ago refused to consider the measure that has been on the consent calendar more than a year.

Present at the conference were Representatives Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, Corporation Counsel Seal, Washington I. Cleveland, of the American Automobile Association, and Thompkins.

Would Provide Primary

Approval of the Capper bill to regulate the election of delegates to the national political conventions was voted by a majority of a five-man subcommittee of the Senate District Committee after amendsuggested by the Commissioners had been accepted.

One of the amendments would eliminate the poll tax and substitute an authorization for an appropriation from the general revenue funds of the District, estimated at $10,000 every four years, to conduct the primary elections. Another requires registration 30 days before the date of election so that the board of election may hear challenges.

The Commissioners waived their right to conduct the first election and suggested that nominations be accepted from 25 instead of 100 voters. Petitions would be filed with the board of elections instead of the United States District Court as stipulated in the Capper bill.

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the subcommittee, admitted that it is too late to expect elections to be held this year even if the legislation becomes law. The bill sets the date of elections as the first Monday in May of each Presidential election year.

Precinct Elections Being Held

Seal informed Austin that the Commissioners approved the Capper bill with the amendments, but he explained that it had not yet been acted upon by the Budget Bureau.

Voting with Austin were Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, and Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho.

James C. Wiles, chairman of the Republican State central committee, reported, meanwhile, that the District G. O. P. precinct elections are in progress this week and will be concludede Saturday. Sixteen of the 43 precincts have held caucus elections.

Corcoran Art School Model Plans Safari Into Congo to Shoot Gorillas With Camera

Physically fit, Lieut. Kenneth Elk, once a Bengal Lancer, poses for Arthur G. Stewart at the Corcoran Art School, where he is working as a model to help finance his one-man expedition to Africa next winter to photograph gorillas

Born in India, educated for the British diplomatic corps, then a Bengal Lancer picking off attacking Afridis with a machine gun, at present an artist's model in the Corcoran Art School to help finance his one-man expedition to Africa next winter to photograph gorillas on their native heath . . .

That's Lieut. Kenneth Elk, D.S.O., F.R.G.S., age 24, the most effervescent fountain of enthusiasm over the photogenic potentialities of the anthropoid ape since Akeley.

An interviewer bagged the dimple-cheeked, personable lieutenant at the school yesterday right after he had finished his morning stint—posing au natural for the life class.

"Ever since I was a 10-year-old", said Lieut. Elk, turning the leaves of a scrapbook filled with documentary evidence of his soldier-of-fortune proclivities, "I've wanted to shoot gorillas with a camera. And now it's all set. I leave for the Belgian Congo in December—I hope."

The desire was born, he explained, when he accompanied his father on a safari in West Africa nearly 15 years ago. It seems the spell of the jungle got him and he won't be right until he goes back, with a movie camera slung over his shoulder and the scent of a bull gorilla in his expectant nostrils.

The smiling leftenant's story is that he came to the United States from India three years ago to write, model and lecture that he might raise funds for the achievement of his heart's desire—several hundred feet of film recording mountain gorillas on the loose.

For the past month he has been modeling at the Corcoran. In a week or so he'll be leaving for New England to fill lecture engagements and during the months of July and August he will add to his African fund by counselling at a boys' camp in Maine.

Lieut. Elk can produce clippings describing his feats as a ski jumper (173 feet), as a big game hunter (he bagged an African buffalo at the age of 12) and as an explorer. In his scrapbook there is the following quotation from the late Carl Akeley, famous authority on the greatest of apes:

"The only man who can expect to photograph the gorilla in his native haunt would have to be a primate psychologist, tracker, dead-shot marksman, motion picture cameraman and, above all, an athlete accustomed to the rarified atmosphere of tropical mountains and one capable of climbing trees with his camera at a speed that would permit him to get above the 10-foot undergrowth in time to catch the elusive giants when they emerge into the open."

Could the lieutenant fill that formidable bill? He certainly could!

"I have studied ape psychology, tracked and shot wild animals, made good movie films and, as for the rarified atmosphere qualification, I was brought up in the Himalayas.

"I'm depending on the gorilla's curiosity to bring him into camera range. They're inquisitive creatures, you know. I'll probably take with me some 5 and 10-cent store bugles and rattles to attract their attention."

Lieut. Elk figures he'll have sufficient finances to embark in December, but a possible fly in his ointment, he realizes, is the European war.

"I'm a reserve in the Twelfth India, you see, and if we're called up this year—well, I'll have to postpone the gorilla trip. But it will only be a postponement, believed me. Sooner or later, those apes are going to do their romping inside my camera."

Client's $500 Paid Whelchel, Lawyer Says

By the Associated Press

Gainesville, Ga., May 1.—An elderly country lawyer told a Federal jury today that he received $500 from a client and gave it to Representative B. Frank Whelchel (Democrat), of Georgia, as down payment on a postmastership appointment that the Congressman was to deliver.

Whelchel, being tried on eight counts of selling postal jobs, listened tight-lipped while "Colonel" Haynie S. Brooks, of Cumming, Ga., described how he counted $500 in bills into the Congressman's hand as a payment on account from T. Lester Harris, of Ball Ground, Ga.

Led by O. John Rogge, Assistant United States Attorney General, and District Attorney Lawrence Camp, Government prosecutors spent most of the day introducing repeated testimony concerning funds flowing in and out of a "little black box" and records of an extensive loan business which the Congressman kept in a small black book.

Brooks, a Democratic leader in his mountain community, told how he visited Whelchel in company with Harris.

After a conference, he related, it was agreed that the Congressman would lend his support andn Harris would "contribute" $1,500 to Whelchel's campaign fund—$750 immediately and the balance after he was appointed. It was then midsummer, 1936.

Harris testified he borrowed $500 from "a widow lady" for whom he worked and, unable to raise more, offered this to Brooks as a down payment. The latter accepted it, he said, in behalf of Whelchel.

Harris and Brooks testified Whelchel delayed recommendation of a postmaster at Ball Ground. Harris became fearful of his appointment because he ranked second in eligibility, and a Presidential order required designation of the leading candidate. Eventually, after 12 months negotiation, they said, Whelchel finally wrote "there is no way in the world I can have any voice in the appointment," and Harris found himself shunted aside.

Kirwan Accused

Cleveland, May 1 (AP).—Warrants charging Representative Michael J. Kirwan (Democrat), of Ohio, with soliciting campaign contributions from two Ashtabula County postmasters in 1938 were filed in Federal District Court here today.

Justice of the Peace Howard Burke, of Ashtabula County, issued four warrants on affidavits filed by Joseph S. Gottlieb, of Youngstown, Kirwan's home city. Appearing before Burke, Kirwan pleaded innocent, waived examination and posted $2,000 bond.

Commenting on the charges, Kirwan said he believed they were inspired by a political opponent.

'Lie' Charged By Witnesses At Trust Quiz

William Stanley And Wooley Clash At Senate Hearing

By the Associated Press

William Stanley a former Assistant Attorney General, characterized as "deliberate and malicious falsehood" yesterday testimony that as counsel for the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation he had offered an attorney for a group of Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line stockholders a $100,000 "bribe" to "be friendly."

Appearing before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, Stanley, who resigned as Assistant Attorney General in 1935 and later formed a law partnership with former Attorney General Homer Cummings, asserted the testimony was "such a silly statement that it should need no answer."

The statement to which he referred was made before the subcommittee about two weeks ago by Robert W. Woolley, who said Stanley offered him the $100,000 a few months after leaving the Department of Justice.

"Return That Doublefold"

As Stanley concluded his reply yesterday with the "falsehood" characterization, Woolley, seated across the committee table, said bluntly: "I can return that doublefold. You have lied on several occasions."

The subcommittee has been considering a proposal by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, for an investigation of enforcement of the antitrust laws in the natural gas and petroleum industry.

Stanley told the committee that his negotiations with Woolley concerned a private suit between the Mokan Pipelip receivers and Columbia Gas and Electric and not antitrust litigation brought by the Justice Department.

He was employed by Columbia, Stanley said, in the Mokan case and instructed to work out a settlement of the suit with Woolley after deciding against representing the company in the Justice Department case.

Advised Woolley

"At one time," Stanley said, "I did advise Mr. Woolley that, if the Department of Justice had no objection and if the courts in Delaware approved, I would recommend to my clients that they provide, as a part of the money settlement of the private suit, an additional $100,000 for Mr. Woolley's client so that his client might give it to Mr. Woolley for his service.

"Mr. Woolley wanted $500,000 which I thought was ridiculous and told him so.

"That was the only occasion and the only reference which was ever made to any sum of money to be paid to Mr. Woolley, and it was on the distinct understanding that it would have to have the approval of the Department of Justice and the Delaware court."

Stanley told the committee it was "absolutely untrue" that in June, 1935, while he was still in the Justice Department, he contemplated becoming counsel for Columbia, against whom the department had brought court proceedings. He had no idea of working for Columbia, he said, until three months after leaving the department.

He denied also that he had discussed the Columbia case with a department official in July of 1935.

Dairymen Ask U. S. to Settle Chicago Strike

6,000 Employes In Walkout; Wage Contract Is Issue

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 1.—A strike of approximately 6,000 dairy employes halted most home deliveries of milk in the metropolitan area today while organized farmers appealed to President Roosevelt and other officials to bring about a truce.

Members of the Milk Wagon Drivers and Dairy Employes unions refused to work after their wage agreement with the Associated Milk Dealers of Chicago expired last midnight. The routine of supplying thousands of households and stores ceased abruptly.

The Pure Milk Association, representing 14,500 farmers in the Chicago milk shed and confronted by stagnation of its rich market, dispatched telegrams to President Roosevelt, Secretary Perkins, Secretary Wallace, Senators Lucas and Slattery, Mayor Kelly and Gov. Horner.

Call for Truce

"Impossible for farmers to sell milk," the messages set forth. "Members of our association losing $50,000 to $60,000 each day strike continues. Urge you take immediate steps to obtain truce and agreement for arbitration."

Core of the controversy was the amount of pay to be stipulated in a new contract. The unionists insisted that the old scale of $48 a week, plus commissions, be continued. The dealers wanted to reduce it to $30, plus commissions.

Ray Bryant, business agent of the drivers' union, claimed the ranks of the dealers were broken when "'25 or more" companies signed agreements to pay the old scale, pending further negotiations.

Bulk of Trade Stopped

Ernest S. Ballard, spokesman for 130 of the estimated 175 Chicago dealers, including the largest firms, contended that they would "stand together indefinitely."

It was estimated that 48 per cent of the 1,500,000 quarts of milk consumed each day in the metropolitan district, was delivered to homes prior to the walkout. The bulk of this trade was stopped. In addition, there was no distribution to retail outlets served by union drivers.

The strikers agreed to supply hospitals, orphanages and homes of invalids and infants.

Chamberlain Faces Worst Crisis of War

Showdown Likely On Conduct of British Campaign in Norway

mission that seven British planes were lost.

Nor was the war office more reassuring with its announcement that British troops had withdrawn to "prepared positions in the Dombas area;" that all was quiet on the Steinkjer front, and its hint that success was expected but still not achieved at Narvik.

There is bad news coming to the public and the people are slowly being prepared to accept it, but whatever the political outcome there are sure to be embarrassing questions about many matters connected with the abortive efforts to oust the German invaders quickly from Norwegian soil.

The people are resigned to heavy casualty lists and are accepting the necessity for a long campaign, but they want to be assured that the reverses the expeditionary force has undoubtedly suffered were unavoidable.

Norwegian Advice Reported Ignored

Rightly or wrongly, the story was spread over London that ill-trained territorials were sent to Norway against Germany's crack troops and that advice by Norwegian experts about the best strategic landing places was ignored. There is also a story that an admiral who wanted to attack Trondheim by sea before the Germans had a chance to entrench themselves and solidify their position was thwarted by Chamberlain and Winston Churchill, through anxiety that it would result in heavy losses of capital ships.

These are undercurrents which may be expected to find expression in the House of Commons, at first from backbenchers and later, when Chamberlain has had an opportunity to tell the full story, from more responsible leaders of the opposition.

Already there has been public expression of the disquiet which is spreading over the country, hitherto patiently awaiting the lifting of the curtain on Norwegian operations. It became known today that A. V. Alexander, former first lord of the admiralty, and Clement Attlee, leader of the labor opposition, urged the government strongly to take bold steps against the German base at Trondheim more than a week ago, without success.

In the blackout of official information of what has really been happening since Adolf Hitler ventured into Scandinavia, these are questions which are troubling the people and their representatives in Parliament, which adjourned tonight in a restive mood.

"Frank Statement" Sought

Speaking at a May Day demonstration, Ernest Bevin, general secretary of the General Transport Union, called for "a frank statement to the country by government leaders.

He did not know, he said, what was happening about the sending of "raw" lads with insufficient equipment, as reported, but he expressed the view that powerful battleships should have been sent against Narvik at once, as they were later.

He was tired, Bevin said, of reading about two British fighters tackling ten Messerschmitts and he declared the country could not afford to have the gentlemen in Whitehall shilly-shallying in war time.

That a real crisis is confronting the Chamberlain government is apparent. That it will threaten to overturn the cabinet is not so apparent. It is more likely that when the full story of the Norwegian campaign is told the attack will be directed less toward supplanting the Prime Minister than to renewed demands for bringing new blood into the cabinet.

One reason for this is that Churchill is felt to share the responsibility with Chamberlain.

Cabinet Changes Likely

Thus it may be expected that in the future there will be some changes in the cabinet and among the high command in the air force, the army and possibly the navy.

Flying in relays through heavy antiaircraft fire and converging on their targets from all directions, one of the largest British bombing formations of the war last night and today battered German air bases at Oslo and Stavanger in Norway and at Alborg, Denmark.

Ordered to break up new concentrations of German aircraft which were evidently gathering to start a new intensive campaign against the Allies in central Norway, between 75 and 100 British bombers took off here yesterday afternoon and after a series of wild air battles over Norwegian fjords, succeeded in inflicting "heavy damage" on German planes and bases.

In an intermittent attack lasting from twilight yesterday until nearly noon today the British, according to the air ministry communique, lost seven bombers (the Germans claimed 11) but set fire to one hanger, damaged several other buildings, shot down three Messerschmitt fighters and blasted innumerable large craters in three landing fields.

Little Reliable News

There is an astonishing paucity of reliable news as to just what is going on in Norway. War office communiques give the meagerest and vaguest information. Part of this reserve may be due to a desire to mystify the Germans, but probably also the war office itself is only vaguely and belatedly informed.

Inquiries as to whether the Germans had taken Dombas, as they claim, were unfruitful, and, indeed, it is likely the war office itself is uninformed.

Not only is communication between Norway and London slow and infrequent but communication among the various British elements in Norway is evidently difficult and uncertain. There is no unified command in Norway yet. The Allied forces which managed to get a foothold on Norwegian soil are still fighting as independent units.

Generally here, however, the German claim to have captured Dombas and Storen is accepted. But most military experts believe it is probable that only small detachments of German troops have made the "contact," of which the Germans boast, and their young commanders have sent back overoptimistic messages.

May Day Marchers Take Peace and Neutrality as Themes

nection between Oslo and Trondheim.

The Germans yesterday reported this connection completed in the Gudbransdalen, the valley to the west, the eastern line would be of less importance to them if the Gudbransdalen line is secure.

The latest developments gave a puzzling twist to the military situation in central Norway.

Even with control of the Gudbrandsdalen, military experts pointed out, Tynset would be an important key to maintaining the German forces which advanced from that point of Kvikne to cut the western valley railway.

Adding to the puzzle was the report from British quarters in Norway denying Dombas, railway junction in the Gudbrandsdalen, had been vacated by the British.

On the contrary, the British here said, the Allies have now brought fairly heavy artillery up to defend that junction. It was clear, at least, the British had made a valiant fight there.

(Official communiques in London said the British had withdrawn "to prepared positions" in the Dombas area, but did not confirm German reports of actual retreat from the junction itself.)

The Swedish radio broadcast a Norwegian communique saying German forces were defeated in an attack at Otta, 20 miles south of Dombas, and "suffered heavy losses."

Despite the German retreat, foreign military observers expressed doubts whether the British and Norwegians were equipped to cope with the Nazi methods.

They explained that the nature of these tactics made Norwegian reoccupation of Roros and Storen of minor importance, if true; that these towns may well have been abandoned by the on-pushing advance columns pending arrival of reinforcements which are coming up behind. This same thing, the experts said, happened farther south in Norway.

The German tactics involve a considerable measure of chance. Small, well-armed patrols operate a considerable distance from their base, with the prime purpose of breaking up Allied and Norwegian communications. Aerial units precede and protect the hard-hitting patrols.

These measures have been successful in Norway; so much so that foreign military men, following the unique pattern of the fighting, said they could not understand why the narrow valley passes of southern and central Norway were not longer defended. They could only conclude that the British, who fought hard and well when they had a chance, were baffled by the unorthodoxy of the German advance.

As in Poland, the Germans, despite the rough terrain, went around difficult positions wherever possible instead of smashing through—always under cover of an airplane barrage.

For instance the first contact with Trondheim, sketchy though it may be, was established by Oslo units which left the main column at Tynset, struck across mountain trails to the western railway line at Ullsberg and on that railroad met southbound German troops from Trondheim who had gone through or around Storen.

Dombas, where the Allied troops from coastal Andalsnes met the main German column coming up the Gudbrandsdalen—is about 50 miles west and slightly south of Tynset. It was on the railroad branch above Dombas where the first junction of Germany's Trondheim and Oslo trops was effected.

If the German contact between Trondheim, the great western port, and Oslo, the Norwegian capital, is effective for the transportation of supplies and reinforcements, a real battle is in the offing.

cut off to catch their prey unawares and were off again to repeat the performance further down the road.

I was rolling along serenely from Namsos to Grong when all of a sudden a single-motored pursuit job swept down silently from the rear, sped over my car at 50 or 100 feet then turned and came back with guns blazing.

My chauffeur and I got to a ditch in nothing flat and escaped with only a bad scare. But our car was not so lucky. Its radiator was punctured and its top, just above where we'd been sitting, was filled with bullet holes.

Twice the German pilot dived and raked the road with machine-gun fire while we held our breath.

There is no air defense in the inland regions hereabout and the civilian population was kept busy all day dashing in and out of the woods.

The persistence of the Nazi pilots resulted in a warning from British and Norwegian military authorities that henceforth correspondents are "on their own."

It took the Germans six hours yesterday to hit the Bittern and then they resorted to an old trick to do the job.

Observers who witnessed the performance from a hill overlooking the fjord at Namsos said the Nazis aimed their bombs all morning at the Bittern but were kept at a high altitude by British and French anti-aircraft guns.

Then a squadron of three planes put themselves between the Bittern and the sun. Two of them dropped to about 9,000 feet to draw the attention of the antiaircraft guns.

The third plane, which had remained high and out of sight in the sun, power-dived and at 1,000 feet dumped the full load of bombs in its right wing.

One bomb hit the Bittern's stern, where depth charges are carried, and there was a terrific explosion which rent the entire aft end of the little warship.

Russia Parades Armed Might On May Day

Hess Tells German Workers '1918 Will Not Repeat Itself'

By the Associated Press

Moscow, May 1.—Soviet Russia celebrated May Day today with an impressive demonstration of its military and political might, and the mixed theme of armed preparedness and worldwide union of workers against "capitalism and war."

Joseph Stalin, flanked by Premier Molotoff and Gen. Grigori M. Stern, commander of Red forces in the war with Finland, stood at the base of Lenin's Tomb for hours while tens of thousands of troops with every type of war implement in Russia's formidable armory rumbled through the Red Square.

From the reviewing stand Marshal Klementi E. Voroshiloff, war commissar, told the Red legions it was necessary "to double our vigilance and strengthen our army and navy. . . . The U. S. S. R. is only standing aloof from the war."

Voroshiloff echoed the Comintern May Day manifesto by saying the "abyss between Soviet and capitalist countries is deeper than ever," that the latter were trying to involve Russia in the European war.

Hess Leads Berlin's Day

Berlin, May 1 (AP).—Germany's celebration of May Day, known in the Reich as "National Labor Day," was led by Rudolf Hess, Number 3 Nazi and Adolf Hitler's party deputy, who told an audience of Krupp locomotive workers at Essen that the German people were celebrating the day "with the certainty of victory as never before."

Hess devoted the major part of his address to ridiculing Allied hopes for collapse within Germany. "Another 1918 will not repeat itself—come what may," he said.

The party chieftain said that the English in Norway finally "have once more become acquainted with the German soldier in the original, and I don't believe this acquaintance has exactly increased the confidence of victory in London."

Reynaud Calls for Victory

Paris, May 1 (AP).—Premier Reynaud declared in a May Day broadcast today that France's sole "claim" on this traditional labor day in Europe is to win the war against Germany and the right to "live as free men."

The Premier spoke for 10 minutes on a nationwide hookup after French workers had abandoned their usual holiday and remained at their posts throughout the day to speed up wartime production.

tion on new ships advisable, Edison declared. He said the Navy had been working on this for some time. Means to neutralize magnetic mines which caused much damage to Allied shipping early in the war, are now being developed, he added.

"Mobile Maginot Line"

The Secretary revealed that destroyer Warrington was "sunk" under him during the fleet war games and the battleship Pennsylvania which he was also aboard, was "a bit messed up" by theoretical shellfire. No ships were "sunk" by aerial bombs during the maneuvers, he said.

He called the fleet "a mobile Maginot Line, with the Hawaiian strongbold as the gateway and the smaller bases as outposts." Oil storage tanks in Hawaii, Edison declared, should be placed underground to make them safe from air attack, and additional cold storage facilities installed to keep food.

The fleet, he said, did not get enough target practice. More money for ammunition and targets should be provided, as well as more fuel oil for additional maneuvers. Additional bases in the Caribbean would be "desirable," he asserted, adding that the Pacific end of the Panama Canal was "not as well guarded" as the Atlantic.

Commenting on reports Japan is building eight "super-battleships" of more than 40,000 tons, and that a Tokyo spokesman dismissed such statements as American propaganda, Edison said the United States "would welcome" accurate official information as to Japanese building plans.

"We'll be glad to exchange information on construction with them," he added, with a smile. Such data is public here, but held secret in Japan.

Swedes Rally To Protect Neutrality

Political Leaders Address 150,000 At Stockholm

By Harold Callender.

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, May 1.—Some 150,000 people, about one-fourth of the population of Stockholm, met in Gaerdet Field today in a nonpartisan national demonstration to express Sweden's unity and determination to defend herself against any attempt to impair her neutrality or independence.

Leaders of all the principal political parties—assembled for the first time on the same platform at a May Day mass meeting—spoke of the gravity of the situation. They stressed the need for every citizen to support the state in its efforts to intensify national solidarity and readiness for defense, of the economic sacrifices which Sweden's severance from the west imposes, of the breakdown of northern unity and its ultimate reconstruction.

Premier Hansson appealed for support in all that strengthens the country's defense, and reiterated government's determination to defend Sweden's neutrality "with all the means in our power."

In a broadcast tonight, P. E. Skoel, minister of defense, warned that "if anyone makes claims upon us that impair our freedom and independence, we shall reject them." He added that Sweden wanted peace, but not at any price.

The tenor of the speeches was to the effect that Sweden would fight if invaded, and would resist any demands that infringed her independence from whatever quarter they might come. While expressing his gratification at the assurance of the belligerents that they would respect Sweden's neutrality and integrity, Hansson added that these assurances rest not alone upon good will but also "upon a consciousness of our determination and ability to defend our neutrality and integrity."

Hansson said Sweden's concern for her independence did not exclude thought of the "atmosphere of profound gravity" which hung over the north. He spoke of the rude awakening of Sweden's "sister nations" from dreams of domestic tranquillity nad international cooperation.

Nazis Claim Continuing Successes in Norway

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 1.—Furious warplane attacks which sank or damaged 13 British warships or transports and the continued advance of Nazi warriors in central Norway despite dogged Allied resistance were reported today by the German high command.

Indicating that the British are pouring reinforcements into Norway in an attempt to stem the German tide, the hign command asserted that one cruiser, one destroyer and five transports were sunk off Namsos, Allied landing place about 100 miles north of German-held Trondheim, and that five other transports and a cruiser in that sector were damaged by air raiders.

The communique touched only briefly on latest developments, reporting that fighting "still went on yesterday" on the Trondheim front and that the "German advance in Norway continues."

Dombas Captured

The Germans yesterday officially announced the capture of Dombas, key railroad junction town on the Oslo-Trondheim railroad, and said that their Oslo and Trondheim forces had established contact.

German authorized sources, as on yesterday, again said they understood the German troops were pushing after retiring British and Norwegian forces west of Dombas, toward Andalsnes, 60 miles further west and the British landing point in that area. There were no indications, however, as to what progress was being made.

(British officials admitted a withdrawal at Dombas, "to prepared positions," but made no comment on the reported sinkings at Namsos.)

Reports from war correspondents attached to the German forces in Norway disclosed that the British have occupied five ports south of Trondheim, but only one—Andalsnes—was said to have a railroad or road connection with the interior.

British-Held Ports

The ports are Alesund, about 50 miles south of Trondheim and at the entrance to Romsdals Fjord, which leads to Andalsnes; Kristiansund, about 150 miles south of Trondheim; Stangvik, at the head of the fjord which begins near Kristiansund, and Molde, which lies between Alesund and Kristiansund.

(Stockholm reports also indicated British landings at Sunnda, on Nalse Fjord, which also opens at Kristiansund, and in Nordfjord, south of Andalsnes.)

In its report of the air raids off Namsos, the high command said the cruiser which went down before German bombs bristled with antiaircraft guns. (Britain has six warships, formerly cruisers, converted to antiaircraft vessels.

Flank Attack Expected

The number of British transports at Namsos, indicating extensive troop landings, led military observers to express belief that the British hoped to relieve the pressure on their troops south of Trondheim by smashing at the German flank in the Steinkjer district, about 50 miles north of Trondheim.

The high command said Germany had taken more than 4,900 prisoners and a quantity of guns and munitions in Norway. The prisoners were said to include 40 Britons captured northwest of Lillehammer, about 140 miles north of Oslo, on the road to Trondheim.

Tin, Rubber Sale to Soviet Less, U. S. Says

Copper Shipments Also Down Sharply, Commerce Reports

By Lloyd A. Lehrbas.

Associated Press Staff Writer

Pointing to statistics as proof, United States officials declared yesterday that the country's exports of tin and rubber to Russia have ceased and that copper shipments have greatly diminished despite Russia's recognized normal need of those commodities.

They cited export figures for 1939 and the first quarter of 1940 in replying to assertions of Ronald Cross, British minister of economic warfare, that Germany was obtaining vitally needed war materials from the United States via Siberia.

Cross told the American Chamber of Commerce in London that stoppage of such American shipments was the major objective of the British blockade now in force against Vladivostok, the Soviets' Pacific port.

Tin, rubber and copper were mentioned by the British economic minister as the principal items the British navy sought to intercept.

Officials here pointed out, however, that American exports to the Soviet in 1939 actually showed a decline of 19 per cent from 1938. The total was $56,638,000, and of that, 70 per cent went for metal-working machinery, ferro-alloys, copper, aircraft and petroleum products.

Shipments of airplanes and parts, molybdenum, aluminum and plants and plans for manufacture of aviation fuel, they added, ceased last December wher the "moral embargo" was instituted.

Trojan Horse Plots Nailed In Balkans

Rumania to Deport 300 as Yugoslavia Tightens Precautions

By the United Press

Bucharest, May 1.—Discovery of a plot against the government of Premier Tatarescu, timed to coincide with similar "Trojan horse" action in neighboring Yugoslavia, was reported here tonight after a police move to deport 300 suspected persons, most of whom are Germans.

Police were understood to have tracked down the plot to "force important government changes," after which King Carol II and Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, met secretly at the frontier during the Orthodox Easter holidays and discussed these internal menaces.

The reported discovery of the plot against the government was said to have resulted in Rumania's recent extraordinary military measures and extensive guard precautions.

About 8,000 picked gendarmes were sent into Transylvania, the province Rumania acquired from the Austro-Hungarian Empire, to assist local police.

The Bucharest police obviously were taking strong precautions against any "Trojan horse" coup.

1919 Class to Be Called

Belgrade, May 1.—It is reported by a reliable source that the 1919 class of Yugoslav soldiers will be called up for training by the end of the week. This will add about 90,000 effectives to the army.

At present Yugoslavia has about 360,000 men under arms, including 150,000 working on fortifications. Last summer Yugoslavia kept about 600,000 men under arms.

Special measures have recently been taken to strengthen the internal structure of the country and counter-espionage.

Hitler 'Snatch' Stirs Speculations

May Day but on April Fool's day. It was indicated that no protest was at present contemplated.

In Berlin official sources said the scheme was "so ridiculous and so utterly stupid that it can be assumed German officials will decline to take any notice of it." London newspapers featured the story on their front pages.

The British Broadcasting Corporation tempted its listeners with this statement:

"Here is today's business offer. A million dollars reward has been placed on the head of Herr Hitler by an American."

Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia University's graduate School of Journalism declared the offer was "calculated to contribute to the involvement of the United States in the present European war."

"To offer a monetary reward for the sacrifice of human life, which would be necessary to capture Herr Hitler, is a dangerous national as well as international proposal," Ackerman declared in an open letter to Church.

"Your proposal . . . is an effort to stampede public sentiment by mobilizing public opinion, for the obvious purpose of precipitating events calculated to force the Congress to declare war upon Germany.

"You have won the unique position of war maker No. 1 . . .

"In the last World War, the war makers were those who wished to profit by the war. In this crisis, it appears that the new war makers in the United States are the intellectual leaders, who are too old themselves to fight but who are quite willing that young men should died in order that a few Pittsburgh millionaires may live in luxurious security."

A neutral finger was pointed by the State Department at this passage of President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation of September 4, 1939:

"The statutes and treaties of the United States and the law of nations alike require that no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall take part, directly or indirectly in the said war, but shall remain at peace with all of the said belligerents, and shall maintain a strict and impartial neutrality."

Some legal minds suggested that the plan to seize Hitler came uneasily close to condemnation by the criminal conspiracy statutes.

Section 23, title 18, United States Code, provides a $3,000 fine and three-years' imprisonment for anyone who sets afoot or provides money for "any military or naval expedition or enterprise" against a foreign prince, state or people with which the United States is at peace.

Among the Representatives,

A Medal for 'Over There'

George M. Cohan finally accepted yesterday the medal Congress authorized four years ago for the composer of "Over There" and "A Grand Old Flag," songs popular during the World War. President Roosevelt presented the medal which he had kept in the White House safe until Cohan could come to Washington to receive it

Emanuel Celler (Democrat), of Brooklyn, was all for the plan, while John J. Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, said that "another society should be formed to double the ante, but the bounty should be paid only on the stuffed hide of Hitler being surrendered to the organization."

Fish characterized the Pittsburgh plan as part of the "war hysteria that's covering the United States."

"Such an absurd proposal only calls for retaliation," Fish said. "Some group of Germans might now offer not $1,000,000, but let us say $100,000 for the capture of President Roosevelt upon delivery by submarine and airplane at Berlin to appear on charges of having aided and abetted the enemies of Germany."

Representative Allen, of Pennsylvania, said the plan was of course not neutral but that any American could "do as he wishes as long as the Government does not help him." Representative Izac (Democrat), of California, said:

"I guess those people are just giving vent to feelings that probably are shared by 90 per cent of the American people and may be shared in Germany."

Senator King of Utah, most outspoken critic of Hitler in the upper House, said that "the whole thing is perfectly stupid and silly."

The more vivid propositions in the "get Hitler" movement came from the unrammalled citizenry with no concerns for diplomacy and no official connections.

A professional strong man in Houston, Tex., sent this telegram to the Times:

"Will go after Hitler and bring him back. Must have hundred thousand dollar drawing account and transportation to Germany . . ."

A man in Los Angeles wired that he would underwrite an additional $1,000,000 for the capture and trial of Hitler on an indictment he himself had prepared.

However, a young man who sounded serious, telephoned the Times from Troy, N. Y., (he paid the toll charge and pledged $10,000 for the capture of Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Reynaud, "dead or alive."

The youth was Victor Frederick Himmelwright, a senior studying industrial engineering at the Rensalaer Polytechnic Institute. He said he would ask the man who was his guardian until he came of age on March 24 to post a bond for the money in a bank of South Orange, N. J., his home town.

some Fascists.

There was no official Italian comment and no developments to indicate any imminent danger to Mediterranean shipping, despite evidence of considerable anxious speculation as to what inspired the British decision.

Italy sent her transatlantic flagship, the Rex, on to New York from Naples, as scheduled. Foreign observers considered it unlikely Italy would do this if she were about to jump into war.

To some foreign circles it looked as if the British move was designed to draw some clear statement of policy from official Italy.

There still was criticism of Britain in the Fascist press. Air Marshal Italo Balbo's paper, Il Corriere Padano, said Italy was itching to "throw the intruder out" of the Mediterranean because of the way "the British are handling Italian ships in their Mediterranean blockade of Germany. It accused British contraband control authorities of "capricious hatefulness," and added that England had only "rights of passage," at best, in Italy's "Mare Nostrum."

Phillips' visit preceded Mussolini's attendance at a cabinet session at which heavy surtaxes on war industry profits were imposed. The interview took place in the premier's office in the interior ministry and lasted for 45 minutes. Only Phillips and Mussolini were present.

Precautions in Egypt

London, May 1 (AP).—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Cairo said that defense precautions officially described as "usual under present circumstances" were enforced throughout Egypt this afternoon.

The precautions, the nature of which was not disclosed, were said to have been taken because of the uncertainty of the Mediterranean situation.

A neutral diplomatic source, viewing the British Foreign Office's efforts to minimize the government's action in getting British ships away from the Mediterranean, said "it is just one more card in the poker game which they are playing with italy."

The source declared Britain is pursuing two aims.

Medicine Facing War 'Blackout,' Parley Told

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Opening their quadrennial conference on a twin note of encouragement and dismay, America's public health directors yesterday reported heartening progress in their united crusade against disease, only to be distressed by news that the European war threatens to throw medicine into a partial blackout.

Surgeon General Thomas Parran of the United States Public Health Service, told representatives of the 20 Latin-American republics, convened at the Pan American Union, that belligerent nations have declared an embargo on the publication of advances in the study of nutrition.

Dr. Parran's statement, the most startling revelation in the conference's opening day, signaled what may be the beginning of the end of the ancient tradition that developments in the allied fields of medicine and public health shall become the property of all nations and peoples.

Research News Prohibited

"I can tell you," the surgeon general declared, "that in each of the warring nations any publication of results of new researches in the nutritional field is prohibited during the duration of the conflict.

"Added knowledge of nutrition is a military secret, being considered a potential weapon in the hands of the enemy."

Among the foreign visitors in Dr. Farran's audinece was Dr. Robert Pierret, director general of the International Bureau of Public Health at Paris, who in a subsequent interview confirmed the surgeon general's "war of starvation" charges.

Not only is his bureau withholding publication, even for home consumption exclusively, of nutritional investigations, but the war has removed a large portion of Europe from the list of countries reporting public health data, said Dr. Pierret.

The damaging effect which the war is having upon dissemination of knowledge regarding public health was stressed by all six speakers at the inaugural session of the Fourth Pan American Conference of National Directors of Health. They were:

A. A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State; Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, director of the Pan American Sanitary Bureau; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Sanitary Union; Dr. Parran and the two responding delegates, Dr. Jorge Bejarano, of Colombia, and Dr. Jose Siurob, of Mexico.

That major plagues will come in the wake of Europe's present war seems inevitable, and the New World must work to prevent their spreading to this side of the Atlantic Dr. Parran said.

"More than ever before, the current conflict is a war of starvation," he asserted.

"Today we are fighting a rear-guard action. If this war continues and spreads, it may well be a losing action against the 'Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse'."

Reviewing the long list of achievements resulting from inter-American cooperation, Dr. Cumming said:

"Let the forces of evil in other continents plan ruthlessly for destruction and dominion, regardless of the consequences to themselves and to others. Let them think of extending their sway to bring others into slavery and ruin.

"We, on this continent, have long committed ourselves to a far different policy. We want, sure enough, to combine efforts and energies, but only in enterprises which will be of lasting benefit to all our peoples. Medicine and sanitation recognize no boundaries or chosen peoples. Their gifts are made available to all."

No matter what the situation elsewhere, the defense of public health must be a major concern of the American family of nations, Berle told the delegates.

"I am convinced," he declared, "that the organizations of public health and sanitary regulations will be a part of the common machinery of nations, even if every other form of intercourse breaks down."

Objectives Praised

Objectives of the conference, which continues through next Wednesday, were praised by Dr. Rowe, who said the meeting typifies the Pan American spirit "at a period when destructive forces are running riot in almost every section of the world."

The afternoon session was devoted to the reading of committee reports, appointment of new committees and presentations of outlines of public health developments in Central and South America.

One of the more conspicuous national reports was that submitted by Dr. Jorge Bejarano, president of the Colombian Red Cross and head of his country's national medical association. He pointed out that since establishment of a Colombian health ministry in 1938, appropriations have increased from $300,000 to $4,000,000; yellow fever has been curbed; many new hospitals have been erected and rural housing and sanitary conditions have been vastly improved.

Today's scientific discussions will be concerned with syphilis and malaria control, aerial navigation and advances in nutritional research.

Paralyzed Athlete Expected to Live

William Edward Buckholtz, 24, former Eastern High School athlete who is in Doctor's Hospital with a fractured cervical vertebra, faces several weeks in a spine brace, physicians at the hospital said yesterday.

Paralyzed from the hips down after a blow received when he dived into shallow water near Piney Point, Md., Sunday, Buckholtz is given a good chance to live.

Buckholtz, who lives at 723 Twelfth street southeast, was recently married. He starred on Eastern's basketball team in 1935 and 1936.

1,000 Jewelers Will Convene Here Sunday

Maryland, Delaware and D. C. Association's Program Announced

More than 1,000 members of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia Jewelers' Association will be in Washington Sunday for the opening of their 26th annual meeting in the Mayflower.

As Arthur Sundlum, president of the association, called a meeting of his general committee to complete details of the arrangements, A. C. Mayer, general convention chairman, yesterday announced a full program for the two-day event. Plans are made, Mayer said, to furnish cultural, social and business activities for members and their guests.

The program follows:

The Sunday program opens with registration of members at the hotel. A sightseeing tour in the afternoon will be followed by a buffet supper in the Mayflower. At night the U. S. Secret Service film, "Know Your Money" will be shown.

President Sundlum will open the business program Monday morning with an address of welcome. Other speakers on the morning program will be Howard L. Carpenter, Providence, R. I.; Arnold L. Skinner, Department of Commerce, Washington; In the afternoon the jewelers will hear Dr. David R. Craig, president of the American Retail Federation; Reports will be read and business of the meeting will be transacted after the address. A convention banquet is scheduled for Monday night.

A program has also been arranged for the women. Mrs. Albert Sigmund and Mrs. Milton Baer have charge.

Committeemen are:

Engineer Ordered Held In Slaying of D. C. Boatman

McKenney Released Under $1,500 Bond; Declines to Take Stand at Inquest; Detectives Tell of Conflicting Stories

William H. McKenney, 45-year-old engineer at the National Training School, was at liberty under $1,500 bond after a coroner's jury yesterday ordered him held for grand jury action for the slaying of Raymond Lee St. John, 45, a houseboat dweller.

Refusing to take the stand, McKenney heard Detective Sergts. John Wise and Fred L. Rawlinson, homicide squad, testify against him.

An autopsy report read into the record by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald disclosed St. John died April 24 of brain injuries suffered when his skull was crushed.

Wise and Rawlinson testified they took McKenney into custody Friday after he made several statements which conflicted with those of his son and other persons.

McKenney told them, the detectives said, that he was off April 22 and 23 and that he and his son, William, 15, rowed out to the cabin cruiser Tillicum which was anchored in Kingman Lake and on which St. John lived.

The detectives testified the boy told them his father rowed the boat, while McKenney said his son rowed. Three bottles of whisky were handed to St. John from the row boat by the defendant, according to his statement, which was denied by the boy.

Blood was found on McKenney's suit and shoes, the detectives stated. They said the defendant explained the stains as having come from a nose bleed.

Police were unable to locate witnesses and said the attack occurred sometime between 10 p. m. April 22 and when St. John was found about 11:15 a. m. the next day.

The weapon used is believed to have been a heavy machinist's hammer or part of a pick handle, which were found covered with blood in the boat.

Harry I. Finley Dies; Secretary to Smathers

Buckner and Walter Hart, adapted to the screen by Allan Scott and Gregory LaCava, costarring Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea, with Marjorie Rambeau, Henry Travers, Miles Mander, Queenie Vassar, Joan Carroll, Vivienne Osborne and Carmen Morales. Directed by Mr. LaCava. Reviewed Wednesday morning. At RKO-Keith's.*

THE SCREEN, these recent years, has rather grown away from the type of picture that Gregory LaCava has filmed in "Primrose Path," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, with Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea costarred.

It is a drab and sordid story of "Shanty Town" and a cheap waterfront that deals exclusively with the seamier aspects of human existence and frequently seems in open defiance of the Hays Production Code in its implications. The familiar "boy meets girl" theme is given some variation in that it is not a rich young man who rescues an uneducated and uncouth youngster from the squalor of life on Primrose Hill, but a counter-clerk in a rickety beach beanery, who can boast no higher social rating than her own—except in the Blue Bell Cafe, the shore's most popular honky-tonk.

BELL

The girl from the shack—presided over by a former scholar, reduced to the lesser gutters by drink, a promiscuous mother and a ribald and slatternly grandmother—and the handsome lad from the hash-house meet by chance, are married under the deception of a tissue of lies spun by the girl and then encounter the usual marital difficulties of jealousy, distrust and vengeful thinking. The playgirl mother is removed from the disturbing scene by a bullet one is led to believe was fired by her gin-befuddled husband. Grandma urges the daughter then to adopt her mother's methods of providing abundantly for the family. Friend husband eventually comes to another view of the urgent necessities and Director LaCava is enabled to achieve a "happy ending" by means that are arbitrary, abrupt and not overly convincing.

Ginger Rogers, in the slightly contradictory role of Ellie May Adams, talks throughout in the argot of the totally unschooled, and otherwise performs the functions of a ragamuffin in, romantically, a little over her head. In the final sequences of the action, she blossoms forth into a fair imitation of her mother's careless unconventionalities, from which she is rescued in the nick of time by the husband who has perceived the error of both their ways. Joel McCrea is forthright and honest in his depiction of a character as uncertain as his bride's. Three conspicuously able supporting performances are contributed to the gloomy gallery by Marjorie Rambeau, as the mother; Queenie Vassar, as the termagant grandmother, and Henry Travers, as the kindly lunchroom owner who does all of the play's clear thinking. Vivienne Osborne, as mother's gay accomplice; Joan Carroll, as the acquisitive "brat" of the Adams household, and Miles Mander, in the role of the unbelievable father, do their fair share.

The short subjects are considerably more enlivening. A new release of "Information Please" has John Kieran, Franklin P. Adams, Oscar Levant and Gene Tunney solving all but one of Clifton Fadiman's puzzlers—with F. P. A., oddly answering the question of what heavyweight won the world's championship in a rainstorm. One suspects that Mr. Tunney also knew the answer to that one. Walt Disney's "Tugboat Mickey" is a color cartoon comedy, away over on the extravagant side, and the Pathe News features President Roosevelt and a sea captain who expounds an eye-witness report of how the Germans landed in Norway without resistance or the firing of a shot. His chief concern was that the Nazis wanted to use his ship for a gangplank. It carried a cargo of $4,500,000 of Swedish gold!

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 1.

Do you remember the wailing wall our producers used a few years ago when they were asked to loan their stars to radio, because it kept people home and away from theaters? So now what? With Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Lum and Abner, Fibber McGee and Molly all making pictures, it looks as though the radio magnates and sponsors are going to raise the same cry the studio producers did. People aren't staying home to hear their favorite radio stars, but filling the theaters to see 'em! Ah, me! It all depends on which foot the shoe fits—but the stars are always well shod.

HOPPER

George Montgomery, cowboy who plays the romantic lead in Shirley Temple's picture, told me he was never good enough to get in a high school play. His frankness is as disarming as Gary Cooper's, who is his idol. George spent most of his life punching cattle on his dad's Montana ranch, which is leased from Gary's father, and says: "I'm going to make good in pictures and make enough money to buy a cattle ranch. Got it all picked out. Then I'll say farewell to pictures."

Seems to me I remember Gary Cooper saying the same thing. Well, if George is as successful as his idol, maybe he'll forget the ranch and settle down and grow a family instead of livestock. Only time will tell . . . Richard Dix is hoping, now that he's an actor-director at RKO, to remake his pet picture "Cimarron."

Neil Hamilton and partner, Herrick Herrick, will represent Hollywood in the San Francisco Exposition. It will be known as the Hollywood Show—Stage 9. The stage will seat 1,500, with an actual set, director and cameraman, in a 45-minute show headed by Neil and Marian Marsh, who will appear before the camera. When it's over the patrons will be permitted to come on the set with motion and candid cameras, take all the pictures they wish of the stars and set. And each week they'll have visiting stars from Hollywood.

Two little girls went to work in "Four Sons" at Twentieth Century at the rate of $14,400 per week. They are Carla and Georgia Clark — 5½-month-old twins. The law permits them to "work" only 20 minutes a day, so their total will be $600 for the picture. At that rate, a full week of eight-hour days would make our glamour girls look silly. Keep it up, girls—in time you'll own the studio.

With the play "Medicine Show" following the picture "Dr. Ehrlick's Magic Bullet," Justine Johnstone was much mentioned in the N. Y. press recently for collaborating with Dr. Hyman and Dr. Hirschfield on a cure for syphilis. Justine, the former wife of Producer Walter Wanger, was one of the most beautiful Ziegfeld Follies girls of this generation, and instead of wasting her time, spent all her waking hours doing scientific research.

J. P. Huntley, jr., one of our best-liked comedians, and who's just finished a part in "Cross Country Romance," is our only Hollywood actor with an amateur broadcasting station. It was he, during our last flood, who kept the newspapers supplied with news, the busses and streetcars running, and motorists advised on the best routes.

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 1.

KENDALL CLARK, a young actor, had a dinner-date Monday night with Mary Nash, a young actress. At 7 o'clock Miss Nash, who works as an understudy in "Higher and Higher," received a wire from Clark, who works as an understudy in "The Fifth Column." The wire offered apologies for this last-minute cancellation of the dinner-date, and promised full explanation after the show was over . . . At midnight, Clark explained—that he had been called to substitute for Franchot Tone, in the leading role, because Tone is ill. Miss Nash forgave Clark, and informed that she couldn't have kept the date anyway—for she had been called to substitute for Marta Eggert, in the leading role, because Miss Eggert was a victim of tonsilitis.

THE PURCHASER of the remainder copies of President Roosevelt's private papers and addresses has asked the Democratic National Committee to buy the last 2,000 copies—originally priced at $15—and sell them to the delegates as convention souvenirs, at $3 . . . Gargantua became ill, early Monday morning. John Ringling North and his aides sat up with the Gorilla until noon, supplying ice-packs, etc., until the danger had passed . . . Oh, I can keep on like this for a full column, but I won't—because I've just seen Bob Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," and nothing which happened on Broadway last night, nothing which was told in the 14 places I visited can possibly be as significant as was the unfolding of that great play.

It's easy to collect and jot these items . . . Dave Selznick's tenth wedding anniversary gift to his wife was a bracelet of ten wedding rings, each inscribed with the most important event which had happened during each year—the last Selznick ring inscribed "The Wind" . . . It's easy to collect them, by rushing to many places, seeing many people, and asking many questions. But to those of us who are challenging the fates by bringing children into the troubled world, who wish for them and for us and for all men to be free in heart and mind, it is more important to spread the news about "There Shall Be No Night," instead of that John Gunther startled N. B. C.'s news editor by receiving a fan-telegram from Hedy Lamarr—yes, Hedy Lamarr.

WE WHO WRITE these columns—apprising our readers that Ben Cohen, of the White House circle, may be transferred to another governmental post after the convention; that the tenor role for "American Jubilee" will be given to Gene Marvey; that Babe Ruth was stricken, after a golf game last Friday, but now is recovered. The job Sherwood has done—abetted by the Lunts and an excellent cast—is one which will be remembered long after the other events recorded herein are forgotten . . . A job which impelled the newly arrived Noel Coward to tap Edna Ferber's shoulder, after the final curtain had descended, and tell her: "I can go back to Europe tomorrow."

I HOPE it may amuse you that Dale Carnegie visited Jamaica's race-track, heard two of his political friends in the clubhouse mention horse-sense, and told them: "The reason it's called horse-sense is because you don't find horses betting on people." Perhaps it is better that with the front-pages reporting the razing of Trondheim, that Kvam had fallen to the Germans, the Namsos still is Allied-controled, readers can turn to these columns and find escape from the tales of bloodshed. And so I hope it may amuse you that Ginger Rogers' mother, in Fefe's Monte Carlo, sighed: "Oh, how I'd wish Ginger were a baby again, bouncing on my knee—except for that wonderful RKO contract."

OR THAT when Attorney General Jackson and his aide, Thurman Arnold, dined recently at the home of Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, Lothian asked how interesting was their work. Arnold offered a story to illustrate it, and told of the Sunday when Jackson, on horseback, rode to the Department of Justice Building, but was stopped by a guard when he sought admittance. "Have you an identification card?" asked the guard. "No," confessed Jackson, "but I'm the Attorney General." And the guard replied: "I don't care if you are J. Edgar Hoover himself, you can't get in without a card."

Belasco Film Shows Civilian War Reactions

'Lights Out' Offers Fine Example of Camera Reporting

By Nelson B. Bell

"Lights Out in Europe" is something a little apart from the usual "documentary" film. It is an illuminating revelation of an international state of mind, eloquent in its reflection of the "common people's" reaction to threatened and actual war, and in its warning to those not involved in the present European conflict.

The picture which has its Washington premiere on the screen at the Belasco Theater today deals primarily with civilian populations, instead of the armed forces of the warring countries. It was filmed during the period between the Munich pact and the outbreak of the present struggle, in England, Poland and the Corridor, with a few fleeting glimpses of the German Westwall. In the manner of its treatment and in its comprehensiveness, it is a superlative piece of historical reporting.

A subtitle of the film might be "Preparedness vs. Unpreparedness." One of its clearest and most impressive disclosures is that the totalitarian states were completely equipped for warfare on a gigantic scale, while their prospective democratic enemies preferred to think they were bluffing and that nothing would come of all the tenseness of the "war of nerves."

Threat Taken Lightly

In England, for example—the opening sequences of the picture are laid there, with a later equal division of attention to Poland and Danzig—no more curb was placed upon anti-government agitation than up to a short time ago was imposed in this country.

Despite all this, the civilian population is displaying a peculiarly skeptical indifference to the dangers which threaten them. The bomb-shelter drills, the ominous business of equipping and fitting every citizen with a gas mask—even down to the babes in arms—and all of the other precautionary measures advocated by the King's government are deemed by some to be sources of amusement; by others merely unnecessary causes of annoyance.

The Polish scene is one of more immediate and poignant suffering and terror. Here are shown a few of the hideous consequences of an enemy's invasion. There are more than a few terrifying glimpses of what happens when a country too long delays its preparations to resist attack scattered through these Polish sequences.

For the unreeling of this hour-long bit of European actuality, James Hilton, author of "The Citadel" and "Good-by, Mr. Chips," has written an understanding and revealing commentary that is given sympathetic and moving narration by the voice of the unseen Fredric March. Werner Janssen has composed a background musical score that is equally in the significant spirit of the unique film.

"Lights Out in Europe" embodies numerous counterparts of scenes one has viewed before on the screen. It is, nevertheless, new and minutely informative in its novel approach to the plague of war through the eyes of the civilian rather than those of the war lord. It is augmented on the Belasco's new program by two diverting single-reel subjects and a two-reel interval of music that lend the bill admirable balance.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 1 (INS).—Richard Greene had Twentieth Century-Fox plenty worried about his condition today. He is a very sick boy with a high temperature and a bad case of flu. Important for him to be well, too, for he is due to go East for the Kate Smith broadcast Friday night and up to a late hour it was doubtful if his M. D. would grant his permission to make the trip. Another reason for the Greene lad to get well quickly is "I Married a Nazi," his next picture which starts May 6.

LOUELLA PARSONS

You can see Twentieth Century-Fox sets store by their Nazi movie, based on a series of highly sensational articles in a recent magazine, for they have engaged Joan Bennett to play the femme lead. Joan is still brunette and as attractive dark as she was fair, although it took me a long time to get used to her new hair color. She starts tests immediately under the direction of Irving Pichel and Raymond Griffith, director and producer, respectively.

Jon Hall has worn so many sartorial equivalents of a sarong on the screen it's going to be hard to picture him in buckskin and moccasins as "Kit Carson." I've always thought that his first success, "Hurricane," typed Jon too much, because he went a long time between pictures waiting for another South Sea idyll. But Edward Small saw Frances Langford's boy friend on the lot and it gave him the idea for the test. Presto! Jon gets the part originally scheduled for Randy Scott, on account of Randy has commitments elsewhere. While Small was in the borrowing mood, getting Jon from Sam Goldwyn, he also got Lynn Bari from Twentieth Century-Fox for the femme lead in the Carson epic. I am glad Lynn is getting a break.

The highly dramatic "Rain," censorable it's true but excellent entertainment, is being considered by three studios. Mary Pickford owns the rights and she is now dickering with RKO, who would like to have it for Ginger Rogers; M-G-M, who can see Ann Sothern as Sadie Thompson, and Warners, who believe that Somerset Maugham's plays are particularly good for Bette Davis. Jeanne Eagels scored a never-to-be-forgotten success in the play. Gloria Swanson made it on the screen some years ago and still later it was remade with Joan Crawford, who considers it the all-time low in her movie career. It was so bad that M-G-M never loaned Joan out again to any studio.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Billy Rose offered Ann Sheridan $100,000 to wear a bathing suit at the San Francisco Aquacade but she rejected the offer. Julie Colt (Colt Munitions Manufacturers) stepping out one night with Cary Grant and with Freddie Brisson the next; Bea Lillie has booked reservations on the Clipper and will arrive later this month; Addison Randall and Louise Stanley have definitely said adieu to marriage.

Cecil De Mille has completely lost his voice and cannot utter a sound; Melvyn Douglas is flying to New York to be the principal speaker at a dinner honoring Eleanor Roosevelt; the Lloyd Nolans have bought an apartment house for the baby they expect in November; Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery at the preview of "I Was an Adventuress;" Pat O'Brien is being secretly tested for the role of Sergt. Yorke.

John Farrow is still in Canada awaiting a call to the front; Pat Morison's mother is critically ill; the cutest pair in town is Jane Withers and Joe Brown, jr., who stopped the Twentieth Century Fox Studio party at Earl Carrol's.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Donlevy Becoming Aerial Commuter

Brian Donlevy, who flew during the World War, is again thinking of taking up aviation and purchasing a plane—for a reason.

Donlevy, who has just finished his leading role in "Down Went McGinty," wants to be an aerial commuter. He is arranging to take his flying lessons from Herb White, veteran motion-picture stunt flier, at Metropolitan Airport.

The reason behind his renewed interest lies in the fact that he has several desert mining interests. During the past few months he has frequently chartered planes to fly to his claims.

"It'll be cheaper and more satisfactory," he declared today, "if I get a ship of my own."

Donlevy has his wife's permission to take the course, and plans putting in about 35 hours of training before applying for a private license.

"Louisiana Purchase" Is Broadway Bound; New Film Offerings

"LOUISIANA PURCHASE," William Gaxton, Vera Zorina, Victor Moore and Irene Bordoni open a week's engagement at the National Theater Monday evening in this new musical comedy, with book by Morrie Ryskind and Producer B. G. DeSylva and music and lyrics by Irving Berlin. Described as "a political satire on a well-publicized Southern State," this new work will be playing an E street engagement prior to its Manhattan debut. Carol Bruce, Nick Long, jr., April Ames, Ralph Riggs, Edward H. Robins, the Martins, Robert Pitkin, Ray Meyer, Charles LaTourre and the Buccaneers are others in a cast of over 100. Carl Randall created the dances and Tom Lee the settings and costumes. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Capitol

"DR. KILDARE'S STRANGE CASE." Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore return in their fourth adventure of the young medico and his elderly mentor. This time young Ayres is concerned with vindicating an operation performed by a friend, who apparently has bungled a serious brain case. Laraine Day, Shepperd Strudwick, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn and Nat Pendleton are in the cast. "Funzafire," the stage revue, will be an all-comedy bill, featuring Benny Meroff with his orchestra and Rex Weber. The show will take place all over the theater, wherever the principals happen to wander. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"THE DARK COMMAND." Depicting the ravages of William Cantrell, bandit of the Kansas-Missouri border country, this film reunites John Wayne and Claire Trevor, stars of "Stagecoach," with Walter Pidgeon playing the staid schoolmaster, who becomes a marauding thief. Wayne is the Federal marshal who attempts to catch the terror and Miss Trevor the girl who keeps them apart. Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Marjorie Main and Porter Hall are featured. The stage revue stars Tommy Riggs with his imaginary protege, Betty Lou, and Hildegarde, noted radio songstress. Shaw and Lee, comedians; the Honeys and the Roxyettes complete the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Actors' Fund Benefit

DANIEL FROHMAN, president of the Actors' Fund of America, will present a galaxy of stars in a single performance at the National Theater Sunday evening for the benefit of his organization. Vivien Leigh, Laurence Oliver, Olsen and Johnson, Walter Huston, Shelia Barrett, Dennis King, Peggy Wood, Violet Heming, Gladys Swarthout, Monty Wooley and an ever-increasing list of stars are donating their services. Tickets are on sale at Room 401 in the Munsey Building, NAtional 9534.

Palace

"STRANGE CARGO." Starring Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, this melodrama continues another week. It is the story of desperate fugitive convicts and a colorful cafe entertainer. Ian Hunter, Peter Lorre, Paul Lukas, Albert Dekker, J. Edward Bromberg and Eduardo Ciannelli are in the cast.

Metropolitan

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS." Joan Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas return for a second week downtown in this farcial treatment of the Enoch Arden legend in which husband No. 1 returns from sea to find husand No. 2 wearing his slippers. Dorothy Peterson, Melville Cooper, Harry Davenport are in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"REBECCA." Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine have the leading roles in Director Alfred Hitchcock's treatment of the unusual novel by Daphne du Maurier. Judith Anderson, Gladys Cooper, George Sanders and Reginald Denny head the support in the film, which already has played two weeks at the Palace. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"RUINS OF PALMYRA." The ancient Syrian city is the setting for a new World Window travelogue. "Our Gang" in "Alfalfa's Double," "One Hundred Pygmies and Andy Panda" and "Rough-house Fiesta," or "What Wrestling Is Not," are the short subjects programmed for the newsreel house. News clips change Friday and Wednesday. Opens tomorrow morning.

Open-Air

"TWENTIETH CENTURY." Starring John Barrymore and Carole Lombard, the drive-in theater on the Richmond highway is reviving this forerunner of the madcap, screwball comedies for three evenings. "Twentieth Century" refers to the super-special train between New York and Hollywood, on which the principals of the film are indulging their vagaries. Opens tonight.

Gayety

"THE TOP HAT REVUE." Rose LaRose is the feminine star of the new revue opening Sunday afternoon at the burlesque theater. Winnie Garrett and Sally O'Day are featured charmers. The leading comedians will be Billy "Scratch" Wallace, Bob Carney and "Hello" Jake Fields. Kay and Allen are the leading dancers.

Glen Echo

WITH THE WARMER WEATHER, the amusement park is rapidly coming into its own. The two new cafes, one on the ground floor and the other on a roof garden, mark the first time extensive restaurant facilities have been introduced at Glen Echo. Paul Kain and his orchestra play for dancing in the Spanish Garden Ballroom each evening, except Sunday, from 9 to midnight.

Howard

MAXINE SULLIVAN, the swing songstress whose unique version of "Loch Lomond" swept the country, headlines the new stage revue at the T street theater. The sepia singer has appeared in films as well as on her own nationally heard radio program. Claude Hopkins, composer and swing maestro of local fame, leads his orchestra in the revue's other top spot. On the screen, James Stephenson and Margot Stevenson costar in "Calling Philo Vance." Midnight performance Saturday. Opens tomorrow morning.

The traditional roles of children and flowers in May Day were not overlooked. Children's settlement houses threw open their doors to the public and public schools held playground celebrations. A throng, including Mrs. Roosevelt and a score of Washington officials and their wives, bought flowers at the charity flower mart of All Hallow's Guild at the Washington Cathedral.

Most solemn observance of May Day came when Georgetown University students celebrated it as Peace Day, marking the occasion with a military mass celebrated by the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, in the presence of uniformed members of the University R. O. T. C. and St. John's College senior officers.

The ceremony, one of 225 similar observances at Catholic colleges throughout the country, ended when an audience of students in the open air all joined in reciting the Catholic peace credo.

Earlier, Senator O'Mahoney, a Georgetown graduate, speaking at a morning convocation opening the Peace Day exercises, sounded a call for international peace on a basis of peace and freedom.

"Peace can not be imposed, it must be willed," Senator O'Mahoney told an audience of more than 1,000 students and faculty members.

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, presided at a broadcast by members of Georgetown University's Campion Guild over Station WJSV at 10:30 last night, closing the Peace Day activities. The theme of the broadcast was the relation of propaganda to war.

At the War Memorial services in Potomac Park memorial trees were presented for E. Lester Jones, first department commander, George Washington Post, No. 1, and James Tracy Brady, twentieth departmental commander of National Cathedral Post, No. 10. Fred G. Fraser officiated at this ceremony.

In an allied Peace Day activity, Trinity College students attended a peace mass and then assembled on the campus to hear an address on the five-point papal peace plan by Marjorie Walsh, president of the International Relations Club.

Henderson Will Not Represent England

Copyright by New York Times

London, May 1.—Sir Nevile Henderson, former British Ambassador to Germany, who is planning a lecture tour in the United States and Canada, is not representing the British government, Sir John Reith, minister of information, told the House of Commons today.

Sir John noted the point that many Americans would consider Henderson an official emissary.

The opposition represented Sir Nevile as having been a failure in Berlin, and the "less heard from him the better."

Hatch Bill Tabled by Secret Ballot

hear a lot of truth about this bill before we are through."

Containing a ban on political activity by Federally-paid employes, and a limit on individual campaign contributions of $5,000, the bill passed the Senate 58 to 28 on March 18 after the session's hottest floor fights. It would tighten and extend to Government-financed State personnel the sharp political restrictions applied last year to all but top-flight Federal employes. An amendment would restore to Federal employes residing in nearby Virginia and Maryland the right to participate in local elections of a nonpartisan nature.

The Judiciary Committee acted after a two-hour executive session, and Chairman Sumners, of Texas, announced only that the bill had been tabled. Stressing the "executive" nature of the proceedings, other ranking Democratic members likewise declined to divulge details of the vote. Sumners said he may make a fuller statement today.

In other informed quarters it was said that the committee at the outset determined on a nonrecord vote, which was carried out by members writing "yes" or "no" on unsigned slips of paper.

The first count on a motion to table brought a 12 to 10 vote against the motion. Over objections of Representative Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, it was said this vote was reconsidered. Some members declared they did not know the original vote was on a motion to table.

The second count, also by the secret ballot method, carried the pigeon-hole motion, 14 to 10, and the bill was ordered tabled. Murdock is understood to have made a futile eleventh-hour fight to obtain reconsideration at another meeting of the committee called for today.

All of the 26 members of the committee are understood to have participated in the vote, except Chairman Sumners, and Representative Charles F. McLaughlin (Democrat), of Nebraska, who was out of the city. Some Republican members left the meeting before the final vote, but were reported to have left their proxies.

The count was believed to have been generally along party lines, but at least one Republican, Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, voted to table, and at least one Democrat voted against the motion. Guyer said he was opposed to the bill in its present form, but approved its purpose and would support an amended bill.

Radiomen on U. S. Freighter At Trondheim Tells of Invasion

Sailor Visiting Brother in D. C. Saw Germans Land With Guns, Grenades; Relates Hectic Trip Through Fjord

The radio operator of the American freighter Mormacsea, trapped in Trondheim harbor when German troops captured the Norwegian port April 9, arrived in Washington yesterday, and revealed to The Post the contents of his diary covering hectic days in Norway and the escape to America with a cargo of $4,500,000 in Swedish gold.

TOMASKOVIC

The sailor, Joseph Tomaskovic, 33, of Monessen, Pa., is "taking a vacation" at the home of his brother, John, of 207 Twentieth street northeast, who is attached to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The Mormacsea, out of New York, docked at Bergen, Norway, March 3, with the Swedish gold, and then put in at Trondheim, focal point of present British-German fighting, April 6, three days before the Nazis came in.

Here the diary starts. Extracts follow:

"April 3—Awakened at 7 a. m. by the third mate . . . Hurriedly put on pants, shoes and coat, and on deck saw that Germany had invaded Norway . . . A long sleek battleship lay in the harbor, and German troops in a dull green were landing just in front of our bow from a small harbor boat . . . Troops with machine guns, grenades at belts, and their roll sacks on backs, camouflaged are gathering in a shed just at our ship's side . . . They seem an unpretentious lot, rather young, but disciplined . . .

"The English news heard at 7:30 gives no notice of this, but says that the minefield is very effective, but if the broadcaster could look out of our porthole, how different he'd know . . .

April 10—At anchor in Hommelvik, 12 miles from Trondheim . . . News is that the Germans and Norwegians have also laid mines at harbor entrances, so combine them with the English mines and the pickle grows more sour . . . We'll probably have a fine time of it getting out of our bottleneck without touching one off, and one is enough.

April 12—The three passengers will not be allowed to go with us as the trip home is too dangerous . . . Numbers of trucks piled with household furniture, and women, children and men go by on the road, heading away from Trondheim . . . Trains are crowded with young people . . . They gaze out as they roll by . . . The atmosphere is a bit tense, although work goes right along and everyone is set for anything that might happen . . . I have a bundle made up, using my waterproof raincoat . . . Also a couple of suits in a bag in case I can take it along if something happens.

April 14—Left Hommelvik at 10:24 a. m. . . . Alarm signal rang and all members must stand around decks, with life preservers on as we are approaching a narrow spot in the fjord and it may be mined . . . 5:30 p. m., still wearing my life-preserver while writing these notes.

April 21—Sunday . . . Everybody is writing a story on the invasion of Trondheim . . . I saw Trondheim invaded . . . Norway raped before my eyes . . . first eye-witness story of Norwegian invasion . . . just a few of the headlines the boys have for their jealously guarded manuscripts . . . At least their scrolls will remain good souvenirs of an incident not often witnessed. . . .

April 25—Arrived in New York.

Commissioners Weigh Case of Brodie, Murray

The District Commissioners yesterday took under advisement pleas of two suspended policemen, found guilty last month by a special police trial board of accepting a bribe.

They are Hubert (Steve) Brodie and Leo (Nix) Murray, former detective sergeants. The suspended men requested they be reinstated. Oliver Gasch, assistant corporation counsel, requested the Commissioners to sustain the verdict.

Clearing The Decks

For days on end the Italian press has coupled unstinted praise for Germany's military prowess with unmeasured abuse of the Allies. This is no new phenomenon. Mussolini's journalistic spokesmen have been writing in this vein for a long time, although the virulence of their anti-British and anti-French attacks has lately exceeded all bounds.

What has really alarmed the British and French governments is the fact that these newspaper assaults have coincided with plainly spoken warnings by Italian leaders that Italy is about to enter the war. The Allies cannot help wondering whether Mussolini is planning to take advantage of their difficulties in Norway by engineering a coup in the Balkans and the Mediterranean.

Since the Italian attitude toward Great Britain and France has become "definitely alarming," as a French foreign office spokesman pointed out, it was inevitable that the Allies should take precautionary measures. The first move in this direction has been Great Britain's diversion of Mediterranean traffic to the longer and more expensive Cape route.

The significance of this step is apparent. Soon the Mediterranean will be free of British shipping. That will automatically reduce the possible damage which Italian submarines and airplanes might do should Mussolini decide to enter the war. At the same time the British and French Mediterranean fleets will have a better chance to deploy for effective action should that become necessary.

The rerouting of British shipping around the Cape is a measure which could not have been undertaken lightheartedly. It will place an additional strain on Allied merchant shipping. It will also temporarily cut off supplies which Great Britain and France are wont to receive from the Near East and North Africa. Yet, by showing Italy that the Allies mean business, that they are prepared for any hostile action which Mussolini may take, the effect may be salutary. Indeed, reports from Rome following Ambassador Phillips' interview with Mussolini suggest that the British move has already helped to curb Italy's war fever.

In view of the serious blow to Allied military prestige resulting from Germany's recent victories in Norway, Mussolini is no doubt under the temptation to make good his alliance with Hitler at this time. Yet so vulnerable is Italy to sea power that only surprise action could give that country the initial advantage. And the Allies are now busily underlining the point that no surprise, comparable to the German invasion of Norway, is possible in southern Europe.

Employment Week

Colonel Harrington urges that the current week, proclaimed by President Roosevelt as National Employment Week, be "made a period for accelerating the return of WPA project employes to a regular place in the industry and business of their communities.

The practice of setting aside special periods for hastily accomplishing what experience has shown to be exceedingly difficult sometimes seems futile, even childish. But in this particular instance a National Employment Week should help to focus public attention upon the plight of the unemployed, even if it does little to provide more jobs for the idle. The fact is that unemployment cannot be sensibly reduced by mere willingness to take on workers. Most employers gladly increase the numbers on their pay rolls when business conditions improve. But few will, or can, add to their working forces unless there is that demand for their products which makes the hiring of more labor a practical matter.

Colonel Harrington's appeal to employers to take on more WPA workers does not, however, ask the impossible. For employers frequently have an opportunity to choose between non-relief labor and men on relief rolls. The number of unemployed is not, of course, diminished by taking a man from relief rolls instead of hiring an idle outsider. But the morale of the individuals on WPA projects is improved and the danger of creating a permanent army of relief workers is lessened by inroads on its ranks.

Colonel Harrington's statement that about a million and a quarter WPA workers have left voluntarily during the past year is encouraging evidence that a large percentage of relief workers haven't lost their initiative. Less encouraging is the fact that nearly half of the 2,000,000 persons on WPA rolls are 40 years of age or more. No doubt a very large percentage of this upper-age group do not leave voluntarily because there are few places where they can find employment.

In asking special consideration for the needs of men over 40, employers are not being urged to be quixotic. Restrictions upon the age of employes is necessary for certain kinds of work. But there are many occupations in which experience counts for more than youthful agility and speed.

If National Employment Week serves as a reminder of the need for more liberal treatment of relief workers and of the middle-aged unemployed, it will not have been decreed in vain.

The Russell Case

The case of Bertrand Russell and his legal exclusion from the faculty of the College of the City of New York is of unusual importance. It is important not merely because it raises anew the difficult question of academic freedom in a democracy, but also because it crystallizes that problem as few other causes celebres of the campus have done.

In some other cases doubt has existed whether the issue of academic freedom had not been raised as a screen for professional incapacity. Conversely, there has been doubt as to whether the charge of incompetence has not been used to end the teaching careers of men whose expressed opinions are offensive to trustees, prospective donors of endowments and other powerful personages. Indeed Prof. Russell, in the not too impressive apologia published in the current number of the American Mercury, describes this system of elimination as "well perfected." But in such matters it is difficult for outsiders to arrive at the truth.

His own case, however, is clouded by no such doubts. Prof. Russell is one of the two or three foremost mathematicians of our time and his technical competence to teach his subject is beyond dispute. On the other hand, Prof. Russell has challenged concepts which are more widely and jealousy cherished than the concepts of the capitalist system or of the democratic principle of government. He has challenged the system of sexual morality which has been traditional for several thousand years.

It is, then, a question of where, if anywhere, the limits to freedom of expression on the part of teachers are to be drawn. Prof. Russell argues that there should be no limits. Education, in his view, would seem to consist wholly in the exposure of students to ideas and the more these ideas conflict the better. "Uniformity in the opinions expressed by teachers," he writes, "is not only not to be sought, but is, if possible, to be avoided, since diversity of opinion among preceptors is essential to any sound education."

Men, certainly, may be said to be educated in proportion to their acquaintance with ideas. But let us examine the extremes to which such a doctrine could be pushed. A teacher of elementary English, for example, might advise her pupils to disregard all rules of grammar and spelling since these are based upon nothing more scientific than generations of popular usage, or, as Prof. Russell might put it, imposed by the "tyranny of the majority." A teacher of arithmetic might refuse to teach the multiplication tables because of a belief that a system of numbers based on multiples of ten is inferior to one based on multiples of two, or on the prime number 7, or on the ultra-divisible number 12. She might even encourage them to doubt whether two and two make four.

However, a teacher who followed such a course would soon find herself deep in trouble, and it is doubtful whether the champions of academic freedom would rally to her support. For the decimal system of numbers is universal. Its use for all practical purposes is accepted without question by Stalin, Pius XII, Hitler, Roosevelt, Gandhi and the National Association of Manufacturers.

The reason for the supremacy of the decimal system is said to be anatomical. Nature has given us ten fingers and most of us learn to count on them. The basis of all sexual mores is almost as certainly biological. And though these have taken somewhat different forms in different stages of human development, their purpose has been the same—the preservation of the species. Westermarck and other students have shown that our traditional morals are based wholly on the concept of the family as the fundamental social unit.

With the disappearance of the family as an institution, our traditional morality could scarcely be defended with much logic. It is no secret that since the industrial revolution, and particularly within the past 50 years, the family as a social institution has been steadily weakened. Thus it might be said that Prof. Russell's ethics have merely rationalized what has already occurred.

But it is clearly apparent that in such a society as ours the only possible alternative to rearing of children by families is the rearing of children by the state, a circumstance which scarcely promises well for the cause of freedom. From this point of view it would be possible to argue that the real, if unwitting, champions of liberty in this controversy are Prof. Russell's opponents, and that the great logician has failed to perceive the final implications of his own theories.

No Excuse Left

At least one factor in the kaleidoscope of national forces seems to be working for economy. While the House and Senate have debated the appropriation of funds for "parity payments" to farmers, agricultural prices have been edging upward to a point where such gifts appear even less defensible than they did a few months ago.

Following the precedent of last year, the Senate added $212,000,000 to the agricultural supply bill for parity payments. This fund would go to the producers of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and rice. But Congress has never attempted to pay the full difference between present agricultural prices and the parity figures based on the farmer's purchasing power in 1909-1914. It has provided only that payments be made on any of the five crops bringing prices less than 75 per cent of parity.

Present indications are that parity payments would not be made on either wheat or tobacco. A Department of Agriculture report shows wheat prices to be 79 per cent of parity. Average tobacco prices are 89 per cent of parity. If the price of corn continues to rise, it will also soon be over the parity figure. That would leave the generous gift from Congress to be distributed among the growers of cotton and rice. Since rice is a minor crop, the basic question soon to be presented to the House is whether another lavish grant shall be made for the special benefit of cotton farmers.

If Congress were ardently seeking ways and means of spending surplus funds, it is questionable whether parity payments could be justified under these circumstances. Indeed, the name "parity payments" is a misnomer. The $212,000,000 fund may be more reasonably regarded as a special hand-out to cotton producers. Approval of that provision would doubtless work to the disadvantage of most farmers, for agriculture would be held responsible for raiding the Treasury even though the benefits would be confined to one or a few groups.

When this lack of any excuse for expanding the swollen agricultural supply bill is combined with the urgent need for economy the strength which the spenders have been able to muster seems utterly incredible. No one can deny former Vice President Dawes' reminder that the budget must be balanced if national bankruptcy is to be avoided. Yet the drift toward fiscal chaos continues.

The first step toward putting the Government's house in order must be the will to live within available means. Should the House pass by its excellent opportunity to encourage this will, the cause of Federal solvency will suffer a heavy blow.

Looking For A Bargain

For some time newspaper readers have been aware that nowadays nothing is too fantastic to be true. Still on Wednesday morning thousands of readers must have polished their spectacles before they could be convinced they had been reading aright.

Yet there it was, as plain as bold-face type could make it: Mr. Samuel Harden Church had offered $1,000,000 cash to any person or group of persons who can deliver Adolf Hitler "alive, unwounded and unhurt" to be tried before "a high court of justice for his crimes against the peace and dignity of the world." This, said Mr. Church, is a special offer good for only 30 days from date.

It must have seemed to many that Mr. Church is looking for a bargain. Herr Hitler's enemies are now spending several billion dollars a month with nothing much, as yet, to show for it. Surely it will be a brilliant stroke of business if Mr. Church can settle this whole argument for what is, relatively speaking, a pretty paltry piece of change.

But maybe Mr. Church's idea is only to start the bidding. Unless we are gravely mistaken, there are other interested parties that would be willing to hand over a good many times a million dollars for possession of Herr Hitler. And perhaps they would not be as finicky as Mr. Church about his condition at the time of delivery.

Another Tomato Argument?

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Noting the widely publicized Congressional discussion on the proper pronunciation of "tomato," recently recorded on this page, the erudite Portland Oregonian points to the origin of the word in Nahualt, the language of the Aztecs, who knew it as "tomatl," from which the Spanish "tomate" was derived. The Oregonian opines that the manner in which the Aztecs, or even the Spanish, pronounced it should govern our usage—which should comfort the proponents of "tomahto."

"But tomatoes are best with a dressing of clear lemon juice and Spanish or Italian olive oil, however you pronounce them," the editorial adds.

It seems to us that they approached ambrosia when eaten with a handful of salt under the shade of the old peach tree, just after being picked in Aunt Mary's garden on a hot August afternoon . . . Or is the Oregonian trying to start another tomayto-tomahto argument?

Facts And Belief

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The attack made by J. W. Brandt, M. D., charging you with becoming party to Allied propaganda efforts and with lack of honesty, fairness and integrity, is a glaring example of the fact that there really are those in America who would force us to swallow Goering's propaganda whole and deny us the right to believe the truth. His contention, that in expressing your editorial opinion you insulted your readers' intelligence, very clearly shows that you expressed sentiments which did not meet with his approval; therefore you should not write such things.

Of course, in Germany things would be very much simplified and you would not be permitted such liberty, but the good doctor should remember that he is in America where we are not told what we are to believe, but may have opinions of our own and are not shot if we express them.

The purpose of a newspaper in a democracy is to present the news of what is actually happening without bias or prejudice, also the comments thereon of journalists trained to observe and report the trend of events.

If the doctor prefers to believe the propaganda of Von Ribbentrop's explanation of the invasion of Norway (sidestepping the lack of explanation in regard to Denmark); no one here will deny him that right, but he should not become abusive and charge ulterior motives because others believe the facts substantiate the contrary belief.

Britain cannot seriously be charged with any efforts to become Europe's boss, but Hitler's glaring record is plain for those willing to see. If, as Hitler clearly believes, Europe should have a boss, few will doubt the democracy of Britain would a thousand times be preferred to Nazi "Kulture." Europe is, however, permitted no choice in the matter.

ERNEST E. OSWALD.
Arlington, Va., April 30.

Discipline For Whom?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your account April 30 of the fire at the National Training School for Girls, there appears the following statement: "A conference will be held at the school today by welfare officials, Capt. Clarence Talley of the 7th Precinct, Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber, officials of the school and a representative of the District Attorney's office to determine what disciplinary steps might be taken."

This is the institution which after my administration (which was ridiculed by these same officials because of 'coddling") was straightened out in a few weeks by the wizardry of Dr. James Lewald, who was commended by the Department of Public Welfare for having done a "magnificent job." (See House Hearings 75th Congress p. 484.) Certainly, he succeeded in keeping the "lid" on for the past two years. But, when the "smoke and flames leap high in the air" from a cell-block in which seven shrieking children are confined the lid raises a little. The lid should now come completely off on the demand of outraged citizens!

Discipline there should be! Not for the defenseless, distraught children (except as education and essential training include discipline) but for the negligent Commissioners, and the Board of Public Welfare, especially the chairman who has dominated the policies of the board for years and is largely responsible for the disgraceful condition of the institutions in the Nation's Capital. His resignation would be his greatest "public service."

CARRIE WEAVER SMITH.
Washington, April 30.

"In Need Of Amendment"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you permit me to comment briefly on your editorial relating to the USHA, entitled "In Need of Amendment," in The Post of April 25.

"Some of the projects," you say, "for which it lends funds," etc.

Using the term "lend" in the sense in which it has always been used, the United States Housing Authority lends no money whatever for constructing housing projects. It simply pays outright, with taxpayers' money, 100 per cent of the full development cost of all these projects, including interest charges. When you reflect that the local housing authority does not have a dime of resources of its own, no further arguments should be needed to prove this point. The fact is, the local housing authority is merely a dummy of the United States Housing Authority set up by it in a roundabout and devious manner to carry on its financial manipulations.

The Housing Act specifically provides that the annual Federal contributions—taxes—are security for all so-called loans to construct the housing projects. This includes the supposed local 10 per cent loan as well as the supposed 90 per cent Federal loan.

The perfidy of this whole housing scheme is revealed clearly in the financial transactions of the supposed local 10 per cent loan. Here the Administration, in order to fool the people into believing the local community furnishes a part of the cost, pays 3 per cent interest, when it is actually borrowing money at 1⅜ per cent.

The United States Housing Act is the most dishonest piece of legislation that I know of on our statute books. To start with, it seeks to abolish not less than $20,000,000,000 worth of private property, the most sacred possession of the family—our homes—and would require an additional $20,000,000,000 to further finance the program.

Karl Marx knew the meaning of the abolition of private property. He called it communism. Certainly these houses are owned by the supreme political authority of the United States exactly the same as the houses are owned in the Soviet Union.

It is not abolishing a single slum in America. It subsidizes rents for families almost exclusively of the middle income group. Statistics are available to prove this.

It drives the poor out on the streets like rats. I know whereof I speak. It tried to do this in my own city, Marion, Ohio. It is trying to do it in Germantown, Pa. Then, after these defenseless people have been driven from their hearths, they are taxed to subsidize the rents of families with incomes higher than their own.

No, the United States Housing program is not a thing to be amended. It should be abolished.

The scheme was defeated in the Congress last year. Now Mr. Straus and his crowd are seeking to amend the act. I have read a draft of their proposed amendment. It is just as deceiving and vicious as the present act, if not more so. This is true particularly of the section that seeks to include the farmers in this exploitation. Everything possible should be done to defeat once and for all any amendments to further extend this communistic program.

FREDERICK C. SMITH, M. C.
Washington, April 27.

Seconds The Motion

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of April 27, Mr. Albert G. Knorl's proposed solution of "Unemployment" shows very clearly a possession of "imagination, courage, altruism" and the spirit of "nation-wide cooperation." More than these, the proposal shows a business sense that is rather rare these days. The rarity of business sense is acutely demonstrated in the current efforts on Capitol Hill to emasculate the Wages and Hours Act; these efforts being the subject of editorial comment on the same page with Mr. Knorl's letter.

Mr. Knorl suggests that the unemployed, numbering some 20 per cent of those employed, should be taken on by all employers in a ratio of 1 to 5, and that the working capital necessary should be loaned to the employers. If this could be done, assuming an average of $1,200 in annual pay for 10,000,000 people, it would add $12,000,000,000 to the national income or purchasing power.

The spending of it would increase the demand for goods and services some 17 per cent, and to supply these more labor would be needed. Every business in the country would be benefited in the same ratio; that is, by a 20 per cent increase in production, and then some. Unquestionably, the effect would be cumulative, the exact reverse of the action of pay cuts and lay-offs (of men and of machines) which cut the national income in half in the course of two years, from '30 to '32.

Furthermore, if the 1 to 5 proposal were followed, it would have the effect of taking the surplus labor off the market. Wages and salaries would rise automatically under the natural law of demand and supply for labor treated as a commodity, "the iron law of wages." Thus purchasing power would be increased further and increased production would follow. There is no physical reason why the national income produced and spent should not soon be raised to $100,000,000,000.

I take great pleasure in seconding Mr. Knorl's motion to put the unemployed to work at raising the national income.

Use Of History

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Over and over again we are reminded by British lecturers and Americans with interventionist leanings, of German history. We are told that the German people love force and tyranny. To explain Hitler, we are requested to turn to the past, when Frederick the Great or Bismarck or Kaiser Wilhelm ruled Germany. The conclusion is reached that Germany had ruthless leaders in the past and always will have, because the Germans are a people whose basic brutal nature remains unchanged throughout the march of centuries.

However, while Lord Duff-Cooper, most vocal proponent of this argument, cites history to prove his case against Germany, he will tolerate no such historical analysis of British character.

English history has been filled with black deeds, such as the enslavement of India, the wars to force the opium trade on China, and England's war against the Boer colonists in South Africa; yet when Duff-Cooper was queried about such past British actions in his recent tour of the United States, he replied impatiently to the effect that yes, England had been bad in the past, but history was no basis for interpreting the present actions of the British people.

Evidently history is only to be employed for the exclusive and rather one-sided uses of the British propagandists.

The Workers Club

"Oh consider awhile ere you leave me,
And don't hasten to bid me adieu;
But remember the Red River Valley
And the fond heart that loves you so true"

we sang with a lusty good will, putting just the proper touch of pathetic twang into our voices, while Bea picked her git-tar and Carl scraped his fiddle.

We were a happy group there at the Blue and Gold Tavern tucked away in our little corner of the Ozark Mountains. We liked each other so well that we organized ourselves into the Workers Club of Potter, with regular meetings every Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The presiding officer, of course, was Mrs. Northport, the proprietor of the Blue and Gold. Mrs. Northport was 64, but her hair was dyed a gleaming black and she could wield a blackjack with the best of them when the rougher and cruder element tried to invade the joint. Her place was respectable, and she intended to keep it so.

Bea, however, was the mainstay and guiding spirit of the Workers Club. Without her we simply could not have existed. Bea had a clear, fresh voice, her mastery of the git-tar was something to marvel at, and she knew the words of all the songs—not these silly modern songs about iddy fishies, but the old favorites, the ballads, the cowboy songs, and the old hymns. She had a thick composition book, her song book, in which she had written the words she had been collecting for years.

Bea's husband, Carl, played the fiddle and kept time with his foot in the approved manner. Big Joe, the fireman, sang a rich bass whose resonance deepened with each beer he drank. Otis, who carried a UCAPAWA card, contributed a fine fine nasal tenor, exactly fitted for our type of music. And I, since my singing voice is an offense before God and man, devised the percussion effects, which the score did not strictly call for.

Word soon spread through the little town of the Workers Club and its superior musical performers, and each of our regular meetings found a larger crowd who came to applaud and to join in our activities. After all, except on show nights three times a week, there wasn't much to do in Potter. The dashing younger crowd frequented the Spotted Owl Tavern, where they could dance to the music of a nickelodeon. We attracted the more sober and older people, and soon Mrs. Northport's profits were increasing to such an extent that the members of the Workers Club got two beers on the house every meeting.

Then sex reared its ugly head. Mrs. Northport fell in love, head over heels in love, love at first sight in its most violent form. A youth of about 26 came in one day, introduced himself as an insurance salesman, drank a beer, and captured Mrs. Northport's heart. Soon he was spending every evening at the Blue and Gold. He stayed on after the last customer left. He ate his meals with Mrs. Northport in the back room.

He was undoubtedly a valuable addition to the Workers Club. He knew cowboy songs that we had never heard before; he carried a banjo with him, and his imitation of a train whistle in "The Wabash Cannon Ball" was the last word in mournfulness. We all liked Morgan, but we regretted that our presiding officer should be made into a joke for the whole town because of him.

Consequently, we did not know whether to be gratified or still further alarmed when Morgan and Mrs. Northport announced one evening that they had been married that afternoon. Mrs. Northport, or Mrs. Morgan, as we had now to call her, was her husband's senior by some 40 years, and a marriage of that sort was certain to cause endless merriment in the town. On the other hand, it was at least a consolation to know that the union had been legalized.

At any rate, the Workers Club of Potter celebrated with great vigor. We went through our entire repertory of songs, and never had our voices rung out so loud and clear, never had Bea picked the git-tar so agilely, never had Carl scraped his fiddle so excruciatingly, never had I drawn forth such novel noises from whatever lay near at hand, and never had Morgan imitated a train whistle with such telling effect as on that festive night.

The bride declared that the beer was on the house and invited us to see how much we could drink that evening. We set to with a hearty good will. We popped corn over the fire in the fireplace, and we consumed mountains of sandwiches. It was a wedding feast to go down in Potter history.

At the next meeting of the Workers Club we discovered a new Ford coupe parked in front of the Blue and Gold, and Mrs. Morgan proudly showed it to us as her gift to her husband. In it, she said, they were going to take their honeymoon.

How her black hair glistened, how her raddled old cheeks glowed beneath their paint, how her eyes flashed behind her glasses as she sat in utter content beside her husband that evening, holding his hand and raising her cracked voice as we sang all the new songs her Morgan had taught us! On Sunday, she said, they were leaving for a trip to California.

We cast about for a new meeting place for the Workers Club and were in despair over our impending dissolution, for there really was no other place where we could meet. The Spotted Owl Tavern was out of the question.

We need not have worried, however. The Blue and Gold was still open on the next Tuesday, and Mrs. Morgan hastened to explain that Morgan had some business in Memphis to attend to before they left. He had driven over last Saturday night and would soon be back.

So we took a good sip of beer, cleared our throats, hummed for a moment, and then launched into our favorite:

"Oh, consider awhile ere you leave me,
And don't hasten to bid me adieu."

Mrs. Northport—we never could learn to call her Mrs. Morgan—cried, "Oh, don't sing that!" and fled to the back room.

She got over it after a few weeks, but she never could bear for us to sing "The Red River Valley."

A Phoney Idea Of The War

THE VIEW is widely held that at the end of the war in Europe all the fighting nations will be completely exhausted: the vanquished will collapse in a revolutionary upheaval, and the nominal victors will be too weakened to move. Considering the vast destructiveness of modern war, the prediction is so plausible that many are thinking it must be true; indeed there are many statesmen and politicians who are basing their whole conception of the war upon it.

I am venturing to suggest that the idea is one of those half-truths which are often more misleading than a total, and therefore a more obvious, untruth.

AN INITIAL reason for suspecting the unsoundness of the idea is that such contradictory and incongruous practical conclusions are being drawn from it. We are told that Soviet Russia is seeking to prolong the war so that bolshevism may triumph in an exhausted Europe. We are also told that the security of the United States cannot be impaired, no matter who wins the war in Europe, because the victors will be too exhausted to go on. There is something very queer, it seems to me, about an idea which leads to these two conclusions.

For on the one hand, it would follow that in order to save Europe from bolshevism a peace must be made at once and at any price; on the other hand, it would also follow that the longer the war lasts and the more thoroughly it exhausts the great powers of Europe, the more perfect will be the security of the United States. Are we, I wonder, really understanding the war when we find ourselves terrified that the exhaustion of the war will make Europe safe for bolshevism and deeply reassured because it will make the western hemisphere safe for isolationism?

There must be something, shall we say phoney, in a notion which leads to the conclusion that we must wish to stop the war in order to stop bolshevism, and yet, that if we do not stop the war, we have nothing to fear because the resulting exhaustion in Europe will make this hemisphere safe against aggression. The thing will not hold together. The same supposed outcome, namely the exhaustion of Europe is offered to us as a reason for being frightened and for being complacent—frightened if the war goes on and yet complacent about the outcome. There is, I repeat, something phoney about this view of the war.

IT IS PHONEY because it is not true that this war is any more likely than any other war to end with the victors in such a state of exhaustion that they cannot move. No doubt the victors will have suffered terrible losses, their supplies will be used up, their credit will be gone, their machinery worn out, their people hungry, cold and tired. But the victor will have his victory, that is to say, he will have shattered the power of his enemies to resist him. Therefore, though in an absolute sense he may possibly be weaker than when he started the war, having less trained soldiers, less guns and airplanes and the like, in a relative sense—which is all that counts—he will be infinitely stronger. For if in a battle you lose three-quarters of your force but you destroy your enemy, the remaining quarter of your force is then ever so much more powerful in fact than was the whole original force. In this sense the victor is stronger at the end of a war than he was at the beginning.

But what about the exhaustion of his resources and the depletion of his capital, the hungry misery of his people: will that not cause him to stop when he has concluded an armistice? Not necessarily. If the victorious nation is hungry and yet, as we have seen, it is in a military sense irresistible, the simplest and most obvious remedy for its "exhaustion" is to conquer and loot. It was said of Napoleon Bonaparte, when he began his career as the commander of a ragged army drawn from a bankrupt nation, that he learned how to make war nourish war. For nineteen years the armies of Napoleon ranged across Europe from Spain to Moscow, from Scandinavia to Egypt. On what did they feed? They fed on their victories.

The great conquerors of history have never been stopped by exhaustion; on the contrary, the exhaustion of their resources is the most compelling of all reasons, more compelling than ambition or the love of glory, why they must go on until like Alexander they sigh because there are no more worlds to conquer or like Napoleon they meet their Waterloo.

WHAT WAS TRUE of Alexander, Caesar, and Napoleon is likely to be even more certainly true of a modern conqueror. For in these days the preparation of conquest requires the totalitarian organization of a nation for war, that is to say the application of virtually all its capital and its labor to war. To demobilize such a war organization would be even more difficult than to mobilize it; given victory which destroys all power and will to resist, given exhaustion which requires the immediate acquisition of supplies, what is more probable than that the irresistible military power will not be scrapped but will be used to remedy the exhaustion?

This is the classic procedure of the conqueror, and this procedure is so obvious, and indeed so necessary, that any conqueror must adopt it.

HITLER
"Though he might win this war he will have to make other wars."

BUT WHY, if the conqueror must feed himself on conquests, is it not equally true that those who resist him victoriously must do the same? The question is of the utmost importance: why was it, for example, that Napoleon could not stop till he was stopped at Waterloo, while the Allies, in 1815, were able and did in fact stop and did establish a fairly long peace? The answer, I think, is clear. The conqueror's peace extends only as far as his military power; he can never govern with the consent of the conquered and he can never obtain the willing cooperation of peoples beyond the reach of his armies.

Therefore, peace cannot be reestablished by a conqueror or with a conqueror; for where there is no confidence, no sense of security, no negotiation on the basis of reciprocal advantage, there will be no law, no credit, no saving, no free commerce, and consequently, no means by which the mobilized soldiers and the war workers can return to peaceable jobs. That is why Napoleon, though he signed peace six or seven times, could never keep the peace, and that is why Hitler can never make a peace.

ON THE OTHER hand, the resistance to a conqueror always comes from a coalition of the peoples who would be his victims. This coalition is welded together by fear of the conqueror. But once he is defeated, the coalition can be held together only by consent. This means that the coalition must by its very nature seek to make a peace which does not require overwhelming force to maintain it, a peace in which consent and willing cooperation predominate over force. The victorious coalition may fail to establish such a peace: the Allies and the United States failed in 1919. But even that failure shows that while a coalition may be unwise and ungenerous, a coalition is not warlike. The Versailles peace was a bad peace. But when a conqueror makes a bad peace, he enforces it by more conquests, as the Japanese, for example, have done in China and may go on to do elsewhere. When a coalition makes a bad peace, the coalition falls apart, as the Allied coalition did in 1919, and it cannot enforce its bad peace.

For a coalition can use victory only to make a peace that rests on consent. Just as no conqueror can ever make peace at all, so no coalition can ever make peace except in the end by consent. That is why Hitler might win this war but inexorably he will have to make other wars; that is why the Allied coalition will never be able to cease to resist until it finds in Germany a regime with which a peace can be made by consent.

Company Unions

TOM STOKES, the Scripps-Howard Washington reporter, writes from Anderson, S. C., that the Ku Klux Klan is planting its members in unions of the C. I. O. with the purpose of spying on those organizations gaining control and converting them into company unions.

Well, isn't that the way it was bound to go?

The C. I. O. permitted the communists to sneak into their unions under orders from Moscow and with the purpose of gaining control and converting them into communist fronts. Many of those communists are spies who pretend not to be communists, but always flock with the communists and follow the party orders as received from Moscow. They are anti-Americans no less than the members of the Anti-American Bund established here under the auspices of the Nazi government's department of foreign organizations. They spy on the business firms which employ them, spy on their fellow-workers, harass and terrorize genuine Americans in the membership of their unions and, by cunning manipulation of voting systems and tireless devotion to Stalin, put American citizens unwillingly and helplessly in the position of indorsing anti-American communist interests by resolutions.

Members of the American Newspaper Guild who intimately observed the operations of this Stalinist organization in New York and in California have seen the communists at work. In New York the communists controlled the elections and the money and savagely abused Americans who dissented from their purposes. They permitted the communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, to impose conditions on its men which would have called for picket lines around the plant of any local American publication. In California, last fall, the State C. I. O., under communist control, voted to support the so-called ham 'n' eggs plan, which was both idiotic and extremely dangerous not because the communists believed in ham 'n' eggs, but because they figured that if it won at the polls and then failed in practice the disappointment of the eligibles and their lazy dependents below the age of 50 would touch off riots up and down the State.

Riots breed revolution.

That is why the California C. I. O., including the Newspaper Guild, indorsed ham 'n' eggs, even though this measure forbade labor to strike and even though it was a cruel racket whereby a band of political adventurers, some of them with police records, chiseled an enormous graft out of the poverty of hundreds of thousands of gullibles at the rate of a penny a day plus occasional special assessments of a dime. The Newspaper Guild did not repudiate this indorsement of ham 'n' eggs.

FOR A LONG TIME, in California, the communists of the C. I. O. operated their terror through goons or sluggers, but they now seem to have abandoned such methods in favor of a less spectacular but even more effective terrorism. Now they hold over the Americans the fear of expulsion from their unions, which would mean exclusion from work and, of course, privation for their families. Or they fine them heavily for offenses against the discipline dictated by the communists. Suffering and injustice leave them cold.

So it was bound to come, this use of the communist method of boring from within against the communists, and they should be the last to protest against such methods, although, of course, they will be among the first. Possibly they will counter-attack by planting their members in the Ku Klux Klan, although that seems unlikely, because, with all that the communist and the kluxer have in common, they nevertheless, are totally unlike. The communist will talk communism and the kluxer will talk nonsense, and neither can pretend to be the other, although both can belong to a third organization such as a union and fight it out there.

Oddly, there are communists or fellow-travelers in the C. I. O., who wrote with courage and fire against the atrocities of the Ku Klux Klan and its silent, bloodless persecutions back in the '20s, who, in the rise of the communist movement in the C. I. O., advocated or condoned the same methods. The fact that the sufferers would be not soulless corporations only but little, individual, helpless Americans did not abate their enthusiasm for the party line.

There is nothing to choose between the communists and fellow-travelers and the Ku Klux Klan. They both employ the same methods, so neither one provides a refuge from the other. But as between the company union and the union controlled from Moscow there is a choice. The company union is American and wants to live and, living, must provide jobs. The Moscow union is Russian and the mortal enemy of the company and the jobs.

Our New Defense Problems

AS LONG as Germany is blocked from the surface of the Atlantic by Allied sea power, there is no possibility that she can take possession of Greenland. And if the Allies win the war, it must be expected that Denmark will be liberated and the former very satisfactory status of Greenland restored.

But if Germany wins the war so decisively as to obtain the surrender or liquidation of British sea power, the issue of Greenland will at once become acute.

Such a final stage of the war would leave Greenland in a position somewhat similar to that of Bermuda, the Bahamas, and Jamaica and other Allied islands in the Caribbean. The President has intimated clearly that Greenland is within our hemisphere and subject to the Monroe Doctrine.

The American people would not be willing to purchase Greenland during the war, as they might be to buy Bermuda, since to do so would help Germany to win. So there are apparent only two means of preventing Germany from making good her claim to Greenland if she does win. One is a warning to keep out, backed by readiness to use force. The other is their outright seizure by our Navy. Of the two only the latter seems a satisfactory safeguard of this hemisphere, since the former would leave Greenland in the possession of a satellite of the Reich.

But Greenland would be exceedingly difficult to occupy and defend. It is distant from our shores, much farther by sea and even farther by air from Boston than it is from Europe. And its vast extent, savage climate and innumerable fjords would make its effective military protection a staggering task. It lies, moreover, so close to Iceland that its annexation might require the acquisition of an American base there as well.

Iceland, however, lies within 500 miles of Scotland. The extension of our Atlantic front to there would bring it unpleasantly close to Europe in the extreme north, at a time when we would need more and more of our defensive strength for the South Atlantic.

It can be argued that Greenland is more Canada's problem than ours, and should be left for Canada to solve. But Canadian occupation would not solve it for us, because Canada could not hold Greenland against a European great power without active American cooperation. Actually, Canadian occupation would make our problem more difficult. If so exposed a position must be held by any American nation, it would be be far more secure with our forces installed there than it would be if they could only arrive there after an enemy had attacked.

Can we, however, take it for granted that American occupation of Greenland would be accepted passively by a Reich consummat-victory in Europe? To most Germans it would appear a forcible intervention to deny them the legal fruits of their victory, an intolerable affront to a race of conquerors.

IF WE HAD only to concern ourselves with the Atlantic, we might feel that there was little real danger that the seizure of Greenland would involve us in war.

Few observers are so optimistic as to believe that Japan would continue to remain neutral during the last stages of a German victory in Europe. Before her eyes would open a golden opportunity to acquire valuable territories her leaders mean some day to win, the Dutch East Indies, Borneo, Singapore and numerous British and French islands in the South Pacific.

In the light of our past and present Pacific policies and the recent statement of Secretary Hull concerning the Dutch East Indies, it must be doubted that we would permit Japan to seize the Indies and Singapore, surround the Philippines, and lay the basis for a future advance upon Australia. And there is even greater doubt whether we would allow Japan to take over the chain of British and French island groups which stretch eastward from Australia well into our half of the Pacific.

Yet to keep Japan out of the war under such circumstances we would have to intervene actively and be prepared to go into the war ourselves. There would be very grave danger of involvement in a Pacific conflict which would be fought without effective foreign aid for objectives thousands of miles from our shores, a conflict which would be exceedingly costly to the United States.

There is reason to believe that it would actually be far more costly than intervention in the European struggle along any lines we would be liable to follow. For in Europe we have no territorial hostages to fortune, like the Philippines, which might be lost and have to be reconquered by American forces at appalling cost. In Europe we should be in a supporting position, shielded by the ships and men of powerful Allies, whereas in the Pacific we should be in the front line, losing our own ships and men. And in Europe the extent of our effort would be subject to our own decision, whereas in the Pacific it would depend upon the decision of Japan.

It is the likelihood of such a conflict with Japan in the event of a German victory that loads the Greenland question with hidden dynamite. For if we became involved in such a conflict, we could not be so sure that the Reich would meet our occupation of Greenland with only a diplomatic protest. Her European victory might bring her some powerful units of the British and French fleets and allow her to utilize the navy of Italy. In that case, she and Japan would outclass us in naval power.

We should then be in no position to wage war successfully upon both our oceans simultaneously. And we should not have made the necessary preparations the defense of the South Atlantic against a victorious Germany would require, such as a vast expansion of our fighting fleet and the acquisition and development of bases in Brazil. The German leaders who believe they must fight us some day in the Atlantic might well be tempted to strike when conditions were so auspicious.

Off-Island Wife

IT'S PINKLETINK TIME on Marthas Vineyard, and the May flowers will soon be blooming in the oak woods. And, with Eitel Wolf Dobert's "Convert to Freedom" and Erika Mann's "The Lights Go Down," and Herbert Clyde Lewis' "Spring Offensive," the first novel of the new war, all staring angrily at me and demanding attention—after all, books like that have a news interest, and a daily book column should take account of news interest—I turned to Dionis Coffin Riggs' story of her grandmother, "From Off Island" (Whittlesey House, $2.75) and went happily to sea in a whaling ship, back in 1852, when it had not yet occurred to anyone to worry about submarines or to think of airplanes as anything but a glorious dream of the future, binding nation to nation and continent to continent in eternal peace and understanding.

Pinkletinks, in case you don't read the Vineyard Gazette, are what off-islanders call spring peepers. And the Vineyard Gazette, in case you don't know about it, is one of the few weeklies left in the United States which preserves authentic local flavor: it prospers without syndicated features. Dionis Coffin Riggs and her cooperative husband, Sidney Nokes Riggs (a mere off-islander, to be sure), passed hours with the files of the Vineyard Gazette, digging out the local color and detail which gives depth to this story, based upon the life story of her off-island grandmother, Mary Carlin, who, as an Irish girl of 16, en route from Sidney, Australia, to San Francisco, met Capt. James Cleaveland in Honolulu and, 17 days later, married him. The Gazette's files, old or new, almost smell of whale oil: it editors, thrifty twentieth century New Englanders, understand that New England's present wealth is her past.

So "From Off Island" glows with the color of Marthas Vineyard in whaling days. It's an odd book, winsomely amateurish in its writing, not quite a novel and not quite a biography. But you know as you read it that the Riggses had a grand time writing it—exploring the Gazette's files, the memories of oldest inhabitants, family legends and such precise records as existed—a sort of personal lark which the reader delightfully shares.

JAMES CLEAVELAND had left a fiancee behind him on the island when he went whaling with his first command. But she wasn't really his fiancee—she was an island girl of his mother's choice. And when he saw curly haired Mary Carlin, standing singing on the bow of the Emma Prescott as it warped its way into Honolulu Harbor, he knew she was his girl. She knew it, too, before a fortnight was past, and she never reached the sister in San Francisco to whom her mother was sending her. Instead, she sailed with James Cleaveland, back to Marthas Vineyard and to an island mother-in-law who disapproved of girls "from off" in general, and of Irish Catholic outlanders in particular. That Mary Ann Cleaveland was a strong character you can see in the turned-down corners of her mouth in the old photographs which illustrate "From Off Island."

The rest is Mr. Lewis' story. It is like no other war story I have ever read, I can assure you—unless you happen to have read Mr. Lewis' "Gentleman Overboard."

If Italy Pitches In

By Mark Sullivan

Effect On The United States

MUSSOLINI is moving toward taking Italy into the war on the side of Germany. It is worth while to consider how this, if it happens, would affect America's relation to the war.

It is frequently said that if it should ever become apparent that the Allies were about to be conquered, the United States would take notice and act in accord with our interests. As often put, America would in that event enter the war, the phrase "enter the war" meaning always something short of sending a conscripted army to Europe.

This is almost certainly true. We would probably act before the Allies were conquered—for the reason that if we waited until after the Allies were actually conquered, we should then be obliged to take a war-like step, regardless of our wish, and under conditions much less favorable to us.

MUSSOLINI

To visualize just what the conquering of Britain would mean, just what form it would take, is difficult. Because it is difficult to visualize, is a reason why we think it improbable. It is a reason why it actually is improbable. But we must put our minds on future contingencies, in order to have a program if and when they become actual.

If we visualize Britain conquered, then we must visualize Britain actually surrendering, submitting to the will of Germany. That would include surrender of the British navy, or previous destruction of it. It would include permission to Germany to take whatever of Britain's colonies and dependencies Germany might choose, in North America or elsewhere.

If that seemed probable, if it should become at any time apparent that this was going to take place a week or a month ahead, America would instantly take account of it. Any President in office would take account of it, and he would not be deterred by previous campaign pledges. Any Congress would take account of it, with practical unanimity.

ALMOST CERTAINLY a prompt action on our part would be to send our fleet to the British dependencies in the West Indies, before the German conquerors could take possession of them. In the state of mind we would then be in, seeing things as in those circumstances we would see them, there would be practically unanimous American opinion that we could not permit Germany to have possession of islands which are within an hour by air, and a few hours by battleship, from the Panama Canal and even our mainland.

We would advance to the British West Indies in pursuance of policies we have already adopted. We would do it as part of the Monroe Doctrine we have maintained for over 100 years—the doctrine which forbids the seizure by foreign nations of new possessions on the Western Hemisphere. We would do it as a part of our present program of national defense, adopted by an almost unanimous Congress, and practically universally assented to by the people. Prevention of such action as taking of the British West Indies by Germany is the direct purpose for which we are now arming. This has been stated over and over, authoritatively.

What we would do about those British West Indies, whether we would take them for ourselves, to hold as we hold Puerto Rico—that is not necessary to discuss now. What is certain is that we would not permit Germany to take them, hold them permanently, fortify them, use them as naval and air bases. To the extent of preventing that (at the very least), we would enter the war, if at any time it became apparent that Britain was about to be conquered. We might do more than that.

THIS, THEN, is certainly tenable to say: if at any time it became apparent that Britain was about to be conquered, in the complete sense, the United States would be under strong compulsion, in the pursuit of its own interest, to enter the war, this always meaning measures short of sending a conscripted army to Europe.

Hence any development which makes the conquering of the Allies more probable, is a development which presses the United States in the direction of participation in the war. One such development would be, entry of Italy on the side of Germany. Whatever may be the chance of the Allies being conquered, that chance is increased by Italy taking part.

Greater probability of America entering the war; greater probability of widening the war, so as later to include the United States and perhaps others; greater probability of making it really a world war—that is a factor which Mussolini ought to include when he considers whether he should take Italy in.

Every situation has an obverse. If Mussolini keeps Italy out of war, he to that extent helps to keep America out. By keeping Italy out, Mussolini might contribute greatly toward restricting the scope of the war. He might keep it a war confined to the present combatants. Keeping the war confined to the present combatants would tend toward the possibility of a negotiated peace.

If Mussolini keeps Italy out, and if he thereby contributes toward keeping America out, these two countries would be the large and powerful custodians of the interests of outsiders when the peace negotiations come.

A zebra may not change its stripes but a girl with imagination can use the zebra idea to change a perfectly plain blue crepe into a striking costume. Pretzel twists do the trick. The pastel patent belt, designed by Criterion, twists and turns in the same pretzel-like evolutions as the crown of the pastel sailor

The panda, that captivating ball of black and white fur, and the striped zebra are both responsible for some of fashion's spring whimsies. ### Thoughts on a Garden Tour

Why do afternoon shadows falling across stretches of greensward always make me feel so sadly nostalgic . . . And why is there no word to describe the smell of freshly cut young grass? . . . Or that elusive green of the newly unfolded leaves? . . . And why can't the wind decide whether it wants to chill or caress one?

How soft and assuaging to pavement bound feet is the feel of the earth? . . . Yet I hope I don't step into any swampy places . . . or wet grass . . . or soft mud. (I really shouldn't have worn my new gabardines). How strange—and also how fitting, that everyone should speak in hushed tones, as though they had suddenly entered a cathedral . . . Or do women's voices just sound more subdued in outdoor space.?

I wonder would those fashionably garbed "pilgrims" rapt in joy before the beds of narcissus and hyacinths be willing personally to do the dirty work to bring such beauty into being? . . . Would the mistress of the garden, for that matter, if she didn't have a strong-armed gardener around? . . . Well, would I, myself? . . . Not on your life! . . . Still—it is all "so devastatingly lovely," as everyone says . . . any maybe . . . some day . . . if I ever get a little place in the country . . .

Why do magnolias possess such a pensive beauty? . . . And make one feel so old and other-worldly? . . . And why do all the pilgrims have such refined spasms over boxwood? . . . Ah, what social importance would be mine if only I could become an expert in boxwood age guessing!

I wonder how many of these lady gardeners ever wear the snappy garden togs advertised in the fashion magazines when they poke around in their tulip beds . . . Where are the mistresses of these gardens, anyway? . . . Do I see one peeping out behind the curtain in that upstairs bedroom? . . . No, probably only a second chambermaid.

What are those clouds of white? . . . Ah, pear blossoms! And cherry! . . . And the fragrant plum! . . . How the delicate aroma of fruit blossoms used to hang over the old home place in April . . . and be wafted on the evening air along country roads. Oh, come, come! This will never do! See how perfectly trimmed and manicured is that boxwood hedge. . . And how huge and resplendent those nasturtiums growing on little tubbed tree! And how imposing the pilgrim in the silver foxes.

"I wonder did the old boys who had these gardens a century and a half ago—the "founding fathers" —keep the mjust this neat and spruce . . . and perfect . . . like seed catalogue pictures? . . . Or did they let them get run down at the heels—a weed here and there . . . tall, shaggy grass around the corners . . . Even as yours and mine?

Ah, here is an old friend—the dark myrtle, green and glistening, growing over a tree mound! . . . What did that pilgrim remark? . . . About "grandfather's estate" . . . Now, why do all old homesteads become estates in retrospect? And why were tulips always bigger, violets sweeter, pansies richer colored, climbing roses more lusty, "back home?"

Also why are those feminine pilgrims peeping in the garage? . . . To find out how many cars the family has? . . . How cheap and ill-mannered . . . Well, I'll bet they have at least four—from the size of the garage.

How restful and remote these little refuges walled in from all the unpleasantness and superficialities of the world. Places where people can get close to primal things—the earth . . . the wind . . . the sky . . . still—why do I hear such echoes as "hand-blocked print," "crush resistant linen," "darling little suit" from the pilgrims who pass me? . . . And what a perfectly stunning polka dot outfit on the woman over there by the hyacinths.

I wonder what all the pilgrims who have said "I could just live here forever!" would do if they really had the chance? And how many who have longed to "get down and roll in the grass" would really enjoy it . . . at least afterward.

How chill it is in the shadows! . . . Where is the sun anyway? The flowers even look tired . . . Why don't we all go and leave them in peace? . . . How reluctantly the pilgrims leave the garden . . . looking backward . . . then turning slowly to face the clamorous waiting world beyond.

Well, that is over . . . Was that the cry of a newsboy . . . I wonder what the late editions are saying about Norway.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Do we swing our arms in walking from habit or because it fulfills some function?

When man assumed the erect from their traditional function of aiding in the support and propulsion of the body. In spite of this, they instinctively move in the act of walking.

This action is not that of a pendulum; the movements are performed by muscular action. They perform functions, not only maintaining and helping equilibrium, but diminishing the clinical difficulties of walking by decreasing the rotation of the body as a whole about the vertical axis during the interval in which only one foot is on the ground. The swinging of the arms is, according to Eiftman, of Columbia University, an integral part of the dynamics of walking. Therefore, the follow who carries a cane and swings it is really helping himself move.

Has the food poisoning known as "botulism" been completely controlled in the United States?

No. An epidemic was reported from Los Angeles in December, 1939. Five outbreaks of botulism have occurred in the region of Los Angeles in the last two years. There is, however, little danger any more from foods that are manufactured and canned by commercial firms, because proper precautions are taken. One of the Los Angeles cases was due to eating home-canned stringbeans.

Botulism is a poisoning caused by the toxin of the germ which grows in a medium from which air has been excluded (in other words, an anaerobic organism).

Is there any scientific basis for a preference for rare or well-done meat?

Experimental studies of the effect on the nutritive value of food from cooking are of comparatively recent date. Morgan and King showed that the more prolonged the heating, the less efficient was meat in maintaining nitrogen balance and in promoting growth in young animals. This confirms the belief of most people that rare meat is the most nutritious. You have to eat more well-done steak or roast beef to get the essential growth-producing qualities.

Uplift in Brassiere Should Be From Below, Says Designer

Chief Rule in Purchasing Garment Should Be to Avoid Shoulder Drag, Warns Mme. Adrienne; Roominess Necessary

By Ida Jean Kain

WITH THE accent on a beautifully defined figure, it's throwing away money to disregard the difference a brassiere can make in the line of the bust.

Mme. Adrienne, originator of the uplift bra in America, says that, basically, there is one rule which can be followed in buying a brassiere which fits properly.

"The uplift must be from below, with no drag on the shoulders," she says. "There must be sufficient roominess to avoid pressure on the delicate upper muscles. Also, the brassiere should maintain classic proportion to the rest of the body. This means that, while uplifting, the bra should mold the bust into its original position."

Paradox Explained

The trick in a good brassiere is contradictory. It should, we're told, uplift and extend the breasts away from the body while molding the breasts back. But to make everything less complicated, Mme. Adrienne offers several suggestions for various figure problems. Today we'll talk about the large bust, and tomorrow about the small bust. Here is a digest of her theories, and we hope they help you.

The very full bust must be so fitted that in addition to overcoming other incidental problems, there is a natural separation without any bulge over the line of the bra. Also, the bulk must be so distributed that the bust seems to diminish in size. There are two general types of bra for this figure. The first is the bra with the pocket. This is a long line bra which conceals a cleverly contrived pocket from below. The remainder is lifted into its normal position, thus achieving the effect of a much smaller, better placed bust.

Distribution Type

The second type for the very full bust is the bra that distributes bulk. Stress is placed on a good middle separation, with a cup sufficiently high so that there is no bulge, even under the sheerest dress. There should be a gentle outspreading toward the arms and an inspreading from the arms at just the right angle of intersection to most effectively minimize the size. The angle of intersection should, of course, vary with the degree of fullness of the bust.

Although this type of figure may seem to require, in its all-over measurements, a size 34 bra, for example, the usual bra of that size will not answer the purpose. The woman with this figure needs a fuller size bra cup—the cup itself may range from a 34 to at 38 in size, but the back portion must be small to assure proper fit. Sometimes the back must correspond to a size 32 or 33. Special brassieres are made to fit this type of figure.

Before she was a designer, Mme. Adrienne was a dancer—and she firmly believes in exercises for the pectoral muscles which support the bust. Only diet will reduce the bust, but exercise improves muscle tone, making for a long contour.

Selective Spring Setting and Menu

SPRING showed up at a dinner table where I was a guest recently. Perhaps, the table setting and menu are ideas you will want to use in your home, as they were both selective.

Set on a cloth of gray linen and organdie with applique magnolia blossoms were delicate crystal scales whose trays held pink roses, making an effective centerpiece. The design on the white plates was twining ivy shoots and the green color was carried out further in the green and crystal glasses. The look of delicate elegance was carried out further in the flat sterling silver—Lunt's graceful William and Mary design. Sterling silver candlesticks, salt and pepper containers and porringer ash trays were in corresponding silver.

The hostess gave as much thought to her menu as she did the beautiful table setting. This was her menu:

Fresh Pineapple Cocktail
Consomme Madrillene Wafers
Spring Lamb Mint Jelly Peas
Parsley New Potatoes
Calavo Salad Hot Rolls
Strawberry Shortcake Coffee

The Calavo salad brought forth a great deal of comment (favorable) from the guests so I am giving you the recipe for it.

Calavo Salad

Lay slices of calavo on platter, sprinkle with French dressing, and let stand for one hour. Split a head of romaine in two, on each half lay a section of grapefruit, then a piece of a calavo, repeating until the Romaine is full. Pour French dressing over and garnish with thin slices of pimiento.

Joan Crawford Holds Interest Of Young Fans

New York, May 1

FILM STARS rise, shine brightly and then fizzle out, but Joan Crawford defies the years, a run of bad films and all rivals—in the hearts of her young fans in this town. No one is more courted and followed during her New York visits, and the kids love her faithfully. She, in turn, is always very nice to them.

I saw the girl at lunch at the Hampshire House the other day, looking extremely dramatic in an all-black ensemble. Her figure is just as beautiful today as when she broke in years ago, and her eyes just as bright and enormous. She and the former husband, Franchot Tone, are very palsy-walsy now, and they are seen together at night clubs when Joan's in town. He, of course, is now starring in the Hemingway play, "The Fifth Column," but he leaves it in June for a picture. He will return to the show come fall, it seems, for the play is now a hit.

It is Crawford's dream to appear in the living theater. Her only contact with the stage was as a chorus girl some 15 years back, and when she first went to Hollywood she posed for publicity stills and was a Charleston dancing champion. It was some years before she became a dramatic star and took up her real career of being pursued by evil playboys through endless miles of lush M.-G.-M. penthouses. Joan was always the poor, pure working girl arousing the baser natures of the boys.

Broadway gossips now say that she and Tone are plotting a co-starring venture along Broadway next season. The team would be a box-office natural of great power, and even a mediocre play would serve them as a vehicle. Quite a girl, this Crawford, from any angle, including the camera.

Changing Humdrum Life, Chief Feminine Problem

Women Are Mostly Unhappy Because They Do Not Contribute Freely of Their Talents, Says Dr. Nutall, 'Friendly Counselor'

By Genevieve Reynolds

ECONOMIC insecurity, chaotic state of world conditions, small apartments and scarcity of men do not concern Washington women nearly so muh as their inability to satisfy the soul searing creative urge. Tied down by mechanical, dull routine jobs, scores of women here—especially Government workers in all salary brackets—find living a humdrum affair.

That this condition is prevalent is manifested by the large number of women from all strata of society, who repeatedly seek advice from Dr. Maude S. Nutall, personality consultant, and a former pupil of the late Dr Alfred Adler, famous Viennese psychologist. Known as the "Friendly Counselor," Dr. Nutall has had at least 10 women coming to her each day for help since she established the "Friendly Counselor" Bureau in January.

"Out of this number," she said, "90 per cent were soul hungry. Many women brood so deeply along this line that they often reach the complex or neurotic stage. Those who do not reach that state are vastly unhappy, because they have not found a way to satisfy the intangible things of the soul."

Want Spiritual Growth

These conclusions have been arrived at by stacks of written material that has accumulated in the counselor's files. Whenever a man or woman comes for a personal interview, Dr. Nutall asks the applicant to write out the things that he or she would like to gain most. Almost without exception so far each has been interested in spiritual growth rather than material advancement. To build up an emotional reserve to face life's issues squarely without fear was a predominent wish expressed.

One woman wrote, "I want to live positively and never negatively. Also to learn to share the gifts that I possess so they will give joy and build up others." Her chief aim, she said, was to be able to attract interesting, forceful personalities, both male and female, who would enrich her life.

Another's desire was to discover mistaken ideas about herself and to get an accurate appraisal of her talents, capabilities, likes and dislikes. In general, all expressed longings to create full interesting lives that would bring peace of mind and soul.

Development of Hobby Interest

Looking about them, these people became disillusioned with the life of other people," said Dr. Nutall. "Therefore, they begin to turn their thoughts inwardly so as to avoid reaching that state of cynicism and gropiness evident in the lives of many today. Faith in themselves and in the future is the cry of those who would know themselves."

While considering each person's needs in offering solution to a problem, Dr. Nutall generally Advises "a freer outlet of creative energies, and development of hobby interest to make for a fuller and happy life."

"Learn to contribute unstintedly," advised this woman, the crux of whose teaching and philosophy is giving rather than receiving. She pointed out that the unhappy woman is usually one who is not contributing enough to life. Therefore, she gets in a rut and soon becomes bored and dissatisfied with life. Or else she cringes at facing unpleasant situations.

As a whole, women in Washington are more high minded in the sense of possessing high ideals and in their constant effort to find the real values of life, rather than accepting the artificial and superficial things often credited to them, according to Dr. Nutall.

From her interviews with more than a thousand women in the last few weeks and many others over a period of years, she said that she found women were taking marriage more seriously than in previous years. Instead of jumping into matrimony with the idea of ending it if things don't work out, they analyze the situation and attempt to discover before leaping whether or not it has a chance to be permanent. "Both men and women," she said, "are tired of marriage for a day—they want to be sure that it will last."

Movie Stars Recipe

Favorite topic of a group of girls rehearsing dance numbers for "Have It Your Own Way," was food and how to cook it. Over the luncheon table in the commissary, Maureen O'Hara, who is to star in the picture, told the gang her favorite recipe for baked eggs. Maureen places a shallow casserole, containing a tablespoon of butter, in a hot oven. When butter melts, she carefully breaks in the eggs, adds salt and pepper and grated cheese. She says use a liberal hand with the cheese. Bake about five minutes. Garnish with a dust of paprika before serving.

Lamp Selection Requires Care

Here are the things to look for in a lamp:

1. Light-colored linings in shades so they'll reflect more light.
2. Diffusing bowl to soften the glare from bulbs and to increase the reflecting surface.
3. Color that harmonizes with the color scheme of your room.
4. Designs that are simple, proportions that are pleasing.
5. Size to provide adequate light, and that means consideration of the following types: (a) A high or senior lamp with three-intensity bulb for large rooms with high ceilings or, when only one lamp is used, for a large area; (b) medium or junior lamp for small rooms and low furniture; (c) lounge lamp (very low) for low chairs; (d) bridge lamp for variety.

Beauty More Than Cosmetic Deep

According to modern standards for a good complexion, cosmetics have an important place but only as supplementary factors. Relatively little fundamental complexion beauty comes out of a bottle or jar. Lovely skin comes first of all from such simple homely things as sane diet, fresh air, rest, and bathing. As for local care of the complexion, nothing has ever superseded that good old fashioned treatment—frequent washing with soap and water and drying with clean towels.

Knowing that fresh, clear skin is the greatest of all beauty asetss, the modern woman studies her face with the aid of a magnifying mirror in bright daylight.

Farleys to Accompany Robert Guests on Trip To Churchill Downs; Warrenton Races Also to Draw Host of D. C. Notables

By Hope Ridings Miller

SIGNS OF THE SEASON point to a quiet time in the old town this week-end—what with scores of Capitalites already off to the horse country, either of Kentucky or Virginia, and flocks of others packing their bags to leave tomorrow.

A crowd of around 20,000 is expected in Warrenton for the Virginia Gold Cup meet, and it's anybody's guess as to how many will turn up at Churchill Downs for the famous Kentucky Derby.

Hope Ridings Miller

In keeping with custom, Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., will take down two carloads of notables whose names make news, and the round of festivities planned for all those lucky enough to be going along is something to make anybody sit up and take notice.

Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley head the list of guests in the Robert contingent, and others include such big names as the United States Minister to Canada, James A. Cromwell, whose wife is already in the South and will meet the party in Kentucky; WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McEvoy, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Walker, of Honolulu; Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Martin L. Cannon, of Charlotte, N. C.; Herbert Bayard Swope, Sol Rosenblatt, Vincent Bendix, Robert Leahman, and, of course, Mrs. Robert, wife of the host, who wouldn't be caught missing the Derby for anything you can mention.

The party will step on the train at Union Station tomorrow afternoon at 6:20 p. m., and will arrive at their destination at 9 o'clock the next morning. Buses will take them to Churchill Downs about 10:30 a. m., and at noon there will be Mrs. Samuel Conner's breakfast in honor of the Postmaster General.

Brilliant is the word for the list of bigwigs who have accepted Mrs. Conner's invitation to attend her party, which will take place in the private dining room at Churchill Downs. In addition to those in the Robert company, a few of the notables expected to be present are Leopold Stokowski, the Governor of Kentucky and Mrs. Keen Johnson; the Governor of Tennessee, Prentiss Cooper; the Governor of Missouri and Mrs. Lloyd Stark, Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Senator and Mrs. A. B. Chandler, George Schafer, president of R.-K.-O. motion picture studio; Ambrose O'Connell, Second Assisstant Postmaster General; Thomas H. McInnerney, Eugene Stetson and Martin W. Clement and Walter S. Franklin, president and vice president, respectively, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

The Ambassador of Colombia, Gabriel Turbay; the Dominican Minister, Andres Pastoriza, and the Resident Commissioner of the Philippines, Joaquin Elizalde, are others who have accepted Mrs. Conner's bid to breakfast. Incidentally, the invitations went out in a handsomely bound folder, tied at the corner with a silken cord. I haven't seen anything quite like them in years.

As a prelude for Derby day festivities Kentuckians have a gala celebration scheduled for Friday, when the Stephen Collins Foster postage stamp goes on sale. The commemorative ceremony will take place in the Old Kentucky Home at Bardtown, Ky., and high point of the program will be a Nation-wide broadcast at 11 a. m.

Walter Connolly and Ken Murray, of Hollywood, will be masters of ceremonies. Irene Dunne will be on hand to trill two famous Foster melodies. Bing Crosby will also be there to sing "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Sewannee River," and there will be such goings-on for well over an hour as to make the whole radio-listening world Kentucky conscious in general, and Foster-conscious in particular.

PARTIES TO COME: Senator and Mrs. Millard E. Tydings have issued invitations to a luncheon on Sunday, May 26, at Oakington, their estate near Havre de Grace, Md. . . . Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould will entertain at a tea on Tuesday, May 21, in honor of debutantes Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, who are having quite a whirl. . . Mrs. Lister Hill will be hostess at a luncheon on Thursday, May 9, at Mrs. K's Toll House Tavern. . . and—Senora Mariana L. C. de Valdes will give a luncheon that same day in honor of Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

Miss Anne Leith Married to A. C. Randolph, Jr., In Surprize Ceremony at Leesburg, Va.

MISS ANNE LEITH and Archie Cary Randolph, jr., both of Middleburg, were married quietly yesterday afternoon in Leesburg, Va. Their only attendant was Edward Shirley Turner, jr., who acted as best man.

The bride and bridegroom are popular young members of Virginia's hunting set. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louie C. Leith, and a member of Middleburg Hunt. Her father, "Louie" Leith, is perhaps the best known sportsman and horseman of Virginia as well as America.

Mr. Randolph is the son of Dr. Archibald Cary Randolph, M. F. H. of Piedmont Hunt, and the late Mrs. Terry Dulany Randolph. Dr. Randolph is also a well known sportsman and horseman, so this young couple come by their love of horses and riding naturally.

The bridegroom is a member of Piedmont Hunt, an amateur steeplechase rider and an athlete. He is also an expert pilot. Two years ago he went to China, where he was an instructor in the Chinese army. He had many thrilling and interesting experiences there, his family did not hear from him for a year. Finally through the State Department he was ordered home. He is at present manager and instructor at the Winchester Airport.

A BRIDAL PARTY was given for the bride and bridegroom last night by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shirley Turner, at their home, Goodstone, near Middleburg, when many of the young people of the neighborhood were asked in to wish them happiness. When Mr. and Mrs. Randolph left for wedding trip, they traveled in a delux trailor, a present from his aunt, Mrs. A. C. Randolph, sr.

The bride wore the gown she was married in—a navy blue and white crepe, a blue and white turban, blue shoes, white bag and a dark blue tweed top coat. Upon their return they will make their home in Winchester.

ALL ROADS today will lead to the Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, which will begin this morning and continue through tomorrow. The event, which began in a small way 17 years ago, now includes a parade and pageant second only to that of New Orleans' famous Mardi Gras.

A number of parties will be given in honor of Senorita Lilian Somoza, Queen Shenandoah XVII, who arrived in Winchester yesterday and will stay until Saturday morning. From Winchester she and some of her princesses will go to Warrenton to attend the Virginia Gold Cup races.

SENORITA SOMOZA is the house guest of Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, who will entertain today at a luncheon of the Queen and 30 princesses. This afternoon Her Majesty will be crowned in an impressive ceremony, and this evening Miss Margaret Byrd will give a dinner party in honor of the royal party. The dinner will take place at Kentmore, the home of Thomas Byrd in Clarke County. Large balls will take place each night during the Apple Blossom Festival. The parade will take place tomorrow night

AMONG THE 30 princesses will be Miss Margaret Pegram Holt, of Newport News, who is widely known in Winchester and has visited Mrs. Joseph Massey there frequently. Miss Holt is representing Stuart Hall School, Staunton, Va. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pegram Holt, of Newport News, and a niece of the late Lieut. Gov. Saxon W. Holt. Her mother is the former Nora Herbert, of Muskross, Seminary Hill.

MISS HOLT'S GRANDFATHER was the late Arthur Herbert, one of the founders of Burke & Herbert, Bankers, of Alexandria. Mrs. Holt, who will be in Winchester to see her daughter take part in the pageant, has many friends in Winchester.

AMONG THE PROMINENT visitors to Warrenton over the week-end will be Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., who will be staying with Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenneth Jenkins, at Nordix Farm.

Dinner Is Given By French Envoy

The French Ambassador, Count de Saint Quentin, entertained at a dinner last evening at the Embassy. The party was one in a series planned for this season.

Ranking guests were the Minister of Rumania and Mme. Irimescu, the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopoulos, and Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary.

Jane Maverick, W. B. McMillan Are Married at Saint Alban's

Bride's Sister Is Matron of Honor; Reception in Guild Hall Follows Rites; Couple to Live in San Antonio, Tex.

Sprays of white flowers adorned Saint Alban's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Jane Lewis Maverick and William Blair McMillan, of San Antonio, Tex. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Maverick, jr., of this city. The Rev. Charles T. Warner and the Rev. Gresham Marmion officiated at the 5:30 o'clock ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a brocaded ivory satin gown made on princess lines with a heart-shaped neckline, full skirt and long train. Her veil of tulle was caught with a sprig of fresh orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Robin Bruce Epler, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She was gowned in pink mousseline de soie, fashioned with a lace-trimmed bodice and bouffant skirt. Also attending were Mrs. Junius W. Jones, in a yellow gown, and Mrs. John S. Lambie, another sister of the bride, in blue. They carried spring bouquets of baby's breath, delphinium and pink carnations.

Miss Amelia Epler, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a blue organza dress trimmed with rosebuds and a garland of flowers in her hair.

Sam McMillan, brother of the bridegroom, of Corpus Christi, Texas, served as best man. Ushers were Joe Shelton, jr., of Kingsville, Texas; Charles F. MacMullon, of this city; Lieut. Robin Bruce Epler, of Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and John S. Lambie, of Long Island.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception in St. Alban's Guild Hall. Bridal wreath, palms and smilax festooned the rooms for the occasion. Following their honeymoon the couple will make their home in San Antonio.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding included Mrs. R. J. McMillan, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Sam S. McMillan, of Texas; Mrs. Reuben Maury, of Charlottesville, Va.; Mrs. Fred Tice, of Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. George Bondurant, of Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Perkins Fetes Helen Gahagan

Miss Helen Gahagan, the actress, was guest of honor at a dinner given last night by Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor. In private life, Miss Gahagan is the wife of screen idol Melvin Douglas, and both are active workers for the Democratic Party.

The other guests last night were Justice Frank Murphy, Senator and Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish, Isador Lubin and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis.

Ashtons Return From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Henry George Ashton, whose marriage took place last month, have returned from their wedding trip and are making their home at 1575 Spring place. Mrs. Ashton is the former Miss Anna Frances Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Franklin Smith. Her husband is the son of Mrs. R. A. Ashton and the late Lieut. Comdr. Ashton.

Only close friends and relatives attended the wedding, at which the Rev. Orris G. Robinson officiated at Calvary Methodist Church on April 21. Immediately after the wedding the couple left for a brief trip to Williamsburg, Va.

Mary Eugenia Coleman To Receive at Tea

Miss Mary Eugenia Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gravatt Coleman, will receive with her mother and her grandmother, Mrs. Guy Evans Mauldin, at a tea to be given May 18 at their home on Macomb street.

Later, Miss Coleman and the group of debutantes assisting her will go on to the Army-Navy Country Club to a dinner party and dance. Miss Coleman was graduated from the National Cathedral School last June.

Also in the party were Mrs. Merle Thorpe, wife of the editor of Nation's Business, and Mrs. Ralph Bradford, whoshe husband is secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Pauline Curtis To Bow June 7

Interesting is the news that Miss Pauline Curtis will make her bow to society here on June 7 at a dinner dance to be given by her mother, Mrs. John Messick Gross, the former Laura Curtis. The party, naturally, will be held in the 1925 F street club, which was the home of Mrs. Gross until she turned it into a club a few years back.

At present, Miss Curtis attends St. Timothy's School, Catonsville, Md. This bud will have a twirl in several cities before her debut year is out. Mrs. George H. "Pete" Bostwick will entertain at a dinner for her young sister on Long Island sometime during the season there. Mrs. Gross will also entertain for her daughter next winter in New York.

The debutante's father is James F. Curtis, one-time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. She is the sister of James F. Curtis, jr., and Frazier Curtis.

Dynamic Mrs. Gross, who as Mrs. Laura Curtis spent most of her time in Washington before her marriage, is the daughter of the late William R. Merriam, former Governor of Minnesota. She is the sister of Mrs. Wallach Merriam who resides here and is now the guiding spirit in the F street club. Mrs. Gross divides her time between her estate in Sucon Valley, Pa., and her apartment at Hampshire House since her marriage to Mr. Gross, vice president of the Bethelehem Steel Co.

Bishop and Mrs. Freeman Honored at Sulgrave Club

Chapter and Council of Cathedral And Women's Committees Are Hosts At Dinner Marking Golden Wedding

The Sulgrave Club was the scene of a large dinner party last night given in honor of Bishop and Mrs. James E. Freeman, who recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Hosts at the dinner were the Chapter and Council of the Washington Cathedral and the women's committees of the National Cathedral Association.

Former United States Senator, George Wharton Pepper, presided at the dinner with Miss Mary E. Johnston, chairman of the women's committees, assisting.

Among the after dinner speakers were former Assistant Secretary of State William R. Castle, representing the Cathedral Chapter; the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown, the Cathedral Council; Walter B. Clarkson, representing the National Cathedral Association of which he is president, and the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Cathedral, speaking for the Cathedral clergy.

Diocesan officials as well as members of the Cathedral staff of clergy and their wives were present. Among the members of Bishop Freeman's family present were his son-in-law and daughter, Canon and Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven and his son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. William V. Freeman.

In keeping with the golden wedding motif the flowers and decorations were all in yellow and the place cards were edged with gold and each had a Pilgrim's medal tied with purple ribbon on it.

In the group of chapter and council members and their wives at the dinner, in addition to those already mentioned were Mrs. Noble C. Powell, the Rev. Dr. Ansen Phelps Stokes, accompanied by Mrs. Stokes' sister; Miss Anna V. S. Mitchell, Miss Alma Ruggles, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. R. Ogilby, Canon and Mrs. William M. Bradner, Canon and Mrs. T. O. Hedel.

Others in the cathedral group were Honorary Canon and Mrs. Franklin J. Bohanan, Honorary Canon and Mrs. Clyde Brown, Canon Edward S. Dunlap, Canon Albert H. Lucas and Mrs. Lucas, the Rev. James Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Richard W. Hynson, Miss Mabel B. Turner, Miss Elizabeth Canaday, field secretary of the National Cathedral Association.

Legislators to Greet Democratic Women

3,000 Will Descend Today on Capitol For Tour of Inspection; They Belong To Party's Institute of Government

By Jessie Ash Arndt

"Mrs. Democrat" will descend on Capitol Hill today 3,000 strong. Unlike marchers who come with demands, she will be "just looking, thank you" and her visit is one which members of Congress not only expect but welcome.

The visitors will be the Democratic women here from all parts of the United States for the Institute of Government sponsored by the woman's division of the Democratic National Committee. In bus loads of 40 they will go from the Washington Hotel, headquarters of the institute, to the House Office Building and in groups of 100 will start on the inspection tour at six-minute intervals.

The women will assemble in the Ways and Means Committee's room, which is not usually open to the public and is considered one of the most beautiful on the Hill. Its lighting gives the effect of the sun rising from behind golden eagles at the four corners of the room. The use of it was secured through the courtesy of Representative Robert Doughton, chairman of the committee, whose daughter, Miss Reba Doughton, is a member of Mrs. Charles Wood Collier's committee. Mrs. Collier is general chairman of the tour and has 85 women working under her. She will introduce the visitors to Mrs. Thomas Ford, of California, who is chairman of the reception committee of Congressional wives.

The women are acting as guides and managing the event themselves except for the assistance of the police. The guides will all be designated by corsages of yellow daffodils and those who are wives of members of Congress will also wear iris.

Members of the House and Senate will come from the floor to address each group of women. Headed by Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead, they will include Senator Alben Barkley and Representative Sam Rayburn, majority leaders of the Senate and House; the whips, Senator Sherman Minton and Representative Patrick J. Boland, and the Democratic women in Congress, Senator Hattie Caraway, Representative Mary Norton, Representative Caroline O'Day and Representative Clara McMillan.

The women will leave the House Office Building, guided by the police, and enter the House Wing of the Capitol, where they will ascend the East Grand staircase to the gallery and will be permitted to view the House in session. From there they will traverse the core of the building, passing through the various galleries, pausing under the great Rotunda and going to the Senate Wing for a brief visit.

From there the police will conduct them to the Supreme Court building, where special guides will show them the Supreme Court room. They will go next to the Library of Congress to view the reading room from the gallery and see some of the historic documents now on view. Buses will meet them there to take them to the tea, being given in their honor at the Woman's National Democratic Club this afternoon.

Each woman will be given a calendar of the bills pending and will have a first-hand glimpse of how legislation is carried through.

Luncheon Today

The red team of the Kenilworth Ladies Guild will serve a covered dish luncheon today at noon at the home of Mrs. Sam Green, 4426 Ord street northeast, with Mrs. C. J. Saunders as chairman. Games will follow the luncheon.

Flower Mart Successful Despite Rain

The LeGallaises Guests at Tea Of Newswomen

The Charge d'Affaires of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais were guests of honor yesterday afternoon at a tea given by the Newspaper Women's Club at the Raleigh Hotel.

Greeted as they arrived by Miss Alice Eversman, entertainment chairman, they expressed delight at finding a hostess who spoke both French and Italian. Miss Katherine Brooks, club president, received with them.

In an informal talk, the Luxembourg envoy told interesting things concerning his country with its 300,000 population, among them the fact that there were no women there in the newspaper profession.

Among the guests were Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. William N. Doak, Mrs. Emil Hurja, who had just come from a meeting at the Finnish Legation, and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose.

Mrs. Roosevelt Pays Visit To Guild's Flower Mart

Third-Grade Pupils Dance Around Maypole In Rain; Miss Rosalind Wright's Boutonniere Committee Wins First Prize

A maypole dance in the rain, with Mrs. Roosevelt chief among the spectators was a feature of the flower mart, sponsored yesterday by All Hallows Guild of the Washington Cathedral on the Pilgrim Steps.

The girls, in flowered muslin dresses, and their young partners were drenched but enthusiastic as they performed the dance.

They were pupils of the third grade of Beauvoir, elementary school of the National Cathedral group. They appeared surprised when their performance was over to find their hair sticking to their faces and their wet clothes clinging to them. The ribbons on the maypole looked fresh despite the rain and were like an animated rainbow as the children wove in and out.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who stood on the steps to watch, was met by a group from the guild as she arrived, and the rain began like a signal of her coming. In the welcoming group were Miss Bell Gurnee, general chairman of the committee; Mrs. Charles Wharton Pepper, of Devon, Pa.; Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. Daniel Knowlton.

Protected by awnings, the booths were undamaged by the rain. The women on the various committees were supplied with transparent raincoats and capes which they donned quickly as the brief downpour began.

Mme. Procope, wife of the Minister of Finland, was among those assisting at Miss Gurnee's booth where stained glass containers were being sold.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, wearing a blue smock and a large garden hat trimmed with cornflowers, was among the "vitamines," as Mrs. Charles Warren named members of the committee serving at her booth where fruits and vegetables were being sold. This booth was awarded second prize on its artistic decorations composed of vegetables and strings of gourds.

The first prize was won by Miss Rosalind Wright's boutonniere committee. Yellow and white were completely carried out in the decorations with cut flowers and trays of boutonnieres in those colors, against a white background.

The Sandy Spring Garden Club was awarded third prize on its "kitchen cupboard" with foods for sale which had been made from the famous Quaker recipes of the Sandy Spring community. Pink and white wall paper was used as a backround and white shelves were lined with jams and jellies. Mrs. William H. Hough was the chairman.

Honorable mention went to the seedling booth of Mrs. Howard C. Davidson; to the Trowel Club of Wesley Heights for its cart, with Mrs. Dion Birney as chairman, and to the Community Club of Bethesda for its flower booth, Mrs. William G. Jones, jr., chairman.

Judges were W. H. Youngman, Mrs. Fairfax Harrison and Miss Rose Greeley.

Mrs. Owen D. Roberts was in charge of the "tea table," assisted by Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock. This was a green and white tent in which tea was served and, nearby, were tables beneath striped umbrellas. The tea table was appointed with a yellow cloth and yellow dishes and a silver service.

Several hundred patronized the mart.

New President Is Elected By City Club

Gladys B. Middlemiss Chosen to Succeed Marjorie Webster

Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss last night was elected president of the Women's City Club to succeed Miss Majorie Webster, who has completed her two-year term.

Mrs. Middlemiss is a life member of the club and served as acting president at the close of Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley's presidency while Mrs. Wiley was on a world tour.

Other officers who will serve with her are Mrs. Gus A. Schuldt, first vice president; Mrs. Helen M. Montague, recording secretary; Miss Webster, Mrs. John Bennett, Mrs. George B. Hartman, Mrs. John M. Glover, Mrs. Josephine Craven Horner, directors; Mrs. Aurie B. Allen, Miss Lottie Anderson and Mrs. Frederick Yates, delegates to the federation.

Mrs. Frances Williams was chairman of the election committee.

The new officers were elected at the annual business meeting in the clubhouse on Jackson place last night. Reports of officers were presented, including that of Miss Webster, covering her administration as president. One of the progressive steps, taken soon after she took office was the formation of the junior guild, composed of younger members of the club, which has become an active unit in the organization.

There is now a membership of approximately 500.

Women Voters Plan to Banish Discrimination

New York, May 1 (AP).—The National League of Women Voters has determined to stamp out what remains of legal discriminations against women in the United States.

The national board today created an office of special director of "remaining discriminations against women" and recommended that groups in States where discriminations still exist work with the director toward eliminating all laws which "hamber women's effectiveness as citizens."

The announcement was made at the national convention of the league, which heard also a report of its nominating committee placing the following in nomination:

President, Mrs. Marguerite N. Wells, Minneapolis; first vice president, Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, Washington; second vice president, Mrs. Richard Field, Weston, Mass.; secretary, Mrs. Paul Eliel, Stanford University, and treasurer, Mrs. Walter T. Fisher, Winnetka, Ill.

In addition, these were nominated for four directorships: Mrs. George Gellhorn, St. Louis; Mrs. Francis Donaldson, Tuckahoe, N. C.; Mrs. Ruric N. Smith, Tulsa, Okla., and Mrs. Elliott R. Corbett, Portland.

Stop Hearsay About Women Who Work, Dr. Minnie Maffett, Club Leader, Urges

DR. MINNIE L. MAFFETT, of Dallas, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, issued a statement this week, urging the American people to "do some quite thinking, to stop circulating 'People say' nonsense against women who work."

Dr. Moffett pointed out the mistake of quoting what "people say" about the effect of women workers on the employment situation. Facts tell a different story from that circulated by hearsay.

Last year in 20 States bills were introduced in legislatures, designed to restrict the employment of married women. This was during the administration of Earlene White, of this city, as president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Taking prompt action to combat the trend, she established a fact-finding bureau at the national headquarters in New York to determine just why women worked and what proportion of married women in business were supporting their children or their aged parents or possibly supplementing the small income provided by the husband.

"Pressure and sob stuff are over so far as business women are concerned," she said yesterday. "The members throughout the different States have substantial facts to present to the legislators to back their arguments against discriminatory measures. Efficiency, and ability and not sex nor marital status should determine who should have what job."

Miss White was in Baltimore yesterday to address a meeting of the Woman's Club of Towson, Md., at the Emerson Hotel. Tomorrow, she will preside at the round table on "Federal Aids to Unemployed" in connection wit hthe National Institute on Government sponsored by the women's division of the Democratic National Committee. Mrs. Florence Kerr, assistant commissioner of Works Projects Administration, will be the speaker.

Then, of course, she is one of the hostesses for the delegation of Mississippi women here for the institute.

Mrs. Pat Harrison, wife of Senator Harrison, is chairman of arrangements for the Mississippi group, and has planned a breakfast for the members tomorrow morning at the Department of Commerce.

In addition to wives of the Mississippi congressional delegation, she is being assisted by Miss White, Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth, president of the local B. and P. W. Club, and Ellen S. Woodward, of the Social Security Board, who is also president of the Mississippi society.

ELECT TODAY—The Twentieth Century Club, meeting at the Y. W. C. A. this morning, will elect several officers for two-year terms. Like many other clubs here, the Twentieth Century loses only part of its officers each year, electing half of them in alternate seasons.

Today Mrs. Lawrence Martin, who is unopposed for president, will be elected to succeed Mrs. Edward G. Montgomery, now completing her two-year term, and Mrs. William T. Clerk will be elected without opposition for corresponding secretary.

There are two candidates for first vice president, Mrs. Alfred H. Brooks and Mrs. Edwin N. Nourse. Candidates for the board (five to be elected) are Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. R. Winston Holt, retiring corresponding secretary; Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. William Walter Husband, Mrs. John Blake Gordon, Mrs. D. Agnew Greenlees, Mrs. Hanson T. A. Lemon, Mrs. Frank M. Eliot, Mrs. Basil M. Manly and Mrs. Ulysses G. B. Pierce.

76th Club Concludes Year's Regular Meetings

The 76th Club held its last regular meeting of the year yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club. It was a luncheon with Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns, jr., of Tennessee, the president, presiding.

The hostess' States this month were Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Each gave as souvenirs products for which the State is known. New Jersey provided for the luncheon orchids and apple cider. Mrs. George Gillie, of Indiana, was in charge of arrangements.

About 100 members were present.

Get Vitamin B1 for your Nerves

When the body craves these vital elements, a rich supply can put color in your cheeks and help you feel like a new person WITHOUT ALCOHOL OR HABIT-FORMING DRUGS.

When your system is low in iron and Vitamin B1 many vital organs slow down—you often look pale, lose your appetite, get tired easily, sleep poorly, and feel nervous and played out. Iron helps make red blood, and red blood is vital for healthy muscles, healthy skin, healthy glands and healthy organs. Iron-poor blood may cause low vitality, heart palpitations, shortness of breath, swollen ankles and frequent periods of ill health.

You need Vitamin B1 and if you don't have enough Vitamin B1 you may get a painful neuritis, stomach upsets, constipation, weak appetite, mental depression, restless sleep.

In these conditions, take ENRICH, the thrilling new tonic that tastes like juice of wild berries and gives you more iron every day than 6 lbs. of spinach or 6 lbs. of raisins; more Vitamin B1 daily than ½ lb. of baker's yeast. Your pep comes back with a bounce when you restore missing iron and Vitamin B1 and you eat more, stop worrying, and sleep better. Right in this neighborhood many men, women and children feel keen and lead happier lives, through the help of ENRICH. Don't wait. ENRICH costs only a few cents a day. Money refunded unless ENRICH improves your state of well-being.

NLRB Policy Peril to Capital, Chamber Told

Rep. Smith Asks Aid In Fight to Amend Wagner Labor Act

Representative Howard Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, declared yesterday that the capitalistic system in the United State is menaced if the policy followed by the National Labor Relations Board in administering the Wagner Act is not changed.

Smith, who is chairman of the House committee investigating the NLRB, spoke at one of the afternoon round table conferences which featured the third day of the twenty-eighth annual meeting here of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Last night chamber delegates from 43 States broke bread with 360 Senators and Representatives at 26 State dinners. In the speechmaking, they proposed changes in New Deal laws to aid business, and heard suggestions from members of Congress as to what business might do to help them with their legislative problems.

Defending Wagner Act amendments which his committee has proposed, Representative Smith asked the chamber delegates to help him in the fight to obtain the enactment of "fair" changes in the act.

The chamber was expected to adopt, at its closing meeting today, a resolution insisting that the United States should stay out of the European war.

Controversy on Neutrality

There has been a behind-the-scenes controversy within chamber ranks over the neutrality question since the annual meeting began Monday. An Eastern group has tried to have the organization go on record as favoring further relaxation of this country's neutrality policy. A Middle Western group has been fighting for a rigid isolationist declaration.

The final result likely will be a compromise, it was indicated. Expectation is that the chamber will point out that the United States would be in a better position to work for post-war reconstruction by staying out than by getting in.

A movement has been under way to have the chamber go on record as favoring continuance of the Johnson Act ban on loans to governments in default on their war debts. The decision, however, appeared to be to let this matter go over, since it is not a live issue at present.

May Temper Criticism

Between 20 and 25 resolutions likely will be adopted, it was learned. Criticism of Administration spending policy, the size of the Government debt, the administration of the Wagner Act by the NLRB, the "easy money" policy, high taxes, Government regulation in several phases, the administration of relief, and the wage-hour act is looked for.

It was indicated, however, that the criticism would be less severe than in some previous years. The emphasis is said to be on constructive suggestions which perhaps would bring to the attention of candidates in the coming Presidential campaign the reasoned judgment of businessmen with regard to vital issues.

Smith said two decisions by the NLRB, one of which was handed down in the last two weeks, might well cause businessmen to "cogitate as to what will happen to private capitalism in this country if something is not done to correct this situation."

Discrimination Charged

He referred to rulings made by the board in cases involving Waumbec Mills, Inc., Manchester, N. H., and the Milan Shirt Manufacturing Co., Milan, Tenn.

In the former case, he said, the board ordered the company to give jobs to two men whom it had never employed and to pay them wages for the time they were denied employment. In the latter case, he explained, a new company succeeded a previous company. Although about 200 of the old company's employes were not taken back, he said, a question was raised over the failure to reemploy 42 of the old company's employes who were C. I. O. members.

In this case, as in the former, Smith declared, the board found that the workers had been discriminated against because of union affiliation. The company was ordered to reinstate the 42 workers and to pay them back wages for the time they had lost because of refusal to reemploy them.

NLRB officials said the rulings were made under a provision of the Wagner Act intended to safeguard against employer blacklists of union members.

"The American public has lost confidence in the present labor board," Smith declared. It cannot be restored, he said, unless a new board is appointed. The Administration proposal merely to add new members will not suffice, he argued.

Chamber delegates, who jammed the room to hear Smith, greeted his remarks with prolonged applause.

Foreign loans by the United States favored and opposed by speakers at a round-table conference on the effect of the war on American foreign trade.

C. M. Wynne, Chicago, managing director of Overseas Industries, Inc., suggested that some of this country's record gold stocks might be used to finance self-liquidating ventures in Latin-America provided safeguards could be set up against expropriation and other hazards.

"Rebirth of Moral Values" Needed

The question of the policy to be followed with regard to foreign loans was raised by George E. Quisenberry, New York, vice president of the Business Publishers' International Corporation, who urged businessmen to start working now "for the renaissance of a liberal world" at the conclusion of the war. Unless trade principles such as those championed by Secretary of State Hull prevail, he argued, "the American way of existence" is doomed.

These suggestions caused Elvin H. Killheffer, of the legal department of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., to remark that there would have to be "a rebirth of moral values" before foreign loans could be made on the old-time basis again.

Those present agreed that recent displays of "international gangsterism" would hardly revive faith that foreign loans would be honored.

Quisenberry said "the world has not advanced in moral and spiritual values," and that progress had been only on the "scientific and material" side.

Bishops Must Consult Clerics On Transfers

Methodist Conference Votes Prelates Should Be Merely 'Consecrated'

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, N. J., May 1.—The General Conference of the Methodist Church formally declared today that hereafter bishops should assign no pastor to any church without first making "all effort" to consult him.

Conference leaders said it was the first time in the history of "Methodist Episcopalianism" in the United States that bishops had been required by church law to consult with pastors as to where they were to be sent.

The "law" passed today by an overwhelming show of hands by conference delegates was described by Dr. Miron A. Morrill, of Chicago, chairman of the Methodist publicity committee, as "another manifestation of a movement further and further in the direction of democracy in church administration."

The new rule would not affect a bishop's power to assign any pastor where he thought best, but would assure each pastor advance notice of where he was going, and give him a chance to protest against undesirable assignment.

The delegates voted that bishops in the new church should be merely "consecrated," and not "ordinated or consecrated" as set forth in the rules drafted at the uniting conference in Kansas City last year.

That, explained Dr. Morrill, was the general conference's "very subtle way of reminding all bishops, present and future, that the Methodist Church regards them merely as general superintendents," who hold no higher ministerial rank than that of an elder.

National University debaters won a unanimous decision over a University of Maryland team when they met last night in the studio of Radio Station WOL.

Roosevelt Voted Stock Control Power

Without debate, the House completed Congressional action yesterday on legislation empowering President Roosevelt to regulate transactions in foreign-held American investments during emergencies.

The Senate-approved measure was called up by Representative Williams (Democrat), Missouri, and Acting Speaker Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, merely announced that without objection it was approved. It now goes to the President for signature.

The bill was drafted in reply to some questions that had been raised about the legality of an executive order of the President at the beginning of Germany's invasion of Scandinavia which would "freeze" Danish and Norwegian credits in this country and thus prevent their withdrawal.

Also yesterday, the Treasury authorized all Danes and Norwegians to make deposits in American banks, but continued restrictions on withdrawals from American accounts.

Oklahomans Hear Senator Thomas

Members of the Oklahoma delegation in Congress, all Democrats, are harmonious in their views on most matters and operate as an effective unit, Senator Elmer Thomas, the senior member, told a dinner meeting of 150 Oklahomans last night at the Hamilton Hotel.

The dinner was given by the Oklahoma State Chamber of Commerce. John Rogers, Tulsa attorney, presided.

Board Backs D. C. College Credit Bill

Iowan Appointed Business Division Head; $37,000 Equipment Asked

The Board of Education yesterday approved the proposed bill to extend its power over degree-conferring institutions in the District, appointed a new head for the department of business education and voted to request a deficiency appropriation for equipment at M. M. Washington Vocational School.

Dr. F. W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, reported that of the liquor license applications protested by the board since December 1, five were issued, four were denied and eight are pending.

He also reported on three of the "most flagrant" cases of vandalism in the schools during April—40 broken window panes at Randle Highlands School; $381.55 loss in items taken from the cafeteria and musical instruments storeroom at Randall Junior High School; 23 broken panes of frosted glass at Morse School.

Iowan Appointed

Earl P. Strong, who has been an instructor in the College of Commerce at the University of Iowa, was appointed head of the Department of Business Education, Divisions 1-9, to succeed Dr. A. L. Howard, who retired recently.

In approving the proposed bill to empower the board to accredit junior colleges operating in the District, the board instructed its legislative committee and the superintendent "to appear on behalf of the bill" which is to be sponsored by the Commissioners.

The board authorized the committee and the superintendent to appear before the Senate District Committee to urge amendments to the bill which has already passed the House, providing leave of absence with part-pay for educational employes "for purposes of educational improvement." Attempts will be made to modify the House bill "to conform reasonably" with the draft already approved by the board.

Gratz E. Dunkum, chairman of the finance committee, reported equipment which the PWA is expected to install in the annex of M. M. Washington Vocational School is estimated to cost $44,000, but that only $30,000 may be available for this purpose.

Asks Appropriation

To the $14,000 lacking there, are added $16,827.63 needed for equipment in the old structure at the school and $6,182.56 for additional small equipment in the annex, he said. The board voted to request a deficiency appropriation for this total, $37,010.19, or for only $23,010.19, if the PWA provides the $14,000.

The board voted to establish the Gage-Henry-Polk School group with the three buildings in the same neighborhood. Miss Bertha E. Taylor, who is administrative principal of the Gage-Henry School, was given the same title for entire group, which has 32 rooms.

The board received from Dr. Ballou and from two assistant superintendents a proposed course of study in industrial chemistry for vocational schools, and voted to defer action until next meeting to allow time for members to study it.

The two-year course is designed to meet "the needs of many boys and girls who are interested in becoming technicians in industrial chemistry but who, because of economic pressure, are unable to go to college."

Capital News In Brief

Purse Hijacker Seized

A red-headed colored man who hijacked a purse containing $40 from the thief who had snatched it from its owner was arrested last night, and, according to police, confessed to the crime, which took place December 13.

The original victim of the double action theft was Norman Hardy, 1016 G street southeast. At Fifth and Morse streets northeast, a colored man grabbed the purse from Hardy's hands, and while Hardy was still in pursuit, the red-headed fellow dashed by the fleeing thief and took the purse for himself. The first thief escaped.

D. C. Accepts School Named For Rudolph

Hampshire Heights Building Inspected By Official Group

A new elementary school in Hampshire Heights, dedicated to the memory of Cuno H. Rudolph, a former District Commissioner, was accepted yesterday by District officials.

Built under the Public Works program at a cost of $169,000, the new structure is located on National Capital Parks property at Second and Hamilton streets northwest. Maj. Patrick H. Tansey, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, and members of the School Board inspected the plant yesterday.

The large plot of ground, upon which the school was built, eventually will be made into a huge recreational center containing play areas for children and athletic fields for adults.

Ready by Next Term

Officials of the playground department say this is the first school except Banneker which has provided facilities for the recreational program of the department. One large basement room will be devoted entirely to lockers, showers and other space needed in connection with the play area.

Although the school will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the next school term, the playground facilities are expected to be available this summer. Work will be started within the month on the vacant lot.

Hope for Addition

District officials are hopeful of obtaining funds for an addition to the new school, which is only a single unit and still lacks an auditorium. The next unit will include the auditorium and a large basement recreation center.

In the party which made the inspection yesterday were Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools; Mrs. Sidney P. Smith, a member of the school board; J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools; Nathan C. Wyeth, municipal architect; M. A. Coe, chief of the architectural division and designer of the school, and Maj. Tansey.

Ill-Paid, Inefficient Teachers Impair Schools, Group Told

Head of Trustees of Amherst College Tells Mercersburg Academy Alumni Public Institutions Are Deteriorating

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, president of the board of trustees of Amherst College, declared last night that the public schools of America are fast deteriorating under the influence of poorly paid, inefficient teachers, who are victimized by politicians and the "regimentation of self-appointed heirarchies."

Speaking to the Washington alumni of Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy in the Cosmos Club, Dr. Stearns added that the public schools are afflicted with two other evils: the absence of true democracy and the lack of religious instruction. Former headmaster of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., Dr. Stearns is a member of the Mercersburg board of regents.

Charging that the public school teachers of the country "have become the play of politicians," the white-haired educator continued:

"What the politicians have done in Massachusetts alone is enough to turn your hair gray."

Dr. Paul Musser, vice president of the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the Mercersburg board of regents, pointed out that the schools of Europe are closing and research is at a stondstill there, then added:

"We in America must keep alive the ideals of culture—not Kultur. The responsibility for present-day civilization rests with us."

Ascension Day Rites Planned By Churches

Corporate Communion Service to Be Held In Cathedral Program

Washington churches today will join in observing Ascension Day, commemorating the ascension of Christ 40 days after His resurrection.

While Catholic churches will mark the occasion with masses, Protestant congregations have arranged Holy Communion and other services.

Members of the women's committees of the National Cathedral Association will have corporate communion at the Washington Cathedral at 10 a. m., preceding luncheon and their business sessions in connection with the association's annual meeting.

They will take part in the procession at 3 p. m. opening the general meeting, over which the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preside, and Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, Methodist prelate, speak.

Bishop Freeman at 11:30 a. m. will lead dedicatory exercises for the Beauvoir School, the cathedral elementary unit, of whose board of trustees he is president. Dr. T. Tertius Noble, famed organist-composer, of New York City, will lead a choir festival at 8:30 p. m., with the choirs of the cathedral, the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation and St. Johns', Georgetown, participating.

The prelate yesterday conducted the semiannual conclave of the Cathedral Council at the College of Preachers, and at noon celebrated Holy Communion, assisted by the cathedral clergy.

Following Pope Pius' dedication of May to prayers for peace, the Adoration of the Most Blessed Sacrament is being celebrated at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, daily from 8 a. m. to 8 p.

Detroit Police Refund $3 Fine To German Aide

Fears of Detroit authorities that an "international conflagration" might grow out of a $3 parking fine brought about a refund of the fine to a German attache yesterday, it was learned here.

The refund was made to Joachim Sedlmayr, aide at the German Embassy, after a five-week battle by mail in which Sedlmayr insisted on his diplomatic immunity. He paid the fine under protest March 26.

Detroit police, however, met Sedlmayr's protestations with polite refusals until yesterday when Corporation Counsel Nathaniel H. Goldstick recommended return of the fine.

5 Churches Join in Plans For Projects

6th May Cooperate; Child Guidance Movement and Day Nursery Studied

Five downtown Protestant congregations of different denominations, embracing a church membership of more than 10,000, soon will be linked in two community-uplifting projects, a day nursery and a child-guidance movement, The Post learned yesterday.

They are the Calvary Baptist, Eighth and H streets; Mount Vernon Place Methodist, Ninth street and Massachusetts avenue; First Congregational, Tenth and G streets northwest; New York Avenue Presbyterian, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, and National City Christian, Thomas Circle. Epiphany Episcopal also is expected to cooperate.

The two projects, expected to be launched in September after careful planning, were the outcome of a discussion last Tuesday at the Washington Federation of Churches Building, 1749-51 N street northwest, by a group of church leaders. The Rev. John L. Mixon, head of the federation's social welfare department, presided.

Aid for Employed Mothers

The day nursery idea, which will provide a "parking spot" for hundreds of babies of employed mothers living in the congested downtown central area, was suggested by Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Church. He offered space in his new religious educational building, now under construction, as a possible site for the project, which would be jointly financed and run by highly trained workers.

Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Church, which also was suggested as a site for a downtown mothers' club, sponsored by all the cooperating churches, said that while his church building for years has been a downtown meeting place, "there has been a growing feeling that the church owes more to the neighborhood than has been given." He is president of the Washington Ministerial Union.

The Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, expressed the hope of arousing "the social conscience and consciousness of everyone in providing Christian education for people in that neighborhood."

Five Would Be "Adopted"

The child guidance movement, It was pointed out, would mean the "adoption," so to speak, of five children by certain members of each congregation, who would assume responsibility for their spiritual well-being and encouragement of interest in wholesome recreation and other activities through the church.

Through the 25 children it is hoped to reach other members of their families, bringing them, too, in touch with the comprehensive program of the modern city church. With the growth of interest in the unified efforts, more youngsters would be "adopted," according to the leaders.

Others attending the meeting included the Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, assistant pastor of Calvary Church; Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, First Congregational pastor; the Rev. Ivan H. Dugan, assistant pastor, National City Christian Church; Mrs. Oren B. Atwood, president of the Woman's Council of National City; Mrs. H. B. Rogers, social service chairman of that council; Miss Mabel Evans, member of the First Church's social service committee; Mrs. T. D. Ford, of the Mount Vernon social service committee. Dr. Raphael H. Miller, National City Christian pastor, was unable to attend.

Capt. Kornhauser Heads D. C. Reserves

Capt. Lester L. Kornhauser, U. S. Army Infantry Reserve, last night was elected president of the District Chapter of the Army Reserve Officers Association. Others named to office were Maj. Edmund Malczewski and Lieut. Leo Goodwin.

Citizens Ask More U. S. Aid To Fight Fires

Friendship Urges Additional Police And Traffic Lights

Friendship Citizens Association indorsed a proposal for an additional Federal appropriation of $75,000 for fire prevention work in the District at its meeting last night in Jannay School.

In addition, President Samuel J. Flickinger, 4611 Forty-third street northwest, urged that the Federal contribution to the District of Columbia budget be increased to "not less than $8,000,000."

The District government was commended for supplying long-sought traffic lights at Tenley circle. Similar lights were asked for the corner of Fessenden street and Wisconsin avenue.

The group went on record as opposing a proposed rezoning of the area inclosed by Wisconsin avenue, Warren street, Fortieth and Van Ness streets, asking that it remain a strictly "residential" area.

Fifty additional policemen were urged for the District together with appropriations for the maintenance of a larger police force. An increase of vandalism in the Friendship area was noted, but police were not held responsible.

Oldest Inhabitants

John Russell Young, newest District Commissioner, was admitted to membership in the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at its regular monthly meeting last night in the Old Union Engine House.

Young, who was born here in 1882, fulfilled a requirement that District-born members must have lived here 50 years or more.

Also admitted at the same meeting was A. D. Whittington. Applications for membership were received from John Marshall Boteler, Harry Davey, Max Oppenheimer and William J. Howard.

John Clagett Proctor, acting president, presided and gave a descriptive talk on the Scandinavian countries.

F. D. Clarke Dies at 38

Frederick Dayton Clarke, 38-year-old electrician at the new Census Building, collapsed at work yesterday and died en route to Providence Hospital in an ambulance. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald stated that a post mortem will be held today to determine the cause of death.

7 Are Injured, 3 Seriously, In Collisions

Three persons were in serious condition in local hospitals last night following a day of automobile accidents in the District area that injured seven persons, including a 2-year-old child.

William J. Kelling, 26, a salesman of Rockville, Md., was in Emergency Hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries after his car hurtled sideways against the stone abutment of an overpass on the George Washington National Memorial Parkway, near the Arlington Bridge.

A car containing two colored couples left the Marlboro Pike and struck a number of telephone poles at Forestville, Md., injuring its four occupants.

Seriously injured and taken to Casualty Hospital were Annabelle E. Williams, 25, of 630 E street southeast, and Katherine Lewis, 28, of 631 K street southeast. James Wood, 29, of 1220 Wylie court northeast, driver of the car, and Fred Larner, 29, 640 Acker street northeast, were treated for injuries at Casualty Hospital and then released.

The child, Geraldine Jenifer, 2 years old, of 4929 Lee street northeast, was hit and injured, though not seriously, when she ran in front of a truck driven by William L. Boho, 24, colored, of 4905 Sheriff road northeast. The accident occurred in the 100 block of Fiftieth place northeast.

Laura Lees, 56, of 764 Quebec place northwest, suffered a sprained leg and small lacerations in an auto accident at Second and C streets southeast.

Pay Roll Tax Cut Approved By House Unit

Revised Bill Provides Slash Of $1,000,000 Yearly in D. C.

A final draft of the frequently revised bill to amend the District Unemployment Compensation Act was approved yesterday by the judiciary subcommittee of the House District Committee. The revised bill reduces pay roll taxes by approximately $1,000,000 a year while the reserve fund continues to grow.

The maximum period for paying benefits ranging from $6 to $16 a week was reduced from 20 to 18 weeks. Other last-minute changes included a postponement of the merit, or experience rating provision, in the existing law from January, 1941, until the last half of 1942.

The reduction in the pay roll tax from 3 to 2.7 per cent is made retroactive to January, this year, and the District auditor is directed to audit all collections.

Further protection of employes of the Unemployment Compensation Board was provided by specifying that the non-competitive civil service examinations shall be "non-assembled."

The amendments will be considered by the full House District Committee next Monday. It is uncertain whether they will be called up in the House next week or on the next District day, May 13.

The pay roll tax cut is expected to save Washington employers approximately $1,000,000 a year, but the surplus fund, which is rapidly approaching $20,000,000, will continue to accumulate. The monetary increase in benefits has not been estimated.

D. C. Heads Seek $75,000 to Bolster Fire Inspection

The Commissioners yesterday said they would seek Budget Bureau approval for a $75,000 deficiency appropriation to carry out recommendations of the Person committee for bolstering the inspection staffs of the building, fire and electrical departments.

They requested Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal to draft necessary legislation, also recommended by the committee, to strengthen the inspection and fire escape laws. The committee, headed by Capt. John L. Person, assistant engineer commissioner, was appointed following the White Court Apartment blaze April 1, which resulted in the loss of three lives.

CAA Transfer Rejection Seen In Congress

Cox Expects House To Turn Down Plan; Green Opposes Move

Administration forces in the House fear that opposition to the President's proposal to shift the Civil Aeronautics Authority into the Commerce Department will be "overwhelming," it was reported last night.

Representative E. E. Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, said that while he himself thought the transfer is justified, the "chances are" that the House will turn down the plan.

Cox was one of five members of the select committee on Government organization who conferred yesterday with the President on the fourth reorganization order which calls for the CAA transfer, and abolition of the air safety board.

Two other members, John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman, and Lindsay C. Warren (Democrat), of Utah, said they favored the President's plan but declined to predict its chances on the floor.

On the other side, taking the floor of the Senate for an attack on the proposal, Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, produced a letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, protesting vigorously against the proposed change.

Green's letter declared he was "utterly amazed" by the President's proposal, contrasted the "no fatality" airlines record of the last 13 months under the CAA to a death record of 473 while aviation was regulated by the Commerce Department, and appealed to Congress to reject Mr. Roosevelt's plan.

Freshly returned from a visit to his home State, McCarran assailed the President's plan to drop the air safety board and place the CAA under Secretary of Commerce Hopkins.

"Despite widespread opposition," the Nevadan said, "the President attempts to brush aside the criticism by charges that the opposition is being led by persons 'ignorant, gullible or playing politics.'"

At New York, Attorney Henry Breckinridge, close friend and personal adviser of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, issued a statement accusing President Roosevelt of moving "to lay the hand of politics on the clean bright winds of American aviation."

"The courageous Democratic Senator Pat McCarran, after prodigious toil accomplished the existing legislation which has proved a satisfactory solution of the relations between the Government and the flying industry," he said. "Now comes the President with a scheme to emasculate the independent status of the CAA and restore political control thereof. This after the phenomenal record of the airlines which have just past a year without a single fatality."

Here, air line pilots who had gathered to approve the transfer, replied to the President's criticism of their "lobby to save lives." Their statement, made by Capt. David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, said in part:

"The pilots are not in Washington to enter into controversy with the President or anyone else. They are here in the interest of saving lives. They are not schooled in politics. They are schooled in flying and know what is necessary to make air transportation safe. They learned about this the hard way. One hundred and forty-six of their number met death in air crashes, while the Department of Commerce had control of civil flying and air transportaiton. There were 130 fatal air line crashes and 146 pilots, 279 passengers, and 48 stewardesses and other nonrevenue passengers—a total of 473 persons—were killed during this period. The pilots, the industry, and I am sure, the air-traveling public do not want aviaiton put back under control of the Government department that made this kind of a record."

It voiced the opinion that the safety board was the "greatest single factor in bringing about the present safety in flying."

Bruce Says He Would Vote Like Tydings

Tells How He Would Have Stood If He Were in the Senate

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

Baltimore, May 1.—Howard W. Bruce, taunted for concealing his views, accepted a challenge tonight and told how he would have voted had he been in the United States Senate since 1933.

Bruce, who is running against Senator George L. Radcliffe for the Democratic nomination for a seat in the Upper House, listed a dozen bills and resolutions on which Radcliffe had voted.

He said he would have voted differently on them.

"Senator Radcliffe voted against the bill to recommit the nomination of Senator Hugo Black as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court when the charge had been made that he was, or had been, a member of the Ku Klux Klan," said Bruce. "I would have voted for the investigation.

"Again he voted for the confirmation of Senator Hugo Black. I would have voted against it."

In virtually every instance, Bruce said he would have voted as Senator Millard E. Tydings voted in the last five and a half years. Tydings tried to hold up Black's confirmation when he heard of the Ku Klux Klan rumors.

Senator Radcliffe, a close friend of President Roosevelt, usually voted with the Administration until the Supreme Court fight, when he joine dwith Tydings ad voted against the New Deal "packing" plan.

"Back in the 1935 session," said Bruce in his radio speech tonight, "Senator Radcliffe voted for a bill increasing the power of the Tennessee Valley Authority. If I had been in the Senate, I would have joined with Tydings and voted ing against it.

"Senator Radcliffe voted for the public utilities holding company bill. Again I would have joined with Senator Tydings in voting against this . . ."

He went on down a list of bills, told how he would have voted differently from Radcliffe, and criticized Radcliffe for taking five months to make up his mind to oppose the court-packing bill.

The Bruce speech tonight was designed not only to answer a challenge but to cap an argument that the Bruce forces have been making against Senator Radcliffe. They contended that Radcliffe's votes had been canceling Tydings' votes, and that the result was a "legislative black-out." The Free State, they have argued, might as well not have anybody in the Senate.

Damage Placed at $350,000 In Crash of Nazi Mine Plane

Rows of Homes Wrecked, Casualties Listed at Over 160 After Bomber Plunges Into English Sea Resort

By the Associated Press

London, May 1.—Rows of wrecked homes, a list of more than 160 casualties and a great crater in the center of the quiet resort town of Clacton-on-Sea tonight marked the end of the trail of havoc of a crippled German bomber which crashed last night with its load of mines and bombs.

The giant mine layer, victim of British fighting planes and antiaircraft guns, ploughed through two streets of small red brick villas, smashing them to pieces, ripping off walls and roofs, exploded with a vast roar. Tonight England's first civilian air raid casualties were listed as follows:

Two killed, some 160 injured, 34 seriously.

In addition, the crew of four of the Heinkel bomber were killed.

The small town looked as though it had been hit by a heavy artillery bombardment.

Between 25 and 30 houses were wrecked, more than 50 others made unsafe. Windows were shattered all over town. Unofficial estimates placed the damage at $350,000.

Hundreds of homeless were sheltered by friends or in hotels. Many had almost incredible escapes.

The crater, marking the exact spot of the crash, was at the busiest intersection of the main street, less than 50 miles from London.

Clacton Hotel operators announced only yesterday that guests would get one-third rebate on their bills for any day a bomb or mine exploded near the town.

The plane was one of a number which attempted to lay mines off England's southeast coast.

Wanted—a Host For Breakfast

Ambassador Hotel," it said. There are "a couple of beauties" in the student group, she added by way of inducement, and lamented:

"They traveled all the way to Washington for the National Institute of Government only to find themselves orphans, without a host, for the Congressional breakfasts."

Strictly on the q. t., a lot of Democratic Congressmen were in a jam too. They thought only about 500 women were coming to town when they thought up the breakfast idea. Yesterday's advance registration totaled 4,700 women, with some State delegations as large as 320.

Actually billed as an "expert on politics," Postmaster General Farley will be opening institute lecturer today, and before the seminar is over the visiting Democratic women's contingent will hear Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and eight Cabinet members.

Some 3,000 of the visitors will tour the Capitol this afternoon, with Vice President Garner heading a receiving line for them in the House Ways and Means Committee room.

Purse Snatching Suspect Held

A 35-year-old white man was being held by police last night for investigation of the attack early yesterday on Mrs. Esther Erickson, 45, of 1704 Eighteenth street northwest, who was robbed of her pocketbook.

Mrs. Erickson, a proof reader, suffered a broken left arm when the thug twisted her wrist to obtain her purse which contained only $1. She was treated at Emergency Hospital. The attack occurred at Nineteenth and Swann streets northwest.

Mrs. Grace Rigby, Wife of Colonel, Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Grace Gilruth Rigby, wife of Col. William C. Rigby, U. S. A., retired, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

A native of Davenport, Iowa, she was educated at Cornell College, Stanford, Iowa. With Col. Rigby, now counsel for the government of Puerto Rico, she came here in 1926. She made her home in recent years in East Falls Church, Va.

Surviving besides her husband are three daughters, Mrs. Fred Nussbaum, of Laramie, Wyo.; Mrs. Lewis B. Moore, of Balboa Heights, Panama, and Mrs. Arthur B. Rigby, of Denver, Colo., and a sister, Dr. Mary McEwen, of Chicago.

Railroad Retirement Workers Questioned on Housing Wishes

By Edward Ryan

Post Staff Writer

Railroad Retirement employes are being questioned on the kind of houses they would like to live in when they start working in new offices in Southwest Washington late this year.

The housing survey, organized by a committee of the United Federal Workers in cooperation with personnel directors, started recently in the Social Security Board offices, and officials of other agencies, including the Commerce and Agricultural departments, are studying plans for a similar checkup.

Questionnaires have been given to all 1,500 employes of the Railroad Retirement Board, officials said, and about 500 returns have come in. They will be tabulated by a volunteer UFWA committee, and used in making recommendations to private or public housing agencies on ways to meet the expected change in housing demands.

Offices for 10,000

Need for the survey, officials said, come when the new Social Security and Railroad Retirement Buildings at Third and Independence avenue southwest were approved. When they are finished late this year, about 10,000 permanent workers will have their offices in the Southwest area. Into this group will come some 4,000 employes of the Social Security Board now working in Baltimore offices.

These employes are being asked what kind of homes they have now, what rents they pay, how large are their incomes and families, and what are their housing preferences.

Jacob Baker, U. F. W. A. president, said that the survey is expected to give helpful information about the present homes of Government workers.

"Far too many Washington wage earners are now living in substandard dwellings and remodeled fire traps," Baker said. "The influx of new people will drive up rents still higher, and will result in more overcrowding, unless new dwellings are provided at rentals which people in this income range can afford to pay."

He said that the average wage of the Social Security Workers from Baltimore is about $1,500.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The greatest pugilistic triumph of the late Joe Jacobs, who, incidentally, never threw a punch in his 24-year career in the prize ring industry, was undoubtedly his theft of Max Schmeling from the possession of his German managers. Now it can be told how Yussel the Muscle insinuated himself into the management of Schmeling.

POVICH

Mr. Fred Kirsch, a Berlin sports writer who became Schmeling's American representative, relates the master craftsmanship by which Jacobs weaned the Teuton Dempsey from the control of Arthur Bulow, his duly certified manager. "Jacobs was working on Schmeling for six months before Bulow and I ever suspected that he was trying to muscle in," recited Kirsch.

"Jacobs and his pal, Pete Reilly, were hanging around Schmeling's training camp at Summit, N. J., pretty steadily, but we thought they were just a couple more of the fight mob who are always interested in a new heavyweight. We didn't see 'em talking to Schmeling except to say something casual and then one day I knew something serious was up.

"Schmeling was around showing us three new, crisp $1,000 bills and we asked him where he got that kind of money. 'Joe Jacobs gave 'em to me,' said Max. 'He told me to buy myself some cigars.'"

It was that kind of money flaunted under Schmeling's nose that began to give the German ideas of breaking away from his Teuton managers. Jacobs was making all sorts of promises of big money to Max. The upshot was that Schmeling, who was never the one to kick a dollar in the face, ran out on the men who brought him to America.

"Jacobs painted a pretty picture of the things he could do for Schmeling if Max broke away from us," Kirsch was saying. "He told Schmeling that he was a sucker for paying us 40 per cent of his purses when the New York State Commission allowed a manager to take only 33 per cent cut. Max threatened to quit fighting until our contract with him ran out unless he could have Jacobs in his corner for his fights."

At Schmeling's insistence it was Jacobs who seconded him the night of the first Sharkey fight and the fortunate break that proved is history. That was the evening, of course, that Jacobs won the title for Schmeling by yelling "foul!" so loudly that he convinced the State Boxing Commissioners at the ringside. He grabbed Schmeling's foul protector from his body despite the fact that he was leaving Max virtually nude and displayed the dents to prove that Sharkey had struck a low blow.

"That fight was Schmeling's first in the big money," says Kirsch. "His end of the gate was $186,000 and we cut in for a third of it. Max was so grateful to Jacobs that he gave him $10,000. It was the last bout Schmeling fought for us. Jacobs took over after that."

But Schmeling's fondness for Jacobs cooled soon after, according to Kirsch. No dope was Schmeling where a dollar was concerned. He discovered that he didn't need Jacobs to get him bouts and never signed a contract with him. He permitted Jacobs merely to front for him and that proved to be a valuable convenience for Yussel.

"It gave Jacobs the excuse to make a trip to Germany every so often," said Kirsch, "and it was important that he go somewhere. Jacobs was always free with his money and he was in debt to a lot of tough guys in New York. He owed Little Augie Pisano more than $30,000 and whenever Augie pressed him for the money, Joe would catch a boat to Germany and say he would pay off after the next Schmeling fight. Joe didn't make much money out of Schmeling, but Schmeling probably saved him from the mob."

The Jacobs-Schmeling relationship was far different from the Tony Galento-Joe Jacobs affair. Yussel was Galento's manager in fact as well as in name and he not only cut in for a third of Galento's earnings but Galento paid willingly. Jacobs did a masterful job on Galento after six managers, including Jack Dempsey, had given Two-ton Tony the heave-ho on the suspicion he could never lick anybody important. .

There isn't much doubt that Jacobs, too, was of the same opinion, but all of a sudden he discovered that Galento commanded space in the papers, even if he couldn't fight. That interested Yussel, who knew the value of publicity, and when Galento astonished him by popping over a string of hand-picked bums, the rest was easy for Jacobs, who knew he could shout Tony into a Louis match.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 1.—Charley Grimm lacked so much confidence in Tex Carleton in the 1935 World Series against the Tigers that he wouldn't put him in there in the crucial sixth game. In the late innings of that game, with the score tied, Stan Hack led off an inning with a triple, but the Cubs couldn't score him, and one of the reasons for this was that Grimm left Larry French in there to hit instead of jerking him for a pinch-hitter and putting in Carleton—who was all warmed up—to pitch relief. Now Carleton is a no-hit pitcher, and whatever became of the Cubs? . . . National Distilleries has very quietly dropped the Derby, which it has more or less underwriting.

CONSIDINE

In 12 days of pari-mutuel racing, the State of New York made more than half as much money as it made all last year off racing under the bookie system . . . Boston fans believe that George Marshall campaigned against the Hub's chances of getting a franchise in the National football league, but we doubt it—for George was never one to kick a buck in the face, and Boston should be a prosperous spot if Jack McLean ever gets it.

Last March the tennis boys put on a demonstration for the Finnish relief fund, drew $10,000 and turned $4,000 of it over to the Finns. In the ensuing hullaballoo, it was published that Vinny Richards, co-promoter, was paid $500 for "services," and there were many other such seeming sins vs. sweet charity. Anybody who knows Richards knows he isn't that kind of guy, so it's a pleasure to print his side of the thing. He says that the $500 he accepted was more than devoured by the costs of coming up from Florida to work on the match, grants to Bruce Barnes and Fred Perry, entertaining newspapermen in the interests of publicity for the match, and buying tickets, and that he honestly expected thanks instead of a blast.

Four guys named Joe are leading the race for the "Golden Laurel" which Christy Walsh will present at the World Fair this summer: DiMaggio, Louis, McCarthy and Burke . . . If you think those golf pros are aloof to mortal golf ailments, it should interest you to learn that in the Oakland open this past winter Clayton Heafner—after shooting a hole in one—so badly missed a putt that the putter's blade hit his shoe.

The first plug we ever saw for Jess Willard was uttered the other day when Buddy Baer said that he had fashioned his uppercut after Willard's . . . Buddy's record is pretty good at that—four losses in 50 starts . . . American football is all but unknown to the young men of the Royal Air Force, but they have borrowed our huddle and worked out diagrams in typical football style. War correspondents report that before a fight the fliers talk it over around a table, have a blackboard drill on just what each must do at a given signal, and then take off. The flight leader is the quarterback. In the battles, he gives the signals by radio or by pre-ordained flapping of his ailerons.

Reds Score 8 in Fourth, Stop Streak

Three Brooklyn Pitchers Fail to Extend 9-Game Perfect Season

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, May 1.—The sensational nine-game winning streak of the Brooklyn Dodgers crshed today on the rocks of a 9-to-2 victory by the Cincinnati Reds, who batted around in the fourth inning for eight of their runs.

The denouement was as sudden as it was complete.

For the first three innings Hugh Casey continued the no-hit spell which Tex Carleton cast over the Reds yesterday, but when Bill Werber finally smashed a double against the centerfield fence in the fourth, the rout was on.

Lonnie Frey bunted safely down the first base line to move Werber to third and the wind blew Ival Goodman's pop fly out of Peewee Reese's reach for a single and a run. Frank McCormick waited out a base on balls to load the bases and Ernie Lombardi immediately cleared them with a home run, his second of the season.

Harry Craft grounded for Cincinnati's first out, but Mike McCormick was hit by a pitched ball and after Eddie Joost flied to center, Bucky Walters doubled to right to score McCormick and Werber on his second time at the plate homered over the leftfield wall. Frey popped up to end the inning.

What happened after this six-hit debacle didn't make much difference. Hugh Casey was removed for a pinch hitter and Van Mungo held the Reds hitless for one inning. Then he gave way to a pinch hitter and Lefty Vito Tamulis stymied Cincinnati for another frame, but the pesky Werber set off a final tally in the seventh by getting hit with a pitched ball, moving to second on a sacrifice and racing home on Goodman's single to left.

Brooklyn started boldly enough by carving four hits in the first three innings off Walters, but after the Reds gave their fast-ball star a lead he gave up only two hits—and two runs.

One of the blows was a home run in the fifth by Pete Coscarart, who

Relief Work Of Hash Helps Red Sox Win

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 1.—Rookie Herb Hash rushed to Lefty Bob Grove's relief and, after choking off a Chicago uprising, pitched effectively today as the Red Sox slugged three White Sox hurlers for a 12-4 triumph.

Grove opened the game by giving Rookie Bob Kennedy, the Chisox lead-off, his first major league homer and retired with none out in the fifth after he passed two batters before Joe Kuhel drove a circuit drive into the Red Sox bullpen in the centerfield.

Hash then stepped into action and held the visitors to one hit during the remainder of the game.

N.B.A. Awards Petey Scalzo Feather Title

Elimination Series Out, National Ring Body Names Champion

The National Boxing Association yesterday gave the country a third featherweight champion of the world with the long-talked-of recognition of Petey Scalzo, of New York, as the "legitimate holder of the 126-pound boxing crown.

In taking its action the N B. A. was doing the only thing left for it to do, since efforts to hold an elimination series for the title, with Scalzo as the No. 1 man, failed.

"The N. B. A. subscribes to the theory that titles are won in the ring, but Scalzo's case presented the peculiar picture of various leading featherweights declining to box him in a title match," Heinie Miller, N. B. A. president, explained.

Jeffra Refused Match

Joey Archibald was stripped of the title last month after he declined to fight Scalzo, choosing to ignore the N. B. A.'s choice.

Baltimore's Harry Jeffra subsequently refused to fight Scalzo, and efforts to match the New York Italian with Jimmy Perrin, of New Orleans, failed when both parties demanded guarantees and the Perrin faction refused to enter the fight outside New Orleans.

Meanwhile, Jeffra had signed to box Archibald, now recognized by Maryland and New York as world's featherweight champion, in Baltimore, May 20. The Louisiana forces got together, recognized Perrin as champion and arranged another "world's title" bout for New Orleans May 8. Perrin will fight Irish

Ten Opponents Listed

Bobby Ruffin, of New York.

The N. B. A. stated Scalzo has signed to fight any featherweight named by the board at any time.

The ten 126-pounders listed by the N. B. A. as title opponents include Perrin, Jeffra, Simon Chavez, who was eliminated from the project when he demanded a $7,500 guarantee; Chalky Wright, of California; Frankie Covelli, of Chicago; Jack Wilson, of Pittsburgh; Nel Tarleton, of England; Bobby Green, of Philadelphia; Spider Armstrong, of Canada, and Sixto Escobar, of Puerto Rico.

Rivals of Bimelech Desire Mud in Derby

Pictor, Dit and Roman Would Welcome Gooey Track; Given Slight Chance to Beat Favorite If Going Is Fast

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Derby-Town trotted out its overcoat, mittens and umbrella today, but the nasty little touch of December in May that blew in couldn't do a thing about cooling off the warm glee for several candidates in Saturday's sixty-sixth running of the Kentucky Derby.

In fact, most witnesses swore they saw the Maryland mud-man, Pictor, laugh right in Bimelech's face from where they stand looking at each other across the little lawn between barns.

It's not that Pictor or Dit or Roman or Gallahadion was any warmer or drier than the rest of us, but they sat down together and figured out that whatever slim chance there was of beating Bimelech for the jackpot lay in nice, gooey mud—and the gooier the better. One trainer said flatly he wasn't too impressed by Bimmie's win in the mile derby trial yesterday.

Track Like Chocolate Strip

Churchill Downs' track looked today like a strip of chocolate pudding just waiting for somebody to come along and top it off with whipped cream.

Of course, it's still three days to the big show, and at least one weather official pointed out that there was as "big high" over the entire Midwest, indicating a fair chance of favorable weather in the next few days. But Pictor, Dit and the others are optimists, and they just stood around and whinnied in chorus: "We can dream, can't we?" The only "blues" song came from Inscolad, when Owner Herbert M. Woolf announced definitely he would not start Saturday.

There was also the possibility Harry M. Warner might not start either of his two hopefuls—Sky Dog and Gallant Dream. Warner brought Nick Wall here yesterday with intentions of having the jockey ride one of the two Saturday, but both showed so little in an allow-

Hurt in Fall, High Jumper Loses Leg

Special Dispatch to The Post

Carlisle, Pa., May 1.—The condition of Thomas R. Hunt, 21-year-old Dickinson College golfer and swimmer from Bethlehem, whose right leg was amputated above the knee at Carlisle Hospital this afternoon, was described as "fair" by hospital attendants at 7:30 p. m.

The operation, performed by Drs. Harvey Smith and W. Baird Stuart, Carlisle, was required to check a blood infection after Hunt suffered a compound fracture of the leg in the high jump of the annual Inter-Fraternity track meet last Friday.

Joe Louis Awarded $500 Judgment by Court

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP).—Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, was awarded a $500 judgment in circuit court against the Ziegler Boxing Club, ending a four-year legal battle.

Louis contended the club owed him $500 for refereeing a bout here in 1936. The defense asserted the champion agreed to accept $1,000 instead of the $1,500 stipulated by his contract after only a small crowd attended.

Yankees Beat Browns, 5 to 3, Tie for Fifth

World Champions Pile Up Three Runs In First Inning

By the Associated Press

New York, May 1.—The so-called slugging Yankees tapped out a 5-to-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns today on Monte Pearson's five-hit pitching and pulled back into a tie for fifth place in the American League.

Of the nine hits New York collected off three St. Louis pitchers, the only extra baser was a triple in the eighth by Tom Henrich and it did not figure in the scoring.

The world champions bunted twice in the first inning when they piled up three runs off Elden Auker and managed to keep ahead through the remaining innings.

A triple by Joe Gallagher led to the Browns' first run in the second, a double by Don Heffner got another in the fourth and a walk, an infield out and George McQuinn's single brought their final tally in the fifth.

15 Men Walk As 4 Hurlers Perform

1887 Mark for Free Trips Almost Tied; Krakauskas Allows Winning Runs

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

With a pitching performance that would have curdled mother love, four of Clark Griffith's jobholders sabotaged his ball team yesterday. To the willingly patient Detroit Tigers they issued 15 bases on balls and presented the Tigers with a 10-to-7 victory.

Three thousand soured fans were detained in the park for nearly three hours by the horrible display of Washington pitching. Eventually they saw Joe Krakauskas catch the spirit of the preceding trio and walk the winning run across the plate in the eighth inning.

Al Hollingsworth, Alex Carrasquel, Walter Masterson and Krakauskas barely failed to tie the existing record of 16 bases on balls in a single game. That record has stood since 1887.

Krakky Tigers' Redeemer

Hollingsworth inspired the May Day procession of Tigers from the plate to first base by walking six of them in the four and a third innings he pitched. Manager Bucky Harris tolerated Carrasquel only for two batters, but the Venezuelan managed to insert two walks and wild pitched a run home in his brief appearance. Masterson only walked three batters, perhaps because he only pitched two innings.

Krakauskas, however, was the transcendent star for the Tigers. He got the pitching job with the score tied at 7-7 in the eighth inning and then lost his effectiveness, his sense of direction and the ball game.

With one out in the eighth, Krakky swung into action and walked Gehringer, Greenberg and York in succession to fill the bases. He lapsed badly a bit later by striking out Bruce Campbell, but he was back in form with Dick Bartell at the plate. He walked Bartell to force over what proved to be the winning run. Tebbetts' single to center which delivered two more runs didn't hurt the Tigers any, either.

Newsom Driven Out

The Tigers tried mightily to give Washington the ball game in the early innings. They threw four errors into the proceedings to make the going rough for big Buck Newsom, who finally retired in the fifth, when the Nats came up with three runs to take a 7-5 lead.

Lynn Nelson, a refugee from the Athletics, was the winning pitcher. He quelled the Nats' fifth-inning rally and then pitched scoreless ball to the finish, giving up only two hits.

Six times the lead changed hands. The Tigers were in front, 1-0, in the first inning, and entered the second trailing, 3-1. In the third they tied the score at 3-3, and were behind, 4-3, in the fourth. In the fifth they moved in front, 5-4, and finished the inning trailing by 7-5. In the seventh it was 7-7, and then, in the eighth, Krakky put in his appearance.

Travis to the Rescue

A base on balls issued to McCosky by Hollingsworth eventuated as a Tiger run in the first inning, but Zeke Bonura pounded a triple to the centerfield corner that paved the way for three Washington runs later in the inning. Case walked, Lewis singled after Fox muffed his foul pop, and then Bonura tripled. Bonura scored when Third Baseman Frank Croucher heaved Pofahl's grounder past York.

Two bases on balls and two singles tied the score at 3-3 for the Tigers in the third, but Buddy Lewis' Texas League triple to left got a run for the Nats in the fourth. In the fifth, Hollingsworth walked McCosky but picked him off base. The Tigers filled the bases on singles

Potter's Hurling Turns Back Indians for Athletics, 5 to 1

7-Hit Hurling Snaps 3-Game Losing Streak

Only 1,500 Fans Witness Game; Cleveland's Mack Hits for Circuit

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 1.—Nelson Potter gave the Philadelphia Athletics a tidy May basket today as his seven-hit hurling set the league-leading Cleveland Indians back, 5 to 1.

A crowd of only 1,500 saw the highhander turn in his first victory of the year and snap the A's three-game losing streak.

Rookie Roy Mack scored the Indians' only run in the third when he connected with one of Potter's screwballs and sent it sailing into the stands. Only two Indians got on base after the fifth inning.

Bennie McCoy Doubles

Philadelphia came back in the fourth when Benny McCoy doubled and came home on Bob Johnson's single and Dick Siebert's fly to tie the score. The A's added another in the fifth and McCoy came through with his second double in the sixth and Siebert again singled to send the $65,000 second baseman across.

Johnny Allen, who started for the Indians, was removed in the seventh for a pinch hitter, with Bill Zuber taking the mound. He retired in the eighth after Johnson blasted out his fourth round-tripper of the season and Wally Moses his second. Joe Dobson finished the game.

Potter Fans Five

Potter, besides spacing out Cleveland's hits, fanned five, three of the strikeouts being chalked against Ken Keltner, who blasted two home-runs yesterday. Hal Trosky, Indian first baseman, who also got two homers yesterday, was called to his home by an accident to his son, and Oscar Grimes took over his job today:

Four-Run Homer Is Blow That Burst Brooklyn Bubble

Brostek Is Selected C. U. Grid Captain

Strang, White and Pirro Also Honored at Annual Catholic U. Athletic Banquet

Announcement that Hank Brostek will captain Catholic University's 1940 footballers, Jerry Strang will lead the boxers, and Johnny White will head the basketball team were made at last night's annual athletic banquet at Congressional Country Club.

Carmen Pirro, football and basketball star, received the Harris trophy as the outstanding student athlete. Joe Bunsa was presented the McGann trophy as the best boxer.

Jimmy Maguire, chairman of the affair; Andy Maloney, Timothy May and Vincent Toomey were awarded "C" certificates, alumni that were of particular service to the university.

Edward Curran, United States attorney from the District, was toastmaster, while speakers included Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland; Dr. John Fitzpatrick, dean of Columbus University; Vice Rector Msgr. McCormick, Representative R. Ewing Thomason, of Texas; Arthur Bergman, C. U. athletic director, and Coaches Fod Cotton, Eddie Lafond and Dorsey Griffith.

Rose Cauliflower, recent cherry blossom queen, and Mimi Norton were among the entertainers.

Terror Beats Dusek on Mat At Riverside

With Rudy Dusek and his wrestling cohorts providing the entertainment, Riverside Stadium's first venture in the "rassle" business was run off last night, but the results were nothing to get excited about.

A mediocre crowd of 1,150 paying customers — mediocre considering the stadium's facilities—was on hand to see the same old groan routines which saw the Golden Terror, minus mask, defeat the great Dusek in 24 minutes of the feature event.

Burns in Trouble

The Terror, or Bob Weatherly, catapulted himself at Rudy's mid-section off the ropes and fell on him for the count after a great amount of huffing and puffing that brought a near-catastrophe.

Weatherly and Dusek, with a combined weight of more than 500 pounds, inadvertently fell on top of Referee Cyclone Burns, and if you've ever seen Cyclone you'll realize the seriousness of his predicament. Weatherly got a strangle hold on Dusek and Burns at the same time and held on until he realized the missing referee was somewhere underneath the pile.

Erwin Pleased

Promoter Jimmy Erwin, who leased Riverside from S. G. Leoffler to step into the field heretofore dominated by Joe Turner, expressed himself pleased with last night's turnout.

In the preliminaries, Abe Coleman defeated Tommy O'Toole, Cliff Olson and Abe Yourist drew, Don Evans downed Angelo Savoldi and Joe Maynard lost to Tommy Rae.

George Pace Wins

New York, May 1 (AP).—Making his first New York appearance, George Pace, of Cleveland, 124¼, won a ten-round decision tonight over rugged Pablo Dano, 120, from the Philippines. The N.B.A. bantamweight champion was much the superior boxer, being credited with eight of the ten rounds.

Eastern Faces Anacostia Nine Today

Game Carded for 3:30 at Anacostia; Faircloth to Pitch

Beaten out in their last interhigh starts, Eastern and Anacostia came together today at the latter's stadium in a game which will throw the loser out of serious consideration for the 1940 title. The game, postponed earlier, will start at 3:30.

Eastern will be seeking revenge for a 13-to-3 trouncing administered by Central Tuesday. After an opening triumph over Tech, the Tide had high hopes of being in the thick of competition. The youthful Indians suffered a 3-to-2 setback at the hands of Tech in their only start.

Anacostia's Art Faircloth has had a full week's rest and will probably be responsible for the Indians' even chance today. He'll face one of the hurlers who saw duty in Eastern's loss—Warren Erhardt, Kenny Deavers or Kenny Curles.

The only other game on the scholastic schedule brings together Gonzaga vs. Washington-Lee at Arlington. The Gonzagans recently annexed a new pitcher in Garland, who has been out with an injury since the start of the season.

Devitt Prep Bows To Little Hoyas, 5-0

Devitt Prep netmen pushed two sets into extra games yesterday but that was the closest they could come to winning a match as Georgetown Prep ground out a 5-0 victory on the Garrett Park courts.

Peola lost his first set, 9—7, but was swamped in the second, 6—1. Against Titus and Kuntz in the doubles, Peola and Blaymeir fought to an 8—6 loss in the opening set, then dropped the second, 6—1.

Belle Haven Golf Committee Lists Schedule

Metropolitan Trophy, Belle Haven Bowl, Other Events Are Carded

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A complete tournament schedule that includes play for the Belle Haven Bowl, Metropolitan Trophy, Alexandria Gazette Cup and the W. W. Demaine Memorial Trophy was announced yesterday by the Belle Haven golf committee. Stanley Teagle, donor of the Metropolitan Trophy, is chairman of the committee that includes Earl Knight and Verner L. Smith.

The Alexandria golfers, members of the Tri-State League, will play host to the other five teams, June 9, and will in turn visit Martinsburg, Winchester, Purcellville, Harrisonburg and Frederick. The final matches will be played September 8, on a course to be announced.

The schedule opens Saturday with an Alibi tournament, in which the player may replay as many shots as the size of his handicap. Sunday a best-ball competition is on tap.

In addition to the Tri-State series, several other home and home team matches will be scheduled in the near future.

The club championship will open August 31 with a qualifying round, and the finals are set for October 13.

August 31 to October 13—Club Championship (Men). Two flights, championship and second. 16 low scores qualify for championship flight. Second 16 handicaps will apply in all matches. Qualifying round August 31 through September 15. First round matches, both flights, by September 22. Second round, September 29. Semi-finals, October 6. Finals by October 13. August 31 and September 1—Open.

September 2—Tournaments. Announced later. September 7—Open. September 8—Final Tri-State Matches. Club to be announced later. September 14 and 15—Open. W. W. Demaine Memorial Trophy (dates and rules to be announced later).

Best Ball Substituted For Capital Match Play

Subbing the proposed match play invitation for a best ball, two-man team tournament, Capital Club members announced the dates as June 28-29 and 30, Friday through Sunday.

The field will qualify on Friday, with the low 16 teams comprising the championship flight. Other flights will be provided for all qualifiers. The first two rounds of match play will follow on Saturday, with consolation matches in the afternoon. The semifinals and finals will follow on Sunday. A handicap tournament will be held Sunday afternoon for all those eliminated.

The course will be open for practice Wednesday and Thursday. The entrance fee for the three-day tourney is $10 per team, which includes a stag dinner on the 28th and luncheons. The prize money will come out of the entrance fees.

Handicap Card Drive Begun at Local Clubs

Dr. Robert A. Keilty and Harry G. Pitt, District vice presidents of the Maryland State Golf Association, divided the local clubs between them in the association's drive for "State Handicap Week" that started yesterday.

The Maryland body, most active golf association in this section, depends on its handicap card sale for its tournament expenses during the year, including the Maryland Open prize money.

The drive also started in Baltimore yesterday and between the two cities the association officials are hoping to reach the goal of 1,000 cards. The club pros will cooperate with Keilty and Pitt in the drive.

Women's Postponed Dates Rescheduled for May 24

Mrs. J. C. Dale, team captain of the Women's District Golf Association, announced yesterday that the first postponed match had been placed on the calendar, the first teams at Argyle May 24 and the second teams at Chevy Chase.

The Argyle play was originally scheduled to open the team series April 12, but rain forced postponements on the original date and two substitutes.

Mrs. Jack Palmer Wins Golf Play-off

Mrs. Jack Palmer won the play-off for the Ladies' Golf Committee Trophy yesterday at Beaver Dam, defeating Mrs. Elsie M. Fisher by a three-stroke margin. They tied for the cup on Sunday.

Mrs. Palmer scored 105-20, 85, in the playoff while Mrs. Fisher was 102-14, 88.

Little Hoya Golfers Win, 9-0, To Eliminate Bladensburg

Only Victors Over 1939 Titlists Bow Out of Schoolboy Links Competition

Bladensburg, the only team to beat Bethesda in the Schoolboy Golf League this season, was eliminated from the championship race in the Metropolitan sector yesterday at Georgetown Prep as the Little Hoyas won, 9-0.

Two of the matches were decided by 9 and 8 margins and another 8 and 7 as Georgetown Prep made it a three-cornered fight for Bethesda's crown between the defending champions, the Little Hoyas and Gonzaga.

In a postponed interhigh match, Roosevelt improved its third place standing with 9-0 shutout over Anacostia's cellar-holders at Capital.

Bethesda has defeated its two closest rivals and barring a major upset, the winner of the Georgetown Prep-Gonzaga match is favored to play off with the champions for the 1940 crown.

Georgetown Prep, 9; Bladensburg, 0.

Boylan (G.) defeated Redmiles, 7 and 5; Brayer (G.) defeated A. Waters, 3 and 1. Best ball, Georgetown Prep, 4 and 3.

Net Drills Saturday

All of last year's players and new candidates for the Navy Yard tennis team are requested to report for practice at the Potomac Park courts Saturday, May 4, at 10 a. m. Those unable to attend this practice should notify George E. Herbert, jr., at Atlantic 0646.

Lloyd Budge Wins Exhibition Match Here, 8-6

Lloyd Budge, the elder brother of the world's champion Don and his first instructor, played a one-set exhibition with Friends coach, Tony Latona, yesterday, winning, 8—6. In a doubles match that followed, Budge, who played in several pro tournaments in the South, paired with Alvin Dulcan, a student, to defeat Athletic Director "Pop" Wannan and Corson Jones, 6—2. The matches were played on the Friends courts.

Don Budge will be here tomorrow for a private exhibition match with Dan Watson, Chevy Chase tennis professional, on the Chevy Chase courts.

Saturday the Budge brothers will make personal appearances at the playgrounds tennis clinic on the Reservoir courts.

by Gehringer and Greenberg and a pass to York, and that was all for Hollingsworth.

In came Carrasquel, and his first act was to unleash a wild pitch that sent a run home. When he walked Fox and Bartell to fill the bases, he got the hook and Masterson the job. Cecil Travis saved the situation at this point by making a diving catch of Tebbetts' line drive and falling on third base for a double play.

Two wild throws by Substitute Third Baseman Frank Croucher helped the Nats to score three runs in the fifth and knock Newsom out of the box. Travis beat out a bunt during the proceedings and Jimmy Pofahl scored two runners with a drive against the left field wall.

Masterson dissipated the Nats' 7-to-5 lead in the seventh by walking two batters and pitching a double to Tebbetts that scored 'em. And in the eighth—well, that's where Krakky came in.

Derby Mud-Lovers Look to Off-Track

The Warner Stables said it was waiting for the boss to arrive tomorrow to determine whether it will have a starter.

Sould Warner withdraw it would leave a probable field of eight for the Derby.

The others showed just how much they'll enjoy the slop with a series of pretty fair workouts over distances this morning. Pictor, the usually fine mud-running son of Challenger II, had his Derby jockey, Georgie Woolf, aboard, and sailed through a fine mile and an eighth in 1:58 3-5, splashing off the half in 0:50 3-5 and the mile in 1:44 3-5. Trainer Max Hirsch hit town and rushed right to the track to give his hopeful, Did, a try over the full mile and a quarter Derby route in 2:13. Harold S. Clark's Royal Man, another better than fair mudder, went a mile and an eighth in 1:59¾. Charles S. Howard's Mioland, the big glamour boy from California, breezed a half in 0:50, in preparation for a longer work tomorrow.

Pictor, Dit, Roman and Gallahadion have never been beaten on an off track, their rubber boots are that good.

The ordinarily "hot corner" at Fourth and Walnut streets was somewhat deserted in today's zippy air and soaking rain as the folks recalled the "Eskimo Endurance" of '35, when Omaha sloshed home—the last time the derby had anything besides good weather.

New Teams Take Leads In Pin Meet

New team leaders in Classes C and D marked the Washington City Duckpin Association tournament last night at Arcadia, Local No. 11 taking top position in C with a 1,749 total, while Treasury No. 1, of the National Federation of Federal Employes circuit, took first place in D with 1,665. The C class leader is in the Electrical Utilities Employes Union League.

The leading score stood up in Class B, but new names were posted in the three runner-up spots—Wayne Oil second, with 1,839; Table Supplies third, with 1,812, and Chaconas Market, 1,801. Ed Nash had 393 for Wayne Oil.

Best singles score of the night in class A was a 393 by Howard Parsons, that placed him in tenth place, while Mickey Nocera was tied for sixth in class B with 387, Les Eliff tied for fifth in class D with 349, and Tom Reynolds tied for third in class E, with 341.

TEMPLE

Eastern Pharmacy pinmen set an all-time record in the Temple Minor League, a 1,788 set, that was good for a three-game win over Wolfe Market. Charles Cashell had high game of the night, 154, and Larry Murray top set, 381. McKee Pontiac stretched its winning streak to 12 straight.

Maritime Beats Panama Canal, 10-5

The new Panama Canal Commission baseball team got its first taste of competition in the Departmental League yesterday, suffering a 10-5 beating by Maritime Commission in a five-inning game on the East Ellipse.

Pitcher Giller set the Canalmen down with five hits, fanned nine and walked one.

Freaks, Bear, Glamour Boy Listed on Arena Mat Card

Everything but the kitchen sink, to coin a phrase, has been rounded up by Promoter Joe Turner to lend enchantment to his weekly parade of groan artists tonight at his W street arena.

First comes Bobby Burns, alleged "glamour boy" of the mat, to take on Karol Zbyszko, who comes from a long line of Polish wrestling Zbyszkos, in the 90-minute feature.

Next in order is Ginger, the 350-pound black Canadian bear. Ginger has been signed to make passes at Wildcat Bashara, of New Bern, N. C., who claims wrestling bears are an old habit he enjoys thoroughly. Ginger did away with Chief White Feather in her last appearance here.

Jack Pfefer's ace freak and widely heralded "mystery man," Zim Zam Zum, will return to throw nasty glances in the direction of Benny Rosen—but the climax of the whole matter is the return of Nanjo Singh, the cobra deathlock exponent.

Nanjo, turban and all, returns to face Maurice Boyer in a special bout on the preliminary schedule. The Irish Angel, who bested Dropkick Murphy last week, comes back to meet Young Mephisto.

The semifinal brings out Wladyslaw Talun, 6-foot-7 Polish grappler, against Tony Milano, of—guess where—Italy. The slaughter begins at 8:30 p. m.

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

Cecil Travis moves into the lead in the Nats' Man of the Month contest for May following his outstanding performance in yesterday's game. We are distributing points on the basis of that game as follows:

To Travis, five points, because he averted two and perhaps more Detroit runs by his diving catch and unassisted double-play on Tebbett's smash with the bases full in the fifth, and because he started an important double-play after a brilliant pick-up of York's fierce grounder later in the game.

To Zeke Bonura, two points, because he tripled to drive in two runs in the first inning.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, two points, because his two-bagger against the leftfield wall scored two runs and put the Nats in a temporary lead.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, because he drove in a run with his pair of hits;

Or Else Expected To Provide Closest Competition to Gould Entry

By the Associated Press

Warrenton, Va., May 1.—Nine leading timber horses, including two from the stables of Mrs. Frank M. Gould, of New York, will compete in the nineteenth annual running of the 4-mile Virginia Gold Cup race here Saturday.

Mrs. Gould, twice winner in the Gold Cup event and needing one more victory to retire the big trophy, has entered Black Sweep and Hold Forth. Their closest competition is expected to come from Or Else, winner of the 1939 Gold Cup race, owned by William F. Cochran, jr., of Baltimore.

Other contenders, who have been running well this season and may pass the favorites in the post-and-rail test, are Postman Home, owned by Mrs. Stewart Spilman, of The Plains; Sir Romeo, owned by Mrs. Armory S. Carhart, of Warrenton; Houseman, owned by Mrs. Turner Wiltshire, of Middleburg; Little Duchess, owned by Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Warrenton; Gulfelano, owned by Lewis M. Allen, of Winchester, and Tiger Lane, owned by Raymond Guest, of Front Royal.

Entries for the three other races Saturday were also released today by Secretary George W. Cutting, showing an average of ten horses for each event.

The 6300 Fauquier plate hurdle race over 1½ miles—Palm Stone, Mrs. John May Whitney, Upperville; Hillcastle, Mrs. Reginald Sinclaire, Larkspur, Colo.; Sir Koster, Mrs. George Watts Hill, Durham, N. C.; Sir Greystone, A. A. Fishback, Warrenton; Miss Gussie, Whitelaw Reid, New York; Rockmayne, Montpelier Stables, Montpelier; Goodworth, Joseph Richards, jr., Chevy Chase, Md.; Glory Maker, Mrs. Ethel S. ## Devitt Prep Nine Beaten

Devitt Prep joined in the slugging a bit too late in its baseball game with Bethesda-Chevy Chase yesterday, the suburbanites taking an 11-triumph on their home diamond.

Bethesda tallied four times in the first inning and six times in the third to effectively block Devitt's rally. The winners made 14 hits against the losers' nine. Despite the 23 safeties, only two went for extra bases, Hashagen and Eaton getting doubles for the winners.

The Crowd Roars as American U. and Wilson Teachers Nines Fight It Out

Above—The Wilson Teachers' cheering section for its game with A. U. yesterday. Their team didn't do so well. It took a 7-3 beating. Center—It wasn't necessary but Third Baseman Sorrell, of the Teachers, felt his homer in the seventh deserved more than a prosaic dash across the plate and he slid in although the play wasn't close

American U.'s cheering section (above) didn't quite fill the home team's stands, but it was considerably larger than that of the invaders. Comfort was the prevailing order, though several rabid fans sat up and yelled lustily. It was the Eagles' first triumph of the year after six setbacks

Blair Scores Two in Ninth To Beat Tech

Silver Springers Win Fourth in Row; Error Figures in Rally

A thrilling finish to a close ball game was supplied by Montgomery Blair diamond team yesterday when it scored two runs in the ninth inning to beat McKinley Tech, 4 to 3, at Four Corners. It was the suburbanites' fourth straight triumph after losing its opening game.

Outfielder Clark singled to start the crucial ninth, and Schrider followed with another single. In an attempt to catch Clarke at the plate, Catcher Wilson made such a mess of the play that both runners came over.

Johnny Norris was credited with the victory. He issued six bases on balls but tightened in the pinches to whiff a total of 7. All three of Tech's runs came in the sixth, with Lewis' double a contributing factor.

Eagles Finally Win, With 11 Stolen Bases

By Bill Burnett

American University's diamond streak, like that of the Brooklyn Dodgers but in reverse, came to a halt yesterday.

After six straight defeats, the Eagles finally found their way into the victory column when they made 6 hits, 11 stolen bases and three of the opposition's errors good for a 7-3 triumph over Wilson Teachers College.

The victory, taken on the home lot, was doubly sweet in that it took a rally to turn the trick. Wilson started right off with two runs in the opening inning, without getting a hit, but a single tally by the Eagles in the last half of the first and three each in the third and fourth brought the lead back home for good. Wilson tried a rally of its own in the ninth, Howard Sorrell leading off with a homer and two other players getting to base. That's as far as it went, however.

If nothing else, the game should have provided practice in woodcraft for outfielders of both teams. Four doubles and a triple were spilled into the bushy hill in rightfield. The gardeners were forced to scramble up the incline, fish for the ball in the leaves and try to miss the branches on the throw out.

Considering the lack of signals from the American bench, the game was even more interesting. Of the 11 base thefts, six came in the Eagles' big third inning. Players either set out to steal on their own initiative or committed the robbery after a shouted command. Catcher Newby highlighted the third when he stole home after walking, stealing second and moving to third on Morrison's single.

Despite the riotous aspect of things, George Brown took credit for a brilliantly pitched game. He held the opposition to five safeties, two in the last frame. It was his first start this season after breaking his shoulder in early practice.

Episcopal Nine Hands Saints First Setback

Virginians Earn 8-7 Game; Ellis Goes Route for Winners

For the first time this season St. Albans nine tasted defeat yesterday when Episcopal, pounding two Saint hurlers for 15 hits, took an 8-7 decision on the Wisconsin avenue field.

Ellis went the distance for Episcopal, allowing eight hits, three bases on balls and whiffing a solitary batsmen. Each team turned in five errors.

Batting stars of the day were Harlan, Wideman and West, of Episcopal. Harlan had the only triple of the game included in his record of three hits in four times. West had a double in addition to a single in five times and Wideman rapped three singles in five times at the plate.

On Fishing

If you fish West Virginia streams, do not kill fish indiscriminately this year, for certain new regulations concerning creel and length limits on certain species of nongame fish have been promulgated by the Conservation Commission. This is a real step forward, for the small fishes are just as important in their way as are the bass and trout—and an effort to build up the supply of panfish benefits everyone.

ACKERMAN.

Not only game fishermen, as it is so often said, but the boy and the girl, the farmer or his wife, who dropping in a line from the bank will find these regulations in a year or two giving them bigger and more fish to catch.

The commission has placed a definite length on each of the following species: Bluegills, redbellied sunfish, rock bass, crappie, channel catfish, white and yellow suckers, red horse and white perch. Fish smaller than the designated lengths cannot be kept and must be returned to the water when caught. A creel limit, big enough to supply natural needs yet hampering the game hog, has been set.

The bluegill and red-bellied sunfish (5 inches and 25 per day) are the only two species of sunfish affected. The bluebill is the largest of the species; has a small mouth, and the gill flap which is almost square lies posterior and almost parallel with the body. This flap is a deep blue-black in color without the pale margin other sunnies have. It is found in slow, sluggish waters.

The red-bellied sunfish has a long, narrow gill flap well back along the side. It is only found in the swift, running waters and riffles of Potomac watershed streams.

All sunfish having gill flaps which form angles with the axis of the body, or having red, orange, or white spots or margin on their gill flaps, are not protected. Many of them, such as the pumpkinseed, are swell eating.

The crappie and rock bass (5 inches and 25 per day) are too well known to need description. Crappie are also known as calico and strawberry bass, while the rock bass is commonly called red-eye or goggle-eye.

The channel catfish (10 inches and 15 per day) is the only catfish protected. Easily recognized from the slender, conical head. Its body is streamlined, and it has a forked tail, with black spots on its sides. This is the only fish of the species having a forked tail.

Suckers protected (10 inches long and 15 per day) are the common white, the yellow, the fine-scaled sucker, the coarse-scaled sucker and the red horse. Not included are the chub and the hog sucker.

White perch in West Virginia are dwindling. Protection today will mean a supply for tomorrow. Suckers, the young especially, are valuable forage for game fishes, and the present protection will allow them a chance to spawn.

Navy's Nine Wins Over Generals, 4-2

Middies Get Only Three Hits to Take Second Game of Season

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., May 1.—Navy's baseball team managed to squeeze out a victory over Washington and Lee here today, 4 to 2. It was not through any show of offensive power, however, but largely from the tight pitching of Norman Smith, coupled with the virtual collapse of Buck Brown, who was on the mound for the Generals in the fifth.

The victory was only the second of the season for the Tars. Their first came early in the campaign when they subdued Dartmouth.

THEY SAY THIS ABOUT Mary...
Mary did nothing common or mean

She was always regal and of great dignity. "Abandon the thought that I came hither in order to save my life. Neither the world nor Scotland has repudiated me. I came hither to win back my honour . . . that before you I might accuse my accusers." So wrote Mary, Queen of Scots to Elizabeth. It was this kind of courage that won so many friends for Mary.

The inspiration of Mary's friend-making qualities led the makers of Highland Queen to name the whisky for her. It is an appealing whisky, light and delicate, yet it retains rare flavor and bouquet.

Honey Cloud Wins Third Stake Victory in Taking Gittings

Scores Over Belay After Stretch Duel

Bostwick's Charge Nosed Out; Filisteo Runs Third; Victor Picks Up $2,130

Special Dispatch to The Post

Pimplico, Md., May 1.—In the featured Gittings Handicap here today, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud scored a popular but narrow victory over A. C. Bostwick's Belay, to pick up $2,130 and to qualify as a strong contender for next Wednesday's running of the Dixie Handicap. Belay put up a game fight, making a stout challenge in the stretch, but lost by a nose. Five lengths back in third place was H. C. Hatch's Filisteo, with John A. Manfusco's Affair in fourth and last place.

Honey Cloud, a 6-year-old son of High Cloud and Honey Pot, was ridden by Raymond (Sonny) Workman, a Washington lad who started a comeback at the beginning of the Pimlico meeting and is making good. Breaking in first place, Workman hustled to a daylight lead and coasted along in front until challenged by Belay at the head of the stretch. The two were driving head and head down to the wire with Honey Cloud eking out his nose triumph in the final jump.

Belay, making his first start of the season, was rated along evenly with Affair, running in close attendance to Honey Cloud's pace. Filistea dropped far out of the race, moved up menacingly on the turn but was not good enough. Affair showed good speed as far as he went, then stopped. All the contestants are nominated for the Dixie and the Bostwick color bearer showed a good enough effort to warrant going postward in the big race.

The winner scored his third stake victory this year, increasing his 1940 earnings to $12,380. He went postward odds-on in today's race, returning only $3.20 for $2. His time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:45 2-5.

In the first event Hal Price Headley's Pelisse, an invader from Keeneland, led throughout to score a six-length victory over the favored Bettie Nux. Oraibi was third a neck off the runner-up. Jockey Mannie Berg rode a confident race on the winner, finishing eased up to a gallop. Pelisse covered the 4½ furlongs in 0:55 3-5 and returned $10.70 for $2.

Jouett Shouse's Challante finished strongly to take the second race by a length and a half from the faint-hearted Blablah.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PELISSE, $10.70, $5.30, $4.40; BETTIE NUX, $4.20, $3.30; ORAIBI, $11.20.

PELISSE, a speedy filly, assumed command in opening furlong, drew out gradually and was being taken in hand at close. BETTIE NUX, first away, followed closest to pace and had no excuses. ORAIBI saved ground throughout and closed gamely. SPRING DANCE raced wide from start and showed good effort. RUCKELLE threw jockey and ran off at post and failed to show speed at any stage.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:51. Off 2:52. Winner, J. Shouse's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALLANTE, $14.90, $5.10, $3.20; BLABLAH, $3.20, $2.90; PLOT, $3.40.

CHALLANTE, steadied along in early stages, came to leaders boldly when called upon and wore down BLABLAH to win going away. BLABLAH broke alertly, set good pace, but could not resist winner while under pressure. PLOT was off slowly, worked way to contention and hung in stretch drive. LITTLE MOWLEE was off in tangle, moved up menacingly approaching stretch and faltered in final drive.

Daily Double, PELISSE and CHALLANTE, Paid $66.70

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:19. Off 3:20½. Winner, S. J. Holloway's gr. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAGPIPE, $11.60, $5.50, $3.50; CORRIGAN, $6.30, $3.60; CONSTRUCTOR, $2.80.

BAGPIPE, rated for turn of course, went to contention boldly while fencing well, took command after thirteenth fence and held sway thereafter under hard drive. CORRIGAN was allowed to race on own courage for mile, moved up with good courage under drive, but could not seriously menace winner. CONSTRUCTOR set early pace, was taken under restraint at eleventh fence and failed to rally when put to pressure. JACK HORNER set and pressed early pace and faltered after poor landing at eleventh. BALK ran out at turns and fell at fifteenth after gaining contention. DIFFERENT II fell at eleventh, DRINTHORN ran away before the race and was pulled up.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, GOOD.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:51. Off 3:55½. Winner, W. F. Hitt's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAST CALL, $19.00, $8.80, $5.80; WALTER LIGHT, $11.80, $7.20; KNITETTA, $3.50.

LAST CALL, within striking distance from start, reached leader on stretch turn and just got up in hard drive. WALTER LIGHT raced in close attendance throughout, took slight lead in stretch and just missed. KNITETTA disposed of STAR STREWN in opening quarter, but weakened slightly in stretch. HAPPY LARK saved ground throughout but was not good enough.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,500. The Timonium, Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:21. Off 4:22½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGHT TIDE, $13.70, $6.60, $4.10; CHARLOTTE GIRL, $4.30, $2.90; BOSTON PAL, $4.00.

NIGHT TIDE opened good lead in opening quarter, was well rated while setting pace and held on well in stretch drive. CHARLOTTE GIRL lacked early speed, came to middle of track in final quarter and closed well. BOSTON PAL ran an even race. FLYING LEE forced pace of winner to stretch, but tired thereafter. OLYMPUS and FOXSHADE were never serious factors.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEY CLOUD, $3.20, $2.80; out; BELAY, $3.80, out; FILISTEO, out. (No show mutuels sold.)

HONEY CLOUD assumed lead soon after break, was running easily while setting pace, was headed for a brief spell in stretch, again took command at three-sixteenths pole and won under a strong hand ride by Workman. BELAY, closer than usual, went by leader at eighth pole, but just missed in stretch drive. FILISTEO was badly outrun in early stages, closed well, but could not threaten top ones. AFFAIR chased the ultimate winner for a half, but tired in final stages.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:16½. Off 5:17. Winner, MacThorn Farm's b. m. (6), by St. Germans—Zelide. Trained by C. P. Winfrey. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHITE SAND (entry), $9.00, $3.60, $2.30; CACODEMON, $4.40, $2.70; ROYAL BUSINESS, $2.20.

WHITE SAND trailed field for half, came to extreme outside on stretch turn and wore CACODEMON down in final strides to win going away. CACODEMON opened long lead while running easily, but could not resist winner. ROYAL BUSINESS was closest to pace in stretch, but could not catch the two top ones. RUN BY was never a serious factor.

At the Post

Selections at Pimlico

Dear Al:

When you read this, I'll be Derby bound. One thing is certain, I won't be singing the "Happy Birthday" song. I did that yesterday morning over WOL, and came the revolution. Before leaving for Louisville, I would like to clean up a little item. The stewards made a ruling regarding the horses of Eddie Talbert, of Washington, at Havre de Grace. Here's what happened. Talbert gave a friend money to bet for him and the friend, instead of buying a ticket, played it with a bookie. A detective saw the transaction. Had not Talbert owned horses, nothing probably would have been heard of the instance. I can't blame the track. With their earnings, as well as the State's, depending upon mutuel play, the track is not a place for bookies. However, the bare announcement that Talbert and his horses were barred left plenty of room for thought as to the cause. The stewards would not discuss the case. So let's forget it. The consensus of the Pimlico press box is that Bimelech will jog in the Derby. Donald Hay, popular mutuel department manager, has gone to Charles Town to prepare for the meeting there and to help the press club frolic at the West Virginia course a week from Saturday. Mr. Humphrey Finney, recently recovered from an attack of whooping cough, shepherded Mr. and Mrs. R. Sterling Clark about the stables yesterday morning on their first visit to Pimlico for a look at their string. The stable comprises 12 head, mostly 2-year-olds of English breeding which are being trained by Vincent Mara. According to the racing secretary's office two horses changed hands yesterday at private sale: Ferocity which went to the Woodie Stable and Kilplacer taken up by the B. & B. Stable. Jockey Danny Driscoll was thrown by Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud yesterday morning, sustaining mild shock and slight abrasions on the right leg.

CONFUCIUS cashed his bet on NIGHT TIDE and boosted his bank roll to $36. For today he say, MISS MAKER should be O. K. for $2.

BILL.

First race—Patched Pants make his first start under the colors of Jerome Louchheim. A son of Economic—Pants, he is reported speedy enough to whip this sort. Chives ran several fair races with mediocre juveniles at Havre and merits a chance. Miss Cheers needed her last and should improve.

Second race—Grand Duke just missed when nosed out by Sure Touch. He meets a similar field today and receives the call. Amerlee was a rank outsider when he whipped Kaptime at Havre, but has a good chance if he runs back to that race. Miss Fix It for the show.

Third race—Spinach has not been out since campaigning at Pimlico last fall in several stakes with fair success. He meets a field he should beat. Matey is reported to have won several races at the hunt meets and might be a dangerous factor. One Round won a claiming event last start last year.

Fourth race—La Scala turned a creditable performance to win at first asking this year at Havre. She was speedy last year and figures to have a slight edge over Minorca. The latter has run several good races and will be dangerous on best effort. Giggle Lee for show.

Fifth race—Sun Phantom was much the best when he registered over a field of medium grade platers at Havre. The contention here seems cheaper with the exception of Brown Knight. Brown Knight has class, but probably needs a race. Argella should beat the others.

Sixth race—Tripit won his first start opening day at Havre in fast time. Meeting interference in the Aberdeen Stakes last week he failed to run back to that race. With an even break he should win. Becomly won the Aberdeen and will be the one to beat here. Nannykins is a dangerous contender.

Seventh race—Howard has been winning or knocking close in late races, racing with better company. He appears well placed here and should win. The Jones entry of Alsang and Fire Bali both won recently and must be considered as the most serious contention. Cnnie Plaut for show.

Eighth race—Head Hunter has displayed rare form to account for three races and two seconds in five starts. He meets the usual cheap field in this event and should win. Trout Stream whipped Playmore in his last and figures next in line. Bounding Count won his last, but didn't beat much.

Best bet—Patched Pants.

French-Owned Djebel Wins Race Classic

Newmarket, England, May 1 (AP).—Marcel Boussac's French-owned Djebel today won the 2,000 guineas, first of the season's 3-year-old classics. Ridden by E. C. Elliott, Djebel whipped 20 others of his age, including William Woodward's Bladen, over the mile route. The Aga Khan's Stardust was second and the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux third.

Favored in the betting at 9 to 4, Djebel won by two lengths. Stardust was quoted at 100 to 9 and Tant Mieux at 13 to 2.

THE COLLIE

Often called the "Scotch Collie" because of his origin there about 1700. He is distinctly a working dog, seldom excelled in the herding of sheep. They were first brought to America about 1890 and have been consistent in their popularity since. They may be nearly any color or combination of colors, should weigh from 50 to 60 pounds. This champion is owned by Leo Murphy, prominent local breeder. (I. George photo.)

Pan American Airways Earns $1.46 a Share

Juan Trippe Reports 1939 Was Best Year In Airline's History

By the Associated Press

New York, May 1.—Pan-American Airways Corporation reported today that 1939 resulted in the biggest profits in its 12-year history—net earnings of $1,984,439, or $1.46 a share, compared with $46,672, or 3 cents a share, in 1938.

It was also the greatest year for the airline in other fields, Juan T. Trippe, president, announced. The company's routes were extended to a total of 62,305 miles, compared with 53,548 the preceding year. A total of 110,322,175 passenger miles were flown, compared with 87,394,808 in 1938.

Trippe indicated that the transatlantic service, inaugurated last May 20, had proven a success financially.

Burlington Railroad

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co., told stockholders in a statement accompanying the annual report that freight and the number of passengers decreased sharply since 1931 despite lower charges and improved service. The company, he said, handled only 92 per cent as much freight and 80 per cent as many passengers in 1939 as it did in 1931. Freight traffic volume in 1939 increased 4.58 per cent over 1938.

Middlewest Corp.

The Middlewest Corp. of Wilmington, Del., and subsidiaries, exclusive of Central Illinois Public Service Co. and Lake Superior District Power Co., reported today for 1939 consolidated net income of $4,120,492. This was equal to $1.24 a share on the capital stock and compared with $2,678,463, or 80 cents a share in 1938.

P. L. Smith, president, said in his report to stockholders that the corporation has been of the opinion that under the terms of the Public Utility Holding Company Act it is "permitted to retain the majority of its more important subsidiaries, and it is willing to dispose of others on fair terms and, in fact, has been carrying on negotiations to that end."

Dulin Is Named Bankers' Dinner Committee Head

James C. Dulin, jr., treasurer, American Security & Trust Co., has been appointed by Ord Preston, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, as chairman of the 1940 preconvention dinner committee. S. William Miller, treasurer, Union Trust Co., is vice chairman.

Chairman Dulin announced that the preconvention dinner of the association will be held at Columbia Country Club on Thursday evening, May 16, at 7:30. Some 250 bank officers and directors are expected to attend.

An interesting program is being arranged. One of the features of the affair will be a golf tournament in the afternoon, the winner to receive the Robert V. Fleming Golf Trophy. There will also be other golf prizes.

G.-M. & N. Seeks $7,500,000 Loan

The Gulf-Mobile & Northern Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to borrow $7,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in connection with the pending consolidation of that railroad and the Mobile & Ohio.

The Gulf, Mobile & Northern proposes to use the loan to purchase from the Southern Railway $7,839,000 of Mobile & Ohio stock. The Gulf, Mobile & Northern will pay $7,538,166 for the stock.

Fire Underwriting Profits Anticipated

Despite the sharp rise in fire losses and the continuing pressure on rates, 1940 fire insurance underwriting operations should remain profitable, according to Poor's Investment Advisory Service. Broad rate reductions effected on casualty lines have intensified competition. However, continuing accident prevention activities and more careful underwriting should maintain favorable casualty experience.

Manufacturers' Inventories Hold Steady During March

New York, May 1.—Inventories of manufacturers in March remained at about the same level as in the preceding two months while the rate of decline in new orders was sharply reduced, after adjustment for the usual seasonal rise, according to the preliminary indexes for March compiled by the division of industrial economics of the conference board. The value of shipments, however, declined substantially, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The value of inventories, according to reports made directly to the board of manufacturers, was 1 per cent less than at the close of February, the same as at the end of January, but 17 per cent higher than at the end of March, 1939. The slight decrease in the preliminary index from 132 to 131 (1936 equals 100) was largely accounted for by declines in the automobile equipment, clothing, nonferrous metal and railway equipment industries.

The absence of further important accumulation since the end of last January indicates that the inventory situation has been brought under control. This has been accomplished more quickly than in 1937, and before stocks had been built up to the 1937 nigh level.

The value of new business booked, according to the board's seasonally adjusted index, was only 2 per cent less than in February, as compared with a drop of about 10 per cent from January to February, and stood 8 per cent above the level for March, 1939.

Bears Predominate Although Explanation Is Absent on War or Domestic Fronts; Steels, Coppers Notably Weak in Soft List

New York, May 1.—Bearish feelings pervaded security and wheat markets today although there was no unanimity among traders as to whether indications of an extension of the war, or lack of such signs, was responsible.

The severe dip in stock prices could have been explained by German claims of successes in Norway as well as by British precautions in the Mediterranean and Far East, pointing to uncertainty over Italian neutrality.

Steels, Coppers Weak

Steels and coppers were notably weak in a generally soft list. Steel common, which earned $1.24 a share for the first quarter, was the most active issue in the group at a discount of 1¾ points compared with the previous close. There may have been some disappointment over the earnings and, possibly, over lack of a distribution on the junior stock.

The Iron Age review placed steel output at mid week at 63 per cent of capacity, or more than a point above the composite schedule of 61.9 per cent announced by the American Iron & Steel Institute on Monday.

Bethlehem Steel, Republic and Youngstown Sheet & Tube each lost a point, Crucible 1½ and National ½. Coppers, while less active than most other divisions, yielded readily. Kennecott gave up more than a point and Anaconda was ½ lower. Cerro de Pasco, as well as Kennecott and International Nickel, were at new lows for the year or longer. Loft, leader for the day, broke more than 2 points on sales of 28,300 shares.

The petroleum group did better than most other descriptions with Pure, Consolidated, Ohio & Atlantic Refining all joining the 15 most active issues. Curtiss-Wright, second most active issue, and Pan American Airways, did well. Lockheed and some of the others lost ground.

High earnings were forecast for paper companies which sustained the group in the face of realizing sales.

Foreign Bonds Sag

Fresh unsettlement was occasioned today in the foreign dollar section of the listed bond market by European developments. Trading was quiet as a whole, with dealings only at $5,450,000. Norwegian bonds fell 1 to 3 points on the junction of German forces there, and Danish issues also receded. The Italian group moved sharply lower on fears of participation by that country in the war, while Belgian bonds also were lower. Canadian bonds and Australian municipal issues were under pressure, while German bonds improved. Latin-Americans were neglected.

Speculative domestic bonds were under slight pressure. Holding company and share privilege bonds were soft.

War Makes N. Y. Leading Money Mart

National City Bank Fears Difficulties From Export Rise

By the Associated Press

New York, May 1.—New York has displaced London as the world's leading foreign exchange market since England adopted war-time currency controls, the National City Bank reported today.

"Because London and the British Empire generally no longer deal in free exchange, but only in official exchange, the greater part of the business of Latin America, Asia and continental Europe that formerly went to London now comes here," said the New York bank in its monthly economic survey.

Commenting on wartime shifts in foreign trade, the bank added:

"While the war lasts and the Allied powers have gold and dollar balances to draw upon, a high level of aggregate exports from the United States seems assured.

"Thus the danger is not of an immediate shrinkage in our overseas business but rather that it may become too heavily dependent upon war stimulated demands, with consequent difficulties should Allied purchasing power become exhausted or when the war comes to an end."

Cotton Narrow In 3-Point Range, Ends 1 Up to 2 Off

New York, May 1 (AP).—Cotton futures worked their way back and forth in a 3-point range today, ending 1 higher to 2 lower. Brokers said trade was hamstrung by further delays in Congress over a vote on the agricultural appropriation bill.

The weekly Government weather report, regarded as unfavorable by observers, plus continued heavy rains in the central belt, stymied the market for a while but speculative eyes were fastened too tightly on Washington to be distracted long by other factors.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures rounded out an uneven session 5 points lower to 5 higher today. A downward slant to allied markets influenced selling but steady crude oil markets prevented more serious pressure. Sales totaled 97 lots: May 6.80b, July 6.80b, September 6.88, October 6.88b, November 6.90, December 6.90b. b—Bid. Crude oil was quoted 8⅝ cents a pound bid in the Southeast at favorable rate points and 5¾ bid in the valley. Texas was nominally 5½ cents.

3 Feathers Goes To International

Harry Stevens, sales representative for Oldetyme Distillers, Inc., announced the appointment of the International Distributing Co. as wholesalers for Three Feathers whisky.

At a dinner meeting at the Ambassador Hotel a forthcoming advertising campaign was explained by Stanley Monasch of the Oldetyme Distillers advertising department and Clyde Freeman, field supervisor, to Harry Taylor, president of the International Distributing Co., and the sales staff.

Permanent Building Association Assets Reach All-Time Record

Company Reelects Sacks as President On 59th Anniversary

ECKERT J. SACKS

With total assets of $10,250,000, the Washington Permanent Building Association, yesterday completed its fifty-ninth year. Shareholders at the annual election of officers and directors were told that this figure represents an all-time high.

Closely identified with home financing in Washington since 1881, the association, under the direction of Charles Herman, was established at the corner of Seventh and K streets northwest. Shortly thereafter the rapidly growing group found it necessary to remove to larger quarters at Seventh and F streets, where Hecht's department store now stands. Several other changes were made before the association acquired the site at 629 F street, where, in 1913, the present office building was erected.

Eckert J. Sacks, one of the organizers and an original director, was re-elected president. At the same time John Henderson was renamed vice president; Carl J. Bergman, treasurer, and H. H. Bergmann, secretary. C. Chester Caywood continues as general counsel. Directors re-appointed include John H. Clipper, C. Ramling, James R. Ellis, Clyde H. Miller, Max Walton, Joseph N. Saunders and Walter B. Avery.

Washington Permanent was the first association in the city to become a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank. It is also a member of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, the United States Savings and Loan League and the American Savings, Building and Loan Institute.

Wheat Breaks 2 to 3 Cents; Corn Slumps

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 1.—Wheat prices fell 2 to 3 cents a bushel today, one of the sharpest breaks in some time, to the lowest level since April 8, one day before the invasion of Scandinavia.

Favorable grain belt weather, heavy marketing of wheat, weakness in securities and Rome reports indicating there will be no sudden change in Italy's war policy were factors.

Wheat closed 1⅞@2⅞ lower than yesterday, May, $1.04⅞@1.05⅛; July, $1.04½@1.04¼. These prices were 7 to 8 cents below the three-year peaks established nine days ago.

Corn closed ⅝@⅞ lower, May, 64; July, 64⅜@64½; oats, ⅜@⅝ off; soy beans unchanged to 2⅛ down; rye, 1½@1⅞ o, and lard 2@5 lower.

Money Markets

New York, May 1 (AP).—A drop of 2¼ cents in the British pound paved the way for a broad decline among other leading foreign currencies today. Latest decline in sterling carried the unit to $3.69, close to the lowest price in years, touched earlier in 1940. Disquieting effect of war news, especially the British shift in trade routes from the Mediterranean to around the Cape of Good Hope was rated a major depressant by foreign exchange dealers.

The Canadian dollar lost ¼ cent, the French franc .01¼ of a cent, the belga .02 of a cent and the guilder .01 of a cent. Unchanged was the Swiss franc.

C. & O. Head Dodges Query On Nickel Plate

Stockholder Asks If Parent Company Will Help Pay Note

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 1.—George D. Brooke, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette railways, told a Nickel Plate stockholder today the road is not paying preferred dividends because it "must conserve its resources to do its best" to meet $12,656,000 of unsecured notes due October 1, 1941.

The stockholder, A. A. Reeves, asked Brooke if the parent, C. & O., would be willing to help on the issue if Nickel Plate is unable to redeem notes of holders who refuse to extend them.

"I won't answer that," Brooke replied. "I think you are out of order asking that at a Nickel Plate meeting."

When the notes, which Brooke described today as an "extremely difficult" problem, last fell due in 1938, C. & O. refused to buy any and eventually enough holders agreed to a third three year extension to avert reorganization of Nickel Plate.

In answer to another question from Reeves, Brooke said if earnings continue about as they are now, Nickel Plate could not pay off the entire issue. Asked about possibility of replacing the notes with long-term bonds, Brooke said "there is no possibility—there is nothing to put back of the bonds."

Stockholders elected Darwin S. Barrett, jr., of Cleveland, an official of C. & O., to the Nickel Plate board, replacing Herbert Fitzpatrick, who retired last month as C. & O. chairman.

Departmental Bank Asset Sale Is Set

Sale of the remaining assets of the Departmental Bank, final step in the liquidation of the institution, has been authorized by the Treasury, John F. Moran, receiver, announced yesterday.

The sale was set for 2 p. m. Friday, May 17, at the office of the receiver, 322 Riggs National Bank building, Fourteenth street and Park Road, N. W.

The Departmental Bank closed July 14, 1932, liabilities were approximately $1,000,000 and the assets were $1,200,000, which included a stockholders' liability of $106,000.

The liquidation has resulted in six dividends being paid to date, amounting to 85 per cent. Dividends and secured and preferred liabilities paid were approximately $800,000. It is expected at the termination of the bank's affairs that a seventh and final dividend will be paid.

April Rains End Drought Threat In Farm Regions

The Weather Bureau reported yesterday that April rains ended threatening drought conditions in much of the Midwestern farm belt.

Preliminary reports for April indicated, the bureau said, that the top soil was amply supplied with moisture for current needs in the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio River valleys and in the Northern Great Plains.

However, an area comprising the west-central and southwestern Texas, and eastern New Mexico had large deficiencies.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. Used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. In re condemnation for acquisition of land in Squares 5253 and 5254 for alley purposes, in the District of Columbia. District Court, No. 2654. Notice and order of publication. Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, pursuant to the provisions of sections 1606 to 1610, inclusive, of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, have filed a petition in this court, praying for the condemnation of the land necessary for the opening of an alley in Squares 5253 and 5254, in the District of Columbia, as shown on a map or plat filed with the said petition as part thereof, and praying also that this court empanel a jury in accordance with the law provided for in such cases to assess the damages each owner of land to be taken may sustain by reason of the opening of the alley and the condemnation of the land necessary for the purposes thereof, and to assess benefits resulting therefrom, including the expenses of these proceedings, upon each lot or part of lot, or parcel of land, which will be benefited by said condemnation, in the proportion that the said jury may find said lots, parts of lots, or parcels of land will be benefited as provided for in and by the aforesaid Code of Law, and by the Act of Congress approved June 20, 1939. It is, by the court, this 22d day of April, 1940, ordered that all persons having any interest in these proceedings be, and they hereby are, warned and commanded to appear in this court on or before the 20TH DAY OF MAY, 1940, AT TEN O'CLOCK A. M., and continue in attendance until the court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award of damages and the assessment of benefits of the jury to be empaneled and sworn herein, and it is further ordered that a copy of this notice and order be published twice a week for two successive weeks in the Washington Evening Star, the Washington Times-Herald and The Washington Post, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least ten days before the said 20TH DAY OF MAY, 1940. It is further ordered that a copy of this notice and order be served by the United States marshal, or his deputies, upon each of the owners of the fee of the land to be condemned herein as may be found by the said marshal, or his deputies, within the District of Columbia, before the said 20TH DAY OF MAY, 1940. By the court: ALFRED A. WHEAT, Chief Justice. A true copy—Test: CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By HARRY M. HULL, Assistant Clerk.

One of the new school of radio commentators, Elmer Davis, is currently in our midst, bent on digging up a little first hand information on the Washington scene.

As a commentator, the former newspaperman and author is doing a good deal better than all right and that is cause for personal rejoicing. For Davis was one of the very first of the news analysts to work on the theory that the average radio listener could read and write and probably did. It had been customary before the Davis theory was put into successful practice to sort of help the listeners over those difficult synonyms by explaining on each and every broadcast that Germans were Nazis and that one Adolf Hitler was the boss. This was occasionally followed by a little spectacular crystal ball gazing, which combined the better tricks of a Class A con-man and a mind reading act on the Gus Sun time.

Davis does a bit of prognosticating, but when he's in there guessing he says just that and substantiates his guesses with logic. He's right as often as the next one and when he's wrong you're not very surprised because he makes quite a point of mentioning the possibility of error when he's speaking.

Davis actually is no new hand at radio, but when he made his first soiree into the racket there was a general theory among most executives that anybody who spoke into a microphone must have the diction of Barrymore (John, Lionel or Ethel). Davis doesn't have any trouble making himself understood, but his voice sounds like something that originated in a human larynx, not in the cloistered trunks of the East Saugatuck Shakespearean Repertory Co. Fortunately for all radio listeners the ether moguls have forgotten their prejudices against normal speaking tones. This, like most major improvements in the Nation's newest industry, was brought about by Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

LEAP YEAR LADY by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Smoky O'Toole Stacy's husband, Tex, was suffering amnesia after a serious accident, and it was a relief to her to know that the doctor understood all the circumstances and would be helpful. She had just learned the cowboy singer she had met in the new musical show was really the son of the wealthy Governor. And the Governor lost no time in arriving at the hospital with his son's former fiancee, but the Doctor in charge firmly insisted that she not see Tex, that the Governor refrain from exciting his son, and that Tex had a wife whose wishes must be considered. Smoky was home trying to get some rest after the harrowing experiences following on being jilted by Karl Hetrick, her sudden marriage to Tex, and her father's death trying to save Karl's wife. She wished to be at the hospital as much as possible, but felt it necessary to continue her work in the show.

Chapter 23

THE GOVERNOR barked: "I will not recognize this marriage! My son was no doubt suffering from loss of memory when he met this actress. Alicia is still my son's fiancee as far as I'm concerned. I'll get at the bottom of this. This chorus girl is some grafting little gold-digger he picked up!"

Dr. Stiller's eyes hardened. "For your information, Governor, I think you should know that a few days ago Mrs. Stacy lost her father. When your son met with this accident yesterday his wife took all the money she had in the world, her father's insurance policy, and put it up as security so that he could have the best care.

"He has a private room, a day and night nurse and everything money can buy to make him comfortable. She has haunted the hospital to be near him. Mrs. Stacy is heartbroken, and if you're the man I hope you are, you will not add to her burden on top of her father's death and her husband's accident. She is keeping on at the theater so that there will be money enough to take care of your son."

"I'll take care of my own son," Stacy, sr., said unmoved. "This woman must be kept away from him. I demand it."

Doctor Defends Smoky

Dr. Stiller rose. "You can't demand it." He fought to keep the anger out of his voice. "She is his wife. Her claim on him is greater than yours. I'm well aware of your wealth and position. But your authority is no greater than that of a street cleaner under the roof of this hospital."

The Governor was a man who knew men. He looked at the set face of Dr. Stiller and knew that a million-dollar bribe would not move him to change his mind or his attitude.

He said, a little more calmly: "Will you please take me to see my son? I'm really very anxious to see him, doctor."

"I understand how you feel," the doctor said kindly. "But that doesn't change our rules. Will you promise not to question your son? If so, I will take you to his room."

The Governor nodded: "As you wish."

"And it is understood that, under no circumstances, unless your son regains his memory and asks for her, is Miss Lowery to be permitted to go near his room."

The father hesitated. Then he said, grimly: "I will tell her she must stay away."

Father Sees Tex

The nurse on duty got up when the doctor and the Governor entered the room. "Shall I leave, doctor," she asked.

"No," said Dr. Stiller. "You may stay, nurse. Is the patient asleep?"

"Just resting, I believe, doctor."

The doctor bent over the patient. "Mr. Stacy, some one to see you."

Tex lay on his back. He opened his eyes. They were dull and lifeless.

"This is your father," Dr. Stiller said quietly. "Do you remember him?"

The Governor's face was very pale. He smiled with difficulty: "Hello, Bill. Glad to see you."

Tex tried to raise on his elbow. The nurse put an extra pillow under his head while he stared at the gray-haired Governor blankly, struggling against the numbness of his tired brain. "My father?" he asked weakly. "You're my father?"

"Yes." The older man bent over him closely. "Look at me, son, and try to remember."

Tex closed his eyes. "I—can't remember anything," he said, wearily. "I'm sorry."

"Very well," the doctor said soothingly. "Rest now, Stacy. And we'll be back again. You'll be all right in a little while."

Tex sighed heavily. "I—don't remember anything," he said drearily and stirred impatiently. "My head—it's so tired."

More Trouble for Smoky

The doctor touched the father on the arm and he left the bedside reluctantly. Outside the Governor was visibly shaken. "How soon can he be moved?" he asked. "I'd like to charter a plane and take him to a hospital at home where he can have the care of doctors he knows. It might help to restore his memory.

The doctor said firmly. "That would not be permissible at present, even if Mrs. Stacy did give her consent."

The Governor's jaw hardened, but he kept silent.

Alicia paced the waiting room haughtily when the Governor found her. "Come, 'Licia," he said grimly. "We'll go talk with that chorus girl now."

Shamrock was making a sandwich and coffee in the kitchen when the doorbell rang. She wiped her hands and went to the door. She was wearing a navy blue dress and green frilly apron.

When he saw the tall gray-haired man and the haughty mink-coated blonde she knew instantly that the man was Tex's father and the girl Alicia Lowrey.

"You're Miss O'Toole?" the man asked coldly.

"Yes." She swallowed and her heart skipped a beat.

The man did not ask if they could come in. He took a step forward. "I'd like to talk with you," he said, his hostile eyes taking in the pale young girl. She was without a trace of make-up and the freckles stood out plainly on her little turned-up nose.

Shamrock stepped back and they walked inside. Then she closed the door. "W-won't you sit down," she fought for control.

Alicia looked at the little room with distaste and sat down as if the best chair in the room was dirt under her expensively shod feet. The Governor sat down on the couch.

Needless Introduction

"You—you're Tex's father?" Smoky moved to the edge of her father's armchair, wrapping her icy hands in the little apron nervously.

"I am William Stacy's father, yes," the man's eyes bored into her. "I've come to get at the bottom of this so-called marriage my son contracted with you. This young lady is my son's fiancee."

"Miss Lowery," Smoky nodded. "I thought so."

Alicia, Smoky noted quickly, was golden-haired and green-eyed and very beautiful in a cool, languid way. The detective had been right when he described her as a cold one. Her face was petulant and snob was written all over her, Smoky decided.

Alicia's narrowed eyes blazed with malice. She raised her eyebrows inquiringly: "Who told you of me? Bill?"

"No," Smoky shook her head. "He has never mentioned you. It was the detective who came last night. I was glad to find out where you were, Mr. Stacy," Smoky looked at him appealingly. "I wanted to let you know your son was hurt."

The Governor grunted. "Didn't you know where to reach me?"

Smoky flushed. Then she said truthfully: "No, I didn't know who you were. My husband hadn't told me."

An Argument Begins

The father lit a cigarette, his penetrating gray eyes studying Smoky carefully.

"He led you to believe he was a Texan, the private detective told me on the phone last night. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir," said Smoky.

"That proves, then," he turned to Alicia, "that when Bill went through a marriage ceremony with this girl he was suffering from amnesia. Therefore, the marriage isn't legal. It can be annulled."

"Of course, it can," Alicia smiled. "And I'm sure Miss O'Toole will be reasonable."

Smoky wet her lips. "What—do you mean, reasonable?" she asked then.

Shamrock's eyes snapped angrily. "This is my home. I was born in this house. It's good enough for me."

The Governor spoke up impatiently: "Oh, come now! You don't have to pretend with us. Name your price for annulling this marriage and we'll meet it. If it's within reason."

Shamrock stared at him speechlessly, and Alicia said: "Bill loves me. He didn't know what he was doing or he never would have married so far beneath him. You must know that. If he were in his right mind he wouldn't be caught dead in a place like this. He'd be terribly humiliated if he recovered his memory and found himself married to a chorus girl."

The father broke in grimly: "I don't intend to let that happen, Alicia. I'm sure I've the influence to annul this marriage at once. Then when my son recovers he won't know what happened. You and he can be married and go around the world for a year till the scandal blows over."

To Be Continued.

PERCALE 72x108 in. Sheets

(No. 1 seconds. If perfect, $1.59)

Smooth, sleek and snowy-white. Not a sheet in the group with any serious defect. An occasional oil spot or an uneven hem is all you'll find. Buy generously for the summer . . . they're so much cooler than muslin.
